FLAG GROUP OPENS DOORS

1,200 NEW, 3,000 OLD

Beavers, Geese and a Pot of Pea Soup . . . A Nightmare

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Beavers, geese, a pot of pea soup and enough Maple Leaves to cover a tree, were on display today as the parliamentary flag committee opened its doors at the half-way mark in its six-week deliberations.

The riot of flag designs—1,200 new ones and 3,000 left over from the 1945-46 committee—papered the walls, hung from the ceilings and crept up from the floor of room 356S in the centre block.

Chairman Herman Batten (L—Humber-St. George's) and his 14 colleagues from all parties were on hand for pictures and the guarded comments which have become their standard offering since the committee began.

Batten did reveal that the committee had met 18 times during which it had sifted information from documents and experts in heraldry, protocol, Canadian history and political economy.

Whether or not the committee could come up with a near unanimous decision within its six-week deadline was "a difficult question," Batten said.

To the newsmen who were invited in for a half-hour glimpse of the no-man's-land of flags, that was putting it mildly.

The Red Ensign was there, but the symbol which dominated the room was the maple leaf and almost every variation of it that Canadian flag lovers could dream up.

There were bars, stripes, crosses and circles mounted on rough paper, elaborate silk, wood, cardboard and photographs.

Among the lot were several striking alternatives for a distinctive national flag. There were also humorous efforts and a few in questionable taste.

Some featured Canadian geese flying across the flag pursued by maple leaves. On one a dove was singing "O Canada." There were several designs with a beaver biting the stem of a maple leaf.

One had an Egyptian eye peering out of the heart of a maple leaf. Christ, the Queen and the Union Jack dominated another.

A sardonic contribution consisted of three vertical panels of red, white and blue. Centered in one panel was a foaming mug labelled "The Legion"; in the other a steaming bowl of pea soup for Quebec; and in the centre a question mark labelled "Canada."

The total effect of having to sit in the room for any length of time was enough to shake even a stout constitution.

One committee member admitted to having flag nightmares.

None would single out his personal choice of design, and most covered the situation with a diplomatic "I like them all."

In a more serious vein one confided that it was impossible to tell whether any decision will be reached at the end of six weeks.

To date most of the meetings have been directed toward gathering information.

Still to come is the difficult process of negotiating among the seven Liberals, five Conservatives and one each from the three minority parties to determine possible areas of compromise and hard lines of agreement.

Whether Canada will have a new flag by Christmas remains a moot question.

CHILDREN HAIL QUEEN AT RALLY

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A drizzle of rain stopped long enough today for the Queen and Prince Philip to make their second open-air appearance of the Royal Tour on the balcony of Province House, Prince Edward Island's legislative building and scene of the first meeting, in 1864, of the Fathers of Confederation.

But a massive outdoor gathering of Charlottetown and district school children was moved inside the city's fairgrounds arena. The Queen, wearing a simple turquois wool tweed ensemble, presented senior boy scout and girl guide awards before a crowd of nearly 9,000, almost all of them children.

Driving from the Royal Yacht Britannia in Charlottetown Harbor to the legislature, the fair grounds, and the residence of Lieutenant-Governor W. J. MacDonald, the Queen and her husband, again lowered the windows of their closed limousine.

Despite the showery weather, thousands lined the route. The crowd packing the main intersection in front of Province House sent up a roar of welcome when the Queen stepped on to a balcony.

Premier Walter Shaw talked animatedly with her, pointing out the skyline with the twin spires of St. Dunstan's Roman Catholic basilica a block away.

Inside the legislature, the Queen spent several minutes visiting the chamber where in 1864, the first meeting of the Fathers of Confederation was

Ingram Ordered To Stand Trial

By DESMOND BILL
Times Staff Reporter

NANAIMO—Ronald Ingram, a 34-year-old Nanaimo baker, this morning was committed for trial in a higher court on two counts of capital murder. (See earlier story on Page 31.)

He is charged with the slaying of Diane Phipps and Leslie Dixon two years ago in Nanaimo.

MAINLAND TRIAL

Ingram's trial likely will be in Vancouver or New Westminster.

Ingram's commital this morning came after testimony by 43 witnesses in the case. RCMP Staff-Sergeant Jack Purdy, in charge of investigation, testified today.

He said Ingram was icing a cake the first time he was interviewed by police. This occurred on Aug. 7 of this year when the RCMP officer went to a bakery in Westview Shopping Plaza in West Vancouver where Ingram was working.

Another officer present at the interview, Const. Wally Seminoff, said Ingram continued working while talking to police, but he didn't finish the icing before the three of them left to go to the North Vancouver police station.

All through the hearing Ingram sat impassive in the dock with his legs crossed, arms folded and head cocked on the one side.

Ingram's second wife and his mother sat in the front row downstairs all through the hearing while relatives of the dead couple sat in the upstairs gallery most of the time.

MANY USES PREDICTED

Ocean's Motion Used As Source of Energy

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—The Hamilton Watch Company says it has developed what it calls an ocean motion harness capable of controlling the energy of the sea and putting it to work.

The mechanical device, developed by the company's industrial and military products division, captures motion created by ocean waves and converts it into a force that can be used to run a generator, charge a battery or transmit an electronic signal.

In principle, a company spokesman said, the device functions in much the same way as the self-winding mechanism of an automatic watch.

Hamilton engineers foresee many possible uses for the motion harness. As a power generator of buoys, for example, it can operate for long periods without the maintenance required for battery-powered buoys.

Its output may be used automatically to wind marine chronometers or to operate sailboat instruments requiring power.

The original model weighs less than one pound and measures three inches each way. Larger ones may be developed later.

UAR Holds Tshombe Hostage

CAIRO (AP) — Premier Moise Tshombe of The Congo was a hostage of President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic government but a Congolese official said today Tshombe still hoped to gain admittance to the conference of non-aligned nations.

Nasser's government said Tshombe would not be released until his government called off gendarmes surrounding the U.A.R. embassy in Leopoldville.

An aide said Tshombe does not want to go home and is quite happy to remain here and watch the conference on television.

The aide said Tshombe is banking on a telegram sent Tuesday to Nasser by President Joseph Kasavubu of The Congo protesting the treatment of Tshombe. Informed sources said the telegram told Nasser that Tshombe was the proper premier of The Congo and should be permitted admission to the conference.

SAID HE WOULD LEAVE

Tshombe had announced Tuesday night he was abandoning his attempt to attend the conference after the countries attending voted not to admit him. He said then he would leave for home immediately.

Reports from Leopoldville Tuesday said gendarmes surrounded the UAR Embassy and halted all movement in and out of the building. The reports said the action was taken to protect the embassies from mob action that was feared because of Tshombe's treatment in Cairo.

The Algerian Embassy also was cordoned off, Algerian having been a leader in the move to bar Tshombe from the non-aligned conference.

CALLS ON TSHOMBE

Al Ahram said President Nasser's adviser on African affairs, Mohamed Fayek, called on Tshombe to tell him he would have to remain in Cairo.

Tshombe had insisted on attending the conference despite a telegram from conference leaders to Congo President Joseph Kasavubu telling him he would be welcome but Tshombe wouldn't.

Arrest of Mothers Sparks Near Riot

The arrests sparked a near-riot among scores of demonstrators and on-lookers outside Public School 149 in the Jackson Heights section of Queens.

Police headquarters reported the arrests of 65 adults on charges of loitering in or near a school, a form of disorderly conduct. One man was charged with felonious assault on a policeman.

The adults, along with 80 children, were taken by police buses and patrol wagons to court.

As they were led to the vehicles, a large detachment of police linked hands to keep onstrators away. One man tried to break through the cordon and was wrestled to the ground by five policemen.

8 Deaths On Road To Airport

By LESLIE MILLIN

Blood-stained Patricia Bay Highway should be improved or replaced — at once.

So say the municipal officials and policemen who watch and patrol the 20 miles from the Trans-Canada Highway junction to Swartz Bay Ferry terminal.

There are plans for a four-lane highway—Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi says he doesn't know when they'll go ahead.

Some Saanich councillors want the plans to go ahead now.

EIGHT DEATHS

In 10 months, the highway has been the scene of eight fatalities.

In two weeks, it has been the scene of four fatalities.

Two of them occurred Tuesday, both of them so bloody that experienced policemen were sickened by them. (See page 13.)

Saanich and Central Saanich police chiefs say a four-lane divided highway would help reduce the number of fatalities.

PROMISED

And councillors say this has been promised, but never delivered.

"Everyone blames the highway for the accidents," said Mr. Gaglardi this morning.

"I haven't had a report on the loader accident Tuesday night, but the other one would have happened no matter how wide the highway was.

"It's the drivers, not the road."

"I don't think the road is adequate for the traffic load that has been put on it by the ferries," says Saanich police chief W. A. Pearson.

DIVIDED HIGHWAY

"It's obvious that a four-lane divided highway would reduce the number of fatalities.

"Speed, the narrowness of the road, and the number of intersecting roads are big factors.

"But the attitude of drivers, and their fitness to drive at highway speeds, is also very vital.

"I don't know when we can improve the drivers.

"But the road could be improved."

60 TOO HIGH

"The speed limit on the Central Saanich portion is too high at 60 miles an hour," said Central Saanich police chief Fred Brownlee.

"Intersecting roads have been a problem in accidents out here.

"A four-lane divided highway would certainly improve the fatality picture as far as I'm concerned."

BIG CAT DEFIES DEATH; DOG SAVES HUNTER'S LIFE

LUND, B.C. (CP) — Fred Pihle fired a shotgun slug through the heart of a cougar—but the big cat refused to die and turned on him.

Unhurt, but shaken, he told the story today of how his German hunting dog, Baron, and hunting companion, Bob Ellerby, saved his life.

"I spotted the cougar lying on a rock above my head, looking down at me about 25 yards away.

"I shot my slug in him and found out later I got him right through the heart. It didn't stop him.

"The animal rolled down the hill towards me and I shouted for help. Bob was quite aways into the bush but Baron got there right away.

"That's what saved my life. The cat was so close there was blood on the barrel of my gun.

"The dog jumped on his back and fought him off me. I shot two blasts of birdseed shot to scare the cougar off but he still fought Baron.

"Then Bob arrived and put another couple of shots into the cougar. Still it didn't stop fighting until a shot went into its skull and blew half its head off."

Pihle said the cat was weighed at 80 pounds and was the second of a set of twins, the first killed last week.

PURLOINED CANON . . . stolen by a barefoot poet?

The Maritime Museum's cannon-errant seems to have been filched by university students who have — if nothing else — a classical education.

Delivered to The Times office the other day in an inconspicuous envelope was a photograph allegedly of the stolen gun, with a poem attached.

The poem is entitled Epinicion, which from the ruins of an education we construe to mean an ode of victory.

It is signed by The Myrmidons — a reference (I think) to the legendary inhabitants of Phthiotis, in Thessaly, whose devotion to Achilles was such their name has come to mean followers who obey absolutely.

The poem goes thus:

EPINICION

A bold foray we made that day
To the Maritime Museum:
We did espy a cannon nigh,
And chorussed our "Te deum."

"Ah, 'twould be fun to have that gun,"
We thought, "for our announcement":
For Baby Barr no mere cigar
But a real bang-up pronouncement!

"And though it's hot, what a big shot She'll be if we can use it!"
We bore it home (don't curse and foam—
We swear we'll not abuse it!)

Now, Colonel S., in your distress
Don't send the cops to find us.
Behind the bars? Not us, by Mars!
We've got the Barrs behind us!

—THE MYRMIDONS.

Acting Saanich reeve Coun. Joseph Casey says he thinks the Pat Bay Highway should be left as it is, and he too thinks drivers are mostly to blame for the fatal accidents on it.

But he also thinks a separate super-highway should be built for high speed travel to Swartz Bay.

He suggests the super-highway should have perhaps three access points between the Trans-Canada Highway junction and Swartz Bay.

"Then if people want to drive fast, they can use the fast road, and if they want to take the meandering road, they can do that in safety, too."

Coun. Casey suggested the best route would be the old CNR right of way.

"It's straight and level," he said.

"This is the time to improve the highway," says Saanich councillor Hugh Curtis.

"John Tisdalle, as Saanich MLA, should have this right at the top of his list.

S. Rhodesia Town Raided

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Southern Rhodesian army troops and police swooped down on the African township of Harare here this morning with orders to arrest "all thugs, hooligans and ciminals."

The all - white government placed Harare, the second of Salisbury's two main Negro townships, under a state of emergency. The other township, Highfield, has been under a state of emergency since last August.

Both townships have been scenes of considerable violence this year, largely because of political rivalry between the country's two main Negro nationalist movements—the People's Caretaker Council and the Zimbabwe African National Union.

Jones At Job But Can Do No Business

George Jones can come and go, but do no business, a B.C. government spokesman said today.

And Mr. Jones is coming and going, just as he usually does, each day in his office.

The chairman of the Government Purchasing Commission refused to accept a cabinet suspension from his job after he was charged with accepting favors from a city auto dealer.

He stayed in his office 30 hours Monday and Tuesday before leaving to appear in court where he was remanded to Oct. 15 on two charges.

LOCKS CHANGED

He said he was afraid he would not be able to get in again because the locks were changed on the doors to his office.

But the doors have remained open during the day and Mr. Jones went home Tuesday night.

Asked why the locks were changed, the government spokesman, who refused to allow his name to be used, said: "Pure housekeeping."

The official said the Cabinet order stands, and Mr. Jones' presence in his office was "causing no one any concern."

Mr. Jones contends he is responsible only to the Legislature.

"Only the Legislature can remove him from office, but his duties are another matter," the government spokesman said.

NOT REMOVED

He said Mr. Jones had not been removed from the purchasing commission, only his duties there.

"The treasury is not in a position to acknowledge business arrangements which he may make," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the two other members of the commission, Deputy Works Minister Arnold E. Webb and Deputy Forests Minister R. G. McKee, are carrying on the normal business of purchasing.

The spokesman said the cabinet order was designed to relieve Mr. Jones of "a difficult position."

He suggested Mr. Jones was only adding to his embarrassment by insisting on remaining in his office.

Mr. Jones said he is staying, and he still considers himself chairman of the commission.

He said he carried on business Tuesday in an advisory capacity.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded Mr. Jones Tuesday for a preliminary hearing at 10 a.m. Oct. 15 in city magistrate's court.

NO PLEA

Mr. Jones made no plea to the two charges against him, involving car deals last Oct. 30 and Feb. 7 with George Hankinson, former head of Pacific Chrysler Products Ltd. here.

He chose trial by judge without jury.

Mr. Hankinson, also facing two charges—of conferring the favors on Mr. Jones—was remanded to Oct. 14, when he will choose his method of trial.

He did not make a plea either.

Mr. Jones was represented by T. P. O'Grady and Mr. Hankinson by Jack Cowan.

Prosecutor is Lloyd G. McKenzie.

CHIEF SCORES POLICE BRUTALITY PICTURE

Crime Booming—Costly to Public

Next to war, the most serious problem facing society today is crime.

"It is a threat to life and property, to peace of mind, and is on the increase," said Victoria Police Chief John F. Gregory Tuesday.

Speaking to Victoria Electric Club, he said the world would be a much better place if money spent on crime could be spent on the alleviation of poverty, disease and ignorance.

Not only was there the amount of money stolen from the public by criminals to be taken into account, but the staggering cost of administration.

In addition, there was the cost in sorrow and anguish of friends and relatives of criminals and their victims.

Chief Gregory said the portrayal of police officers as brutal men who hound the public was making it tough for everybody.

Result of such unfair writing was that restrictions were placed on police interrogation and investigation of criminals to the point where they often lost cases on technicalities.

This in turn meant the criminals were free to prey on the public.

GREGORY

The battle against crime, he said, was not a matter for one public agency only. It was a grass roots problem which could only be solved at the community level, with the help of the home, church and school.

"There is no other effective remedy."

The chief said the old police philosophy of "throw the man in jail" had now been replaced by a new concept in which the policeman tried to keep the man out of jail.

Another new concept of police work has been posed by the wide acceptance of the automobile.

This has meant new and complex problems for a police department and a large part of police energies are now directed at enforcement of traffic laws.

He said: "The new attitude toward the teen-ager also makes life a little more difficult for the policeman."

"Teen-agers are given greater freedom to act as adults in many families, but without the accompanying responsibilities."

He added: "The public often does not understand the role of the policeman. This is all the more regrettable when it is understood the policeman depends so much on public support to do an effective job."

BUT NOT FOR YEARS—WILLISTON

Alaska Panhandle Access Coming

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston confirms the existence of a navigable channel cutting the Alaska Panhandle and extending in far-northwestern British Columbia.

But, he said in an interview Tuesday, he doubts if it will be used for many years to come.

The minister confirmed published reports that the Grand Pacific and Melburn glaciers are retreating in Tarr Inlet, creating a navigable waterway across the Alaska Panhandle into the most northwesterly corner of B.C., at its border with the Yukon some 1,000 miles north of Vancouver.

"We don't know how many years it will take for the glaciers to get far enough back to make development of a channel possible," the minister said. "But when it becomes practical it will be of incalculable value to the province."

He said provincial engineers have taken aerial photographs of the area which show ice breaking down at the seaward edge of the glaciers. Private exploratory parties have found that the glaciers, which once extended far down Tarr Inlet toward the sea, now drop from an altitude of 2,500 feet to the sea in about eight miles.

The minister said the ice would have to disappear completely before the channel could be used. But when it became feasible, a port located at the head of the channel, connected to the outside by an all - weather road could mean rapid development of the area.

At present goods moving to and from the Yukon and northern B.C. must go by truck over the Alaska Highway or by rail through the American port of Skagway.

Quebec Bishop Says Clericalism Must End

ROME (CP)—The bishop of Hull, Que., told the Vatican ecunemical council today it is important to teach future priests to respect the laity and "to crush" clericalism in the Roman Catholic Church once and for all.

Msgr. P. E. Charbonneau described clericalism as an "apostolic error that is the source of much harm."

He was one of two Canadians taking part in the first day of discussion of an historic document on the work of lay members in the church. It is the first time that an ecumenical council has dealt with this subject directly.

Bishop Charbonneau, speaking after Bishop Remi De Roo of Victoria, B.C., said that while the document has positive elements it also has serious faults that should be corrected.

He criticized it for presenting the role of the laity in the church "simply as an answer to the shortage of priests or as a remedy for the religious crisis that humanity is undergoing."

Bishop Charbonneau said that it is essentially through the laity, guided by the hierarchy, that the church must manifest itself in the world, "as the one that espouses, from within and actively, all the sufferings, hopes and shruggles of humanity in its growth towards justice, peace and goodwill."

The clergy must not only have dialogue with the laity but work in communion with them, he said.

"It is very important to teach seminarians to respect the laity and to crush once and for all that apostolic error that is the source of so much harm, clericalism."

Bishop De Roo urged that the text should speak of lay church members as co - operators in both the creative and redemptive work of God.

The basic and unique aspect of the laity, he said, is as creators, doing ordinary daily tasks of all kinds to build a better world while also co-operating with the hierarchy in spreading the Gospel message.

ROYALTY, ACTORS TRADE QUIPS, QUOTABLE QUOTES

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip traded quotes and quips with some of Canada's most talented performers here Tuesday night following the royal variety show in the Confederation theatre.

The performers later told all at a press conference, providing some of the most vivid glimpses of the Queen's personality so far on this royal visit.

For example:

The Queen to comedienne Anna Russell regarding the strange noises the performer made during a folksong "I can make those noises myself at home, but I daren't do it with a tiara on."

Actor Lorne Greene of Bonanza fame said the Queen exclaimed to him: "I've never seen you so dressed up."

He asked, "Do you watch the show?"

She replied, "Oh yes, always on the weekends, with the children."

He promised to say hello to his Bonanza sons Hoss, Adam and Little Joe from her. Said the Queen, "Please do."

COMPLIMENTS ACCENT

Montreal playwright and actor Gratien Gelinas said he congratulated the Queen on her "wonderful French accent."

Comedian Dave Broadfoot said he traded opinions with the Queen on where is the best spot to sit in a theatre.

"She said she preferred the centre balcony but that in this theatre the balcony is awfully far away from the stage."

Prince Philip advised The Travellers, a folk-singing group, to go to England. They reported that he said, "Now's the time to come because the Beatles are on the wane."

Mavor Moore, the show's producer, said the Queen startled him with technical questions about the theatre.

"I was lost in admiration of her continuous interest and her intelligent questions."

Michel Cartier, director of the singers and dancers les Feux-Follets, said the Queen spoke to him in French about the various elements that make up Canadian folk music. "And Prince Philip wanted me to show him how to play the spoons, so he could show Prince Charles how to do it."

Negro opera singer Portia White of Halifax said the Queen was particularly interested in the fact that she chose to sing a Scottish song about Bonnie George Campbell.

"I said that I was from Nova Scotia and that mostly all us Nova Scotians are Scottish," said Miss White.

Flag Art Gets Chuckle From Philip

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—The royal visit got mixed up with the great Canadian flag debate for one hilarious minute here Tuesday as the Queen and Prince Philip viewed Jack Shadbolt's controversial flag mural.

The incident occurred during a tour of the art gallery in the Fathers of Confederation Memorial Centre.

The Queen and her husband, accompanied by Prime Minister Pearson, rounded a corner in a long corridor.

Suddenly they were confronted with the Vancouver artist's huge mural—a composite of hundreds of flag designs.

The Queen smiled and did not commit herself, but Prince Philip with characteristic informality burst into a loud chuckle which reverberated up and down the hallway.

"COMPROMISE"

"That's compromise for you," he said with a broad grin towards the prime minister.

A chuckling Premier Shaw of Prince Edward Island chimed in with: "Yes, this may be the answer to all our problems."

Soon everybody in the official party was laughing.

The general hilarity was missed by a large group of photographers and newspapermen who were trailing the Queen's party. They hurriedly brought up the rear with shouts of "What's the joke?" and "Did somebody say something about the flag?"

$10,000 VALUE

The mural, entitled simply "Flag Mural," is reported to be valued at $10,000. It is painted in bold primary colors and has a large Red Ensign in the middle of its conglomeration of flag fragments.

This is not the first time the mural has been in the news. During the prime minister's visit here for the federal-provincial premiers' conference Sept. 1, it was covered up by white paper and camouflaged by a large photograph of the Fathers of Confederation. The Commons flag debate was in full swing at the time.

It was reported the mural was concealed by Memorial Centre officials to avoid embarrassing Prime Minister Pearson when he toured the building.

However, this was denied by centre spokesmen. They said it was done because the mural had not been officially presented to the gallery yet.

Que. Students To Poke Fun

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — If the 7,500 student body at Quebec City's French-speaking Laval University cannot demonstrate publicly against the Queen's arrival here, then the second best thing they can do is make fun of her.

A parody of the Queen's visit Saturday will be staged Friday afternoon at the university's campus in suburban Ste. Foy.

A student will portray the Queen, while others will portray Prince Philip, the Fathers of Confederation and other dignitaries.

U.S. REJECTS SPY CHARGE AGAINST THREE ATTACHES

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The United States today formally rejected the Soviet Union's protest against alleged espionage activities by one British and three United States military attaches in the Soviet Union.

The American embassy announced that acting deputy head of mission Malcalm Toon today delivered a note to the Russian foreign ministry which said the U.S. considered the Tuesday Soviet note unsatisfactory because it "does not address itself to points raised" in an earlier U.S. protest.

British and American protests, charging breach of the attaches' diplomatic immunity when their hotel rooms in eastern Russia were searched, were handed to Russia Sept. 29.

Asked whether Britain had also rejected the Russian protest, a British embassy spokesman said no instructions had been received from London as yet.

An authoritative source said Tuesday the British attitude to the Soviet protest was similar to the American.

Tuesday's Soviet protest accused the attaches of "impermissible activities" and espionage while travelling by train from Moscow to Khabarovsk.

Nazi Retaliation Fear Barred Gas Use by U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was ready to use poison gas against the Japanese late in the Second World War, a report attributed to the late Gen. George C. Marshall declared Tuesday.

The report said the plan was dropped chiefly because of opposition from the British who feared it might touch off a German gas attack on England.

Marshall, wartime U.S. Army chief of staff, is so quoted by David E. Lilienthal, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Lilienthal says Marshall made the disclosure to him and several other atomic officials in June, 1947, when the general was secretary of state.

Lilienthal said Marshall made "no mention of the fact that international law forbade its (poison gas) use."

The account appeared Monday in a new book, The Journals of David E. Lilienthal: The Atomic Energy Years 1945-1950 (Harper and Row).

PLANS SERIES

In the book—one of a contemplated series designed to cover 46 years of the public and private life of the oftentimes controversial government official — Lilienthal also reports that:

1. Even before the push to develop the hydrogen bomb was begun, the United States had firm prospects of developing enough A-bombs within two years that "we could blow a hole clean through the earth"—to quote words Lilienthal attributed to former U.S. president Harry Truman after the AEC had made a secret report to him on weapons prospects in 1949.

But, almost in the same breath, Truman reported to have added:

"Wouldn't it be wonderful when . . . (that time) . . . comes around, if we could take the whole business and dump it into the sea?"

2. Top American planners had actually scheduled using up to 12 atomic bombs as a prelude to a planned invasion of the Japanese mainland — even though the United States had only two in the stockpile at the time of the Hiroshima-Nagasaki bombings.

3. Former president Franklin D. Roosevelt had been "friendly" to an idea broached by a Danish physicist, the late Niels Bohr, that the United States and Britain "trade" their atomic knowledge with Russia if the Soviets would agree to "open Russia and make it part . . . of an open world."

Lilienthal says the information on Roosevelt's position was given to him by Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer—one of the key developers of the A-bomb. He declares the latter also said Britain's former prime minister Winston Churchill was indignant at the whole idea and wanted a careful check kept on Bohr.

Lilienthal then quotes Marshall as saying:

"The reason it (gas) was not used was chiefly the strong opposition of Churchill and the British. They were afraid that this would be the signal for the Germans to use gas against England."

B.C. Fights For Seats In Senate

B.C. is attempting to ward off an eastern proposal that would prevent any increase in western seats in the Senate, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today.

Mr. Bonner said the matter arose in Ottawa this week at a conference on the Canadian constitution.

Mr. Bonner said some provinces expressed one or two reservations but there is an excellent chance of general approval at the premiers' conference.

However, B.C. stated its objection to a proposal that would prevent the federal government from changing the makeup of the Senate, Mr. Bonner said.

Eastern provinces proposed that among constitutional amendments should be one maintaining the present Senate distribution.

B.C. has only six of the 102 Senate seats.

Mr. Bonner earlier said the number should be increased in proportion to the growth of the west.

Canada May Feel It Too

NO MATTER WHAT THE BRITish Conservative and Labor politicians are promising to deliver to the people in return for their votes October 15, the evidence is mounting that the winning party is going to have to revert to some measure of economic austerity in order to pull that nation out of its serious difficulties due to an adverse balance-of-payments and loss of currency reserves.

The latest report from the British Treasury telling of a further drop of £16 millions in reserves of gold and convertible currency during September is a measure of the troubles the country faces as imports continue to be brought into Britain faster than goods can be sold abroad to pay for them. The reserves at the end of last month totalled only £907 millions and were at the lowest point since July, 1961.

Some evidence that the government may have overplayed its hand by clinging to office until the last possible moment is seen in the fact that September was the fourth successive month in which gold and currency reserves had dropped sharply and that the total loss since May has amounted to £79 millions.

Unless the British export business picks up considerably in the next month or so, thereby reducing the heavy trade deficit, there is more than a little danger that Canada will be among the first countries to feel the pinch of a return to austerity. This country's trade with Britain has grown rapidly in the past four years, particularly in the sensitive areas of "non-essential" items — luxury goods and manufactured articles — which would be most susceptible to British import controls, customs surcharges or other measures.

The trade balance in Canada's favor has risen from $363.6 millions in 1961 to $463.8 millions in 1962 and to $566.7 millions in 1963. In the first seven months of this year alone the balance in Canada's favor stood at $416.1 millions or more than for the entire year of 1961.

There seems to be little danger that Canada's traditional exports to Britain would be heavily cut back in any move toward achieving more balance in trade between the two countries since such basic products as grain, lumber, pulp and ore must continue to be imported if Britain is to survive. But the Canadian economy would be hard hit by any cutback in exports to Britain of manufactured goods since it is on this business, to a large degree, that this country depends to finance part of its massive imports from the United States.

There has been much evidence recently that if Britain is forced to take desperate measures to balance its payments and preserve its foreign exchange reserves, any anguish expressed by Canada will receive little sympathy in Britain. There is a sharp difference in opinion between Ottawa and London as to the reason for the failure of British goods to enter Canada in sufficient quantities to establish a reasonable trade balance.

Ottawa's view is that factors outside Canada's control, along with lack of aggressive salesmanship by the British are to blame. Most Britons, however, reject this argument and claim that the restrictions imposed during the Canadian foreign exchange crisis, along with continuing discrimination against Britain in application of dumping duties, are responsible.

An Easing of the Chains

FOR THE PAST FEW WEEKS there have been reports that small numbers of political prisoners were being released in East Germany and allowed to return quietly to their homes. Now the movement has been officially announced and it may be the prologue to a more liberal approach to non-Communists in East Germany.

It was revealed this week that about 10,000 prisoners will be granted amnesty, but it is not clear how many of these will be political prisoners. The exact number of the latter now held in the Communist part of Germany is not known, but is believed to total 12,000. About one-tenth of this number have been given freedom since the end of July.

It is pleasant to read of this development. It is less pleasant to be reminded that East Germany is a country in which one-quarter of the prison population is incarcerated for political reasons. What does this new trend mean? Ostensibly, since East Germany is one of the satellites most closely supervised by Moscow, it could be part of the continuing Soviet reaction against Stalinism, part of Mr. Khrushchev's policy of liberalizing thought as well as economic policies to meet a rising and more varied consumer demand.

It could, as well, be an attempt to meet internal dissatisfaction in a country that has become a fenced-in prison. Only a few days ago it was announced that West Berliners would be permitted, for compassionate purposes, to visit relatives in East Berlin through the wall — although attempted escapees are still being shot.

Communist dictatorship has withstood many attacks by man. Is it now succumbing to time?

Four for Lesage

PREMIER LESAGE'S QUEBEC Liberals have retained three seats and won a fourth from the Union Nationale in this week's four-contest byelection. This brings to nine the number of byelections won by the party since Mr. Lesage took office in 1960.

The results suggest a further decline in Union Nationale fortunes, indicate the appeal of the Liberals to young voters—this was the first occasion on which 18-year-olds have marked ballots in the province — and provide a small commentary on the outlook for Social Credit in Quebec.

The only candidate carrying the latter banner finished a poor third in Dorchester, but the outcome there need not necessarily indicate complete repudiation of the Creditiste appeal. The party had declined to endorse anyone in the tests this week, deciding earlier to concentrate on the next general election. A former member of parliament ignored the party stand, ran as an independent Creditiste and received a little more than one-quarter of the votes polled by the successful Liberal.

On the face of it, Mr. Lesage has received a convincing demonstration of support for his administration, the remnants of the late Mr. Duplessis' party have obviously failed to regain strength and the Creditistes, as far as they could be identified in the byelections, were not a significant force.

The Wrong Type of Welcome

PRESIDENT DE GAULLE, WHO has survived street shootings in his own country, has no doubt taken Tuesday's Argentine outbreak in his stride. In France, it was he who was the target of would-be assassins' guns. In Argentina the indomitable general is more likely merely the news event on which the demonstrators are trying to hang their protest.

It appears that the rioters are composed of supporters of the former dictator, Juan Peron, now suffering a luxurious exile in Spain, and the real object of their attacks was Argentine President Illia.

Just what such demonstrations will achieve is difficult to see. Certainly the imperturbable Grand Charles will emerge with added prestige—and no new liking for Mr. Peron, whose gangs have tried to use him for their own purposes.

With These Few Words . . .

A SOCIALIST SPEAKER AT A noon-hour meeting at the University of Victoria last week said he was surprised that no student questioned or opposed him.

Someone might infer from this that there was complete agreement with Socialist doctrine among his youthful listeners. But a more experienced observer would probably decide otherwise.

He would know—particularly if he were a university professor — that an appearance of the most rapt attention can sometimes hide a complete heedlessness; that the student whose eyes never leave the speaker's face may be miles away in his own world of finances, car, weekend date, approaching test — and that he couldn't possibly disagree with the speaker because he hasn't heard a single word.

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A group of French-speaking folk singers and dancers, here to perform for the Queen, were mistaken for separatist demonstrators when they went out for an evening stroll Monday night.

Apathy and Good Times Aiding Tories

EVEN the Conservatives are slightly apologetic about Sir Alec.

"Well, now, he hasn't much spirit, you know," the little old lady in the blue bonnet paused. "But I do think he's shaping up lovely."

Lucky might be a better word. Down and all but out six months ago, Prime Minister Alec Douglas-Home is groping his way out of the political doldrums and toward possible victory on Oct. 15 on the strength of good times, balmy autumn weather, and a remarkably apathetic electorate.

He overrode the advice of superior political experts and refused to be driven into calling the election last spring. Six months later, the economic slump privately predicted by Reginald Maulding, his Chancellor of the Exchequer, has failed to materialize, and now, in that restrained and bloodless style which makes British elections seem like a minuet compared to the hot jazz of an American campaign, Sir Alec is quietly making the rounds of a few constituencies, telling the voters they never had it so good.

'Good Times' Campaign

It's a campaign tailored for good times. At every shop we asked along the London High Road in suburban Streatham, business (as one proprietor told us) is "on the up." The Conservative election posters, almost as sparse as palm trees in Denver, strike a smug note against the grime of the cities.

They show a happy family on a green lawn with the kind of radiant smiles on their faces that only an advertising firm could dream up. The "Vote Conservative" poster has clearly gotten under the skin of Harold Wilson, the brilliant and acerbic leader of the Labor Party. "That happy family of hired actors," he ridiculed at a rally in Isleworth the other night.

If the British election were a contest between Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Mr. Wilson, the Labor Party would have the better of it. Our talks with 40-odd voters in Streatham evidenced only bemused tolerance for Sir Alec—but not the slightest swing toward the Labor Party.

Angry But Conservative

A retired army sergeant who has always voted Conservative was angry at the high "rates"—specifically, the real estate tax on his heavily-mortgaged home. But was he going to vote Labor this time?

"Not on your life," he said.

And a bank clerk, who voted Labor in 1945 and Conservative ever since, is staying with Sir Alec even though "he's not got enough push" and even though "that Wilson is a man of spirit."

In fact, we found only one 1959 Tory who was switching—and he was switching not to Labor but to the Liberal Party.

Mr. Wilson is running against that most dangerous of all political opponents—good times. Creeping into his speeches now is a faint note of panic as he tries to divert the voters' attention away from the fine weather, away from the appearance of prosperity and onto the rising cost of living, the lack of housing and education and the elusive Sir Alec.

His sallies against the prime minister are getting sharper (he calls him "Mr. Harold Macmillan's relic" and "the chief irrelevance" in the campaign).

Wilsonian Scorn

He is trying to wrench the voters out of their semi-complacent state just as Adlai Stevenson vainly tried in his 1956 campaign against Gen. Eisenhower. He pours out statistics with withering scorn—teacher shortage of 25,000 by 1970, more homeless families than ever before, wages and salaries up less than 30 per cent but rents and housing up 75 per cent. And he hears a delighted laugh from his Labor audience in Isleworth with a sarcastic reference to Sir Alec's clumsiness on television.

"That television star," said Mr. Wilson, oozing scorn.

But is the Conservative voter of 1959, whose vote he needs, listening to Mr. Wilson?

"You'd never know we're having an election," said one of our informants in suburban Streatham. "People are quite indifferent. They're doing so well."

FROM ATHENS — By LESLIE FINER

'Wind of Democracy' Chills Greek Palace

THE wedding between young King Constantine and his 18-year-old Queen from Denmark—a successful and appealing occasion—might have been expected to bolster the monarchy in Greece. Instead, while the young couple are still honeymooning, the monarchy has become a central issue of controversy.

The matter flared unexpectedly after the ceremony, when it was revealed that the head of the King's Military Household, 66-year-old General Dovas, had won the agreement of the Minister of Defence to change the name of the Greek Army to "Royal Greek Army." The fury provoked by this news compelled the Government to revoke the decree and put the Minister's job in jeopardy.

Innocuous, But . . .

Yet there could hardly be anything more innocuous than the proposed change of name—most Greek Service habits and institutions are based on British patterns—even down to the cut and color of uniforms. Just as in Britain there is a Royal Navy and a Royal Air Force, but no "Royal" Army as far as nomenclature goes, so in Greece the Army is the only Service which does not have the "Royal" prefix. The change was proposed in order to bring the Army into line with the other two Services.

No doubt the period of the wedding was seen by palace officials as the opportune moment for proposing the change.

Perhaps a monarchy rooted to the soil of Greece might have got away with it. But the Royal family is still regarded by large sections of the people as foreign, although republicanism is not the powerful force it used to be. The present ruling house goes back to 1863, when the second son of the heir to the throne of Denmark was elected King of the Hellenes. A year earlier, Greece had thrown out King Othan, formerly Prince Otto of Bavaria, whom the Greeks elected as their ruler on winning independence from the Turks.

Othan reigned from 1833 to 1862. Between 1924 and 1935, after coups and counter-coups, Greece was a republic, and then brought back George II, the present King's grandfather.

Queen-Mother Involved

In the latest controversy it was no surprise when Frederika, the Queen-Mother, became involved. It was revealed that the Government was preparing legislation which would give the widowed Queen an annual grant of £36,000. This was enough to touch off a new press campaign, which reached extremes of calumny and libel. The episodes culminated in a dignified letter from Queen Frederika to the Prime Minister, in which she bitterly complained of being left "totally unprotected" against these attacks, and ended by rejecting the proposed annuity.

In all except some "lunatic fringe" cases, the newspapers concerned have taken care not to attack the institution of the monarchy itself. Indeed, they claim to be acting in the monarchy's best interests. There is a demand for a thorough sweep of the "old guard" at the palace—General Dovas being the star candidate for liquidation—and a new "democratic" start for King Constantine.

Without question, the press has been leading rather than following public opinion in this campaign—and probably at some considerable distance. But they have been able to exploit with some success the Greek propensity to respond to emotional rather than rational impulses in political thinking.

At the moment the "wind of democracy" which blew Prime Minister Papandreou into power last February—the reaction against the eight years of tutelary government under Mr. Karamanlis—continues to blow strong and fashionable.

When I parked my car in a space reserved for foreign correspondents the other day, the traffic policeman standing nearby grumpily remarked that he did not hold with such privileges. They were not, he said, democratic. The same kind of confused thinking often determines the Greeks' attitude towards the monarchy. They approve of the institution. But they do not think logically enough to realize that its symbolic functions are inconsistent with the total "democratic" abolition of its trappings and privileges.

Ambivalent Attitude

The government's attitude towards these recent press attacks on the monarchy has been strangely ambivalent. Before he came to power, Mr. Papandreou was among those who, as an individual and as a party leader, aligned himself with the critics of the palace regime and of Frederika especially. Inevitably, this attitude, suitable enough in opposition, no longer fits his position as Prime Minister. Indeed, there is evidence that the near-octogenarian Papandreou relishes his role of tutor and counsellor to the new young king, much as Lord Melbourne enjoyed playing grandfather to Queen Victoria of England.

On the other hand, it is not easy for Papandreou to relinquish the political advantages which accrue from the sniping campaign against "anti-democratic" palace procedures. The dilemma was clear in Papandreou's refusal to heed the appeal by the leader of the opposition that he should "take a stand" over the relentless press campaign. He insisted that he was not responsible for what appeared in the pro-government press.

It was only after the publication of Queen Frederika's moving letter that Papandreou delivered a public reprimand to the newspapers responsible for the "lies and insults."

Wave of Sympathy

The wave of sympathy for Queen Frederika following her letter and gesture of self-sacrifice has had the effect for the time being of quietening the critics of the palace. But the issue is still very much alive. And the most urgent topic for discussion between the Prime Minister and King Constantine when the latter returns from his honeymoon will be the changes to be made at the palace and other related questions, such as the bringing of the royal charity funds under public control.

Unquestionably, there is plenty of scope for genuinely useful reform of royal practices and personnel in Greece. But there remains considerable irony in the though that the Greek monarchy, which in the past has so often been accused of political scheming, has in this instance been made the largely-innocent shuttlecock in a needle match of political badminton.

MORTIFIED

In my experience, the simplest and most evocative sayings have rural roots. I think it is because country folk tend to talk less than townsfolk: more accustomed to solitude and silence, they use words with more care and therefore more impact. I remember the late Arthur Black telling me of a crofter in Aberdeenshire who, having but one horse, harnessed a cow with it to plough some particularly rough acres. "Man, I was heart sorry for the horse," he said. "The poor beast was that mortified." You could find no other word to express so simply and so effectively the wounded dignity of that horse.

Sex Education

Sex education begins next week for some high school students in this city. The question is not whether it should or should not, begin. The big question is who is qualified to teach it.

Should it be the clergy; I think we've seen how much influence the word of God has on this decadent society.

Perhaps the medical profession is the logical choice. Many doctors and nurses were and are providing that skill with the scalpel does not necessarily make one mature sex-wise. This can also be applied to educators.

I believe it must begin in the home. Professionals can teach the mechanics of sex but they can not teach the most important part of it—love and family.

If the clergy would confine itself to things religious and allow educators to teach biology and anatomy the way it should be taught, sex education would be half the problem it is today.

Improvement?

Two of Victoria's picturesque roads are Cadboro Bay Road and the unmutilated portion of Foul Bay road; like much of Victoria they are almost unique and are favorites with tourists. Yet they may soon fall into the hands of those who would "improve" the locality by killing the trees, bulldozing the pleasant grass sides, replacing the picturesque wooden fences by wire or concrete fences, and placing sidewalks, drains and gutters. The reason given for this is that the traffic requires a wide roadway and that we must "progress"—whatever this may really mean.

Although this has been said by better qualified people, may I point out that the places of beauty in Victoria are dwindling, and with them will dwindle the reputation of the city. Beauty is one of the few commodities that are durable and that bring in concrete, as well as abstract, benefits. Much is now being done to render Victoria a typical ugly North American city, with mercury lamps, concrete sidewalks, and roadways denuded of trees. How long can this be permitted to continue before we realize that we are cutting our own throats?

As such roads as Cadboro Bay Road are at present, parked cars can occupy the grass strip and the traveled portion of the road is free for traffic; and no one can truthfully say that the quantity of traffic requires four lanes in any but a very few of our streets. To widen such roads will amount merely to paving that part on which many cars would normally park, and the net result would then be a traveled portion which is of approximately the width it is today. Its appeal would be ruined, we should be the poorer for spending money on paving parking space, and yet another of our beauty-spots would be gone forever. It is one thing to improve the surface of a road: it is quite another to make this the excuse for leaving a scar on our landscape.

Stay Distinctive

The following letter from an American living in New York recently appeared in one of our Ontario newspapers.

"I just can't figure you Canadians out. With all this talk about having things 'distinctly Canadian,' why then do you constantly rail against the very things which make Canada different: British and Commonwealth ties, and French Canada?

Without these historic qualities, Canada is no more different from, let us say, the American midwest than the midwest is from the south; and it could very well qualify as just another section in the American Union.

Canadians, the choice is either Commonwealth and Quebec, or Little America. For my part, I hope you choose the former, for now I find Canada a different and refreshing country.

Do not abandon a distinctive Canada in the pursuit of the 'distinctly Canadian.'"

An American, New York."

I am of the opinion that this American knows what he is talking about. We should be proud that we are so "distinctive" from the United States. The first thing American visitors to my home have said, "where are the Mounties?" They are also very interested in our Indians, our Queen and so many other things which cannot be found in the U.S.

If we are wise, we will do all in our power to promote our historic ties with Britain. With our government spending large sums to attract tourists who are so essential to our national economy, why not have more Mounties around and police in London "Bobbies" uniforms?

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

Recent reports show that Canada's wheat crop looks like a billion-dollar bonanza.

Farmers are reaping a golden harvest and Canada's economy is boosted accordingly.

I wonder how many who read these facts realize that the person pioneering the research that started development of strong, healthy Canadian wheat has lived in Victoria for nearly 20 years.

A modest woman, Dr. Margaret Newton rarely talks of her great contribution to agriculture in Canada.

But, as she scans reports and remembers the world-wide acclaim Canadian wheat has received in recent years, she must feel a warm glow of pride.

For she was the first to discover that there were many races of rust and that wheat might be immune to one race but susceptible to another.

Prior to that, it had been accepted that there was only one variety in Canada; the reason earlier efforts to breed rust-resistant wheat in this country had failed.

Dr. Newton retired to Victoria in 1945.

Not because she had discovered all she wished to know in her chosen field, but wheat rust spores, in the greenhouses where she worked had resulted in an asthmatic condition that banned her from further research.

★ ★ ★

This was at the height of her career.

Honors were being showered upon her. She was in demand as a speaker at international scientific gatherings in many parts of the world.

With quiet dignity, "Dr. Margaret" accepted the decision of her doctors, turned her scientific data over to others, and resigned herself to sitting on the sidelines.

Today, she lives in an attractive home on Beach Drive, surrounded by a garden she has developed over the years.

She spends several months, each winter, in the warm, dry air of Arizona, for she continues to fight the asthmatic condition.

Scientists still consult her. At national and international gatherings, the work she accomplished and the papers she wrote in connection with that work are still used as examples.

Recently, one of the new women's residences on the University of Victoria campus at Gordon Head was named "Margaret Newton Hall." As with other honors bestowed upon her, "Dr. Margaret" accepted this newest recognition of her work with diffidence and humility.

I have heard her say (and I'm sure she is saying it now): "I really didn't do much. It was the others who worked with me who should have the praise. Not me."

★ ★ ★

Dig a little into her history of accomplishment and you will discover this is understatement.

She led her class at Macdonald College, Quebec, in 1915, and won the governor-general's gold medal; took another gold medal when she graduated in 1918, then went on for her master's degree.

While still at college she was awarded a studentship to work on rusts and she asked to spend part of that time at Saskatoon, where Dr. W. P. Thompson had developed a wheat that was resistant to rust there but susceptible at a town only a few miles north.

Remainder of the time was spent at University of Minnesota, studying for her PhD on a research council scholarship.

In Saskatoon she discovered 14 races of stem rust. A pioneer work that resulted in the outlawing of one of the grain growers' greatest problems.

Dr. Newton joined a group of specialists at the Dominion rust research laboratory in Winnipeg in 1925 and during the next 20 years she and Dr. T. Johnson isolated some 65 races of wheat stem rust.

★ ★ ★

Two years before she retired, "Dr. Margaret" was made a member of the Royal Society.

Three years after she came to Victoria, she was presented with that society's Flavelle Medal, for conspicuous work in the biological sciences. The first woman to receive this award and the first graduate of an agricultural college in Canada so honored.

University of Minnesota presented her with its outstanding achievement award in recognition of her 20 years' work at Winnipeg. And at a dinner given in her honor by the board of regents of that university, she received a gold medal awarded only to alumnus who have distinguished themselves in their chosen fields.

Presentation was made by her old friend and colleague, Dr. Thompson.

If you have read this far, then I'm sure you will agree with me that, living quietly in our midst, is one of Canada's most distinguished women.

We should be very proud of her and of the work she has done!

122 Officers To Retire Within Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department said Tuesday 122 military officers of the rank of major or equivalent will be compulsorily retired between Nov. 1 and next summer.

Included are 60 majors, 40 lieutenant-colonels, 15 colonels and seven brigadiers.

The department also said approximately 1,000 positions or about 30 per cent of Canadian forces headquarters here can be eliminated.

A "sizable proportion" of this reduction would be achieved through officers reaching normal retirement age.

Officers being compulsorily retired would be advised of the fact by private letter. The first letters will go out about Nov. 1, the next group about Feb. 1, 1965, and the third about May 1, 1965.

Previously, the number of officers of the rank of major-general or equivalent and above was cut to 12 from 17.

The department included in its announcement a new appeal for recruits. It said there is a "pressing need" for recruits in the navy, army and RCAF.

$12 Million Gift

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States announced Tuesday a $12,000,000 gift toward preservation of the ancient Egyptian temples of Abu Simbel. The temples, 3,200 years old, were threatened by rising waters behind the Aswan Dam on the Nile River until an international effort was launched several years ago to preserve them.

NATURE ON THE ISLAND — By CLIFF CARL

Won't You Step Into My Parlor?

Framed by the kitchen window, the wheel-like web of a spider glints in the morning sun, showing off its unique design against a dark backdrop of vegetation. The gossamer strands form a spiral pattern supported by taut lines running from sill to eaves or from stem to twig. The design components appear to be remarkably uniform at first sight, but a closer look shows many irregularities. The guy lines which form the foundation sometimes bisect the web by running from one support to another, but some of them end at the centre, and the angles they form, one with another, vary accordingly.

Carl

The silken threads which form the spiral consequently differ in length also, partly because the supporting lines are not uniformly placed. However, one element in the pattern seems to be constant; the distance between the individual strands of the spiral is always the same regardless of the inconsistencies in the basic design of the supporting structures. Only a study of the method of construction will explain this curious fact.

If you are fortunate enough to see a spider at work, you may discover the secret of this precision in design. The rear legs play a major part in the construction of the web. They not only pull from the spinning organ the correct amount of silk required at each point in the structure, but they also measure the distance along each radius from the attachment of the neighboring strand. The span of the hind legs of the spider then determines the spacing and since precisely the same movements are used in laying down each strand, the distance between the parallel strands is always the same.

A close look will also show that the silk being used in the building of the web is of at least two kinds. The strands forming the supports are comparatively dull in appearance and nonsticky to the touch. Their job is mainly to provide a base upon which the main part of the web is built and also to provide a runway for the spider.

The strands forming the so-called spiral, on the other hand, glisten in the sun and are decidedly adhesive to the touch. A glance through a hand lens will show that they resemble strings of beads. Each one is composed of a length of silk to which a sticky liquid clings in a series of droplets. This portion of the web forms the actual trap, since any small creature making contact with these minutely jewelled strands is likely to become enmeshed. Once entangled it becomes easy prey for the spider which soon paralyzes its victim with a venomous bite.

Most spiders rebuild their web each day, usually at night. For this purpose and for the many other uses to which the silk is put, a great deal of silk is produced, yet the supply appears to be inexhaustable.

The source is a series of glands within the body. The material is squirted out as a liquid through several pairs of spigots called spinnerets and on contact with air it hardens into silk. In strength it exceeds steel, nylon and other man-made substances and has tremendous elasticity. The spider can produce strands of several kinds—round, flat, sticky, nonsticky and some nonelastic—each kind for a special purpose. Arachnologists (people who study spiders) have not yet been able to explain how a spider is able to control her silk-producing machinery to such a high degree and chemists have not yet been able to duplicate even the simplest of the silks.

Ottawa Will Make Final Bid to End Offshore Dispute

VANCOUVER (CP) — Resources Minister Laing said Tuesday the federal government will make one last attempt at a dominion-provincial conference next week to settle jurisdiction of offshore minerals.

"If we can't come to an agreement next week, the federal government plans to go to the Supreme Court of Canada to ask for a decision," he said.

The federal government claims jurisdiction over offshore minerals. But Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and the Atlantic provinces governments dispute that.

Premier Bennett has said that B.C. had jurisdiction over offshore minerals before Confederation and nothing has happened since to take that jurisdiction away.

Heart Aided by Pump

CHICAGO (AP) — A New York State surgeon Tuesday forecast developments within two years of permanent, auxiliary heart pumps for human use — implanted within the body and powered by batteries carried by a shoulder harness.

Dr. Yukihiko Nose of Brooklyn, said this possibility is suggested by successful experiments in dogs. These tests use a cigarette-pack-sized, inflatable plastic bulb pump implanted in the aorta, main pathway of blood from the heart.

Equipment for powering the pump's tiny motor and supplying compressed air is carried in a 3¼-pound package attached to a harness worn by the dog.

Contraction and expansion of the bulb, aiding in pumping blood through the heart, is controlled by an electronically powered valve triggered by the animal's own heartbeat.

MEDICARE STRIKE ISSUE, B.C. FISHERMEN CLAIM

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.) said Tuesday British Columbia herring fishermen may strike this year if they don't get a medical plan.

"The men feel keenly about this medical plan and have made it a strike issue," said secretary Homer Stevens.

Seven fishing companies and the union are negotiating a new contract to replace one that expires Oct. 16.

'Grewsom Spelers' Get Book

LONDON (AP)—A dickshonary for peepul hoo kant spel kaim out here Monday.

It is called — the awful spellers' dictionary.

By arranging several thousand commonly mispelled words according to their wrong spelling, the new dictionary claims it has elminated a big stumbling block from the path of poor spellers.

It goes on the theory if you don't know how to spell a word, it's doubly difficult to look it up in a regular dictionary. So, look it up the way it sounds, and there will be the correct spelling.

For instance:

If you think its rinocerus, look it up under that spelling and you'll find correct spelling—rhinoceros.

Here are some other examples:

Fenominal—phenomenal.

Spanyer—Spaniard.

Cookoo—cuckoo.

Grewsum—gruesome.

The introduction says:

"The dictionary is devised for those of you who are bright, educated and hold responsible positions, but who are — let's face it — terrible spellers."

A spokesman for the British publishers Wolfe Publishing Company said:

"This book came out in America originally, but we have competely revised it, have used the guidance of 1,000 Britons whose job it is to read examination papers."

PEEPHOLES TO CATCH POST OFFICE THIEVES

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Bird Construction Company said Tuesday surveillance peepholes will be built into men's washrooms — but not women's — in the new federal post office here.

The Postal Employees' Association here has strongly objected to the peepholes, which government authorities say are necessary to assist in prevention of mail theft.

Canadian Cyprus Force Handed All Toughest Jobs

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government is becoming more and more annoyed that the Canadian contingent in the United Nations force in Cyprus is continuing to be handed most of the force's dirty jobs, informed sources said Tuesday.

But there is nothing official the government can do about it because the 1,130-man Canadian contingent is under UN command.

Moreover, any formal action in this regard might appear to the other contributing nations as political jockeying for a preferred position in the force, informants said.

ROTATION HINTED

One of the chief causes of the present problem, in Canadian eyes, is that Canadian troops have been so efficient in UN peacekeeping operations that they almost automatically draw the toughest assignments.

External Affairs Minister Martin has been dropping hints—hoping they will reach the ears of the UN command—that the various tasks of the UN force in Cyprus should be rotated among the six national contingents. The other major units come from Britain, Ireland, Denmark, Sweden and Finland.

NEW THREAT

Sources said the government believes the Canadians have had long enough the nerve-wracking job of policing the 16-mile highway from Nicosia to Kyrenia.

The situation along the highway threatens to flare up again. The 650-man Turkish army contingent in Cyprus, on the island by the 1960 independence treaty, straddles the road.

The government here is said to feel that a less onerous task for the Canadians, at least temporarily, would boost morale.

PUNISHMENT FITS CRIME

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — Three young men who pleaded guilty Tuesday to knocking over 12 tombstones in a cemetery were fined $100 each.

Magistrate George Roberts also ordered that each man work 40 hours in the cemetery repairing the damage. The fine was given to the cemetery board to finance the repairs.

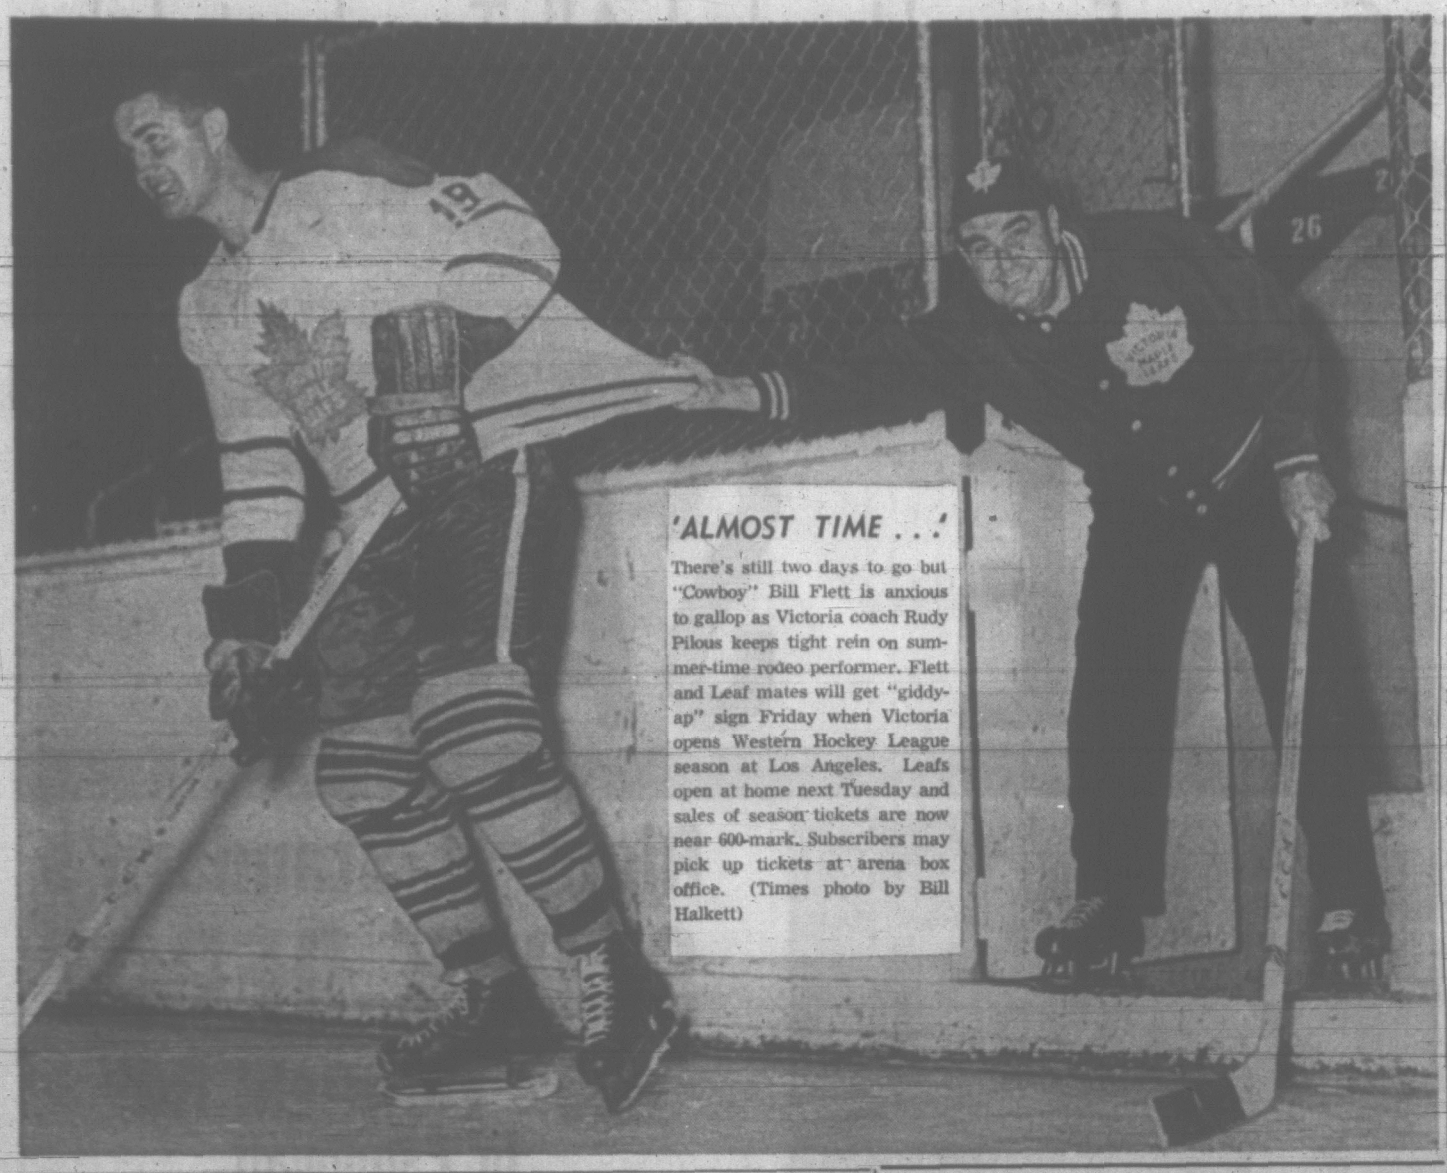
Anabo's Passing Snaps Esks' Skid



'ALMOST TIME . . .'

There's still two days to go but "Cowboy" Bill Flett is anxious to gallop as Victoria coach Rudy Pilous keeps tight rein on summer-time rodeo performer. Flett and Leaf mates will get "giddy-ap" sign Friday when Victoria opens Western Hockey League season at Los Angeles. Quarterback Hurt As 'Peg Tripped

EDMONTON (CP) — A prolonged exercise in futility ended for Edmonton Eskimos Tuesday night when they posted their first victory in two seasons against Western Football Conference opposition.

Eskimos stood off a late surge to dump Winnipeg Blue Bombers 25-22 before 12,463 fans and record their third victory of 1964. Their previous two victories this year and their only two 1963 triumphs were earned in interlocking games against Eastern Conference foes.

Winnipeg now has lost 10 consecutive games this season.

The last Edmonton success against a WFC rival occurred Nov. 3, 1962 when the Bombers succumbed 18-12 at Winnipeg.

Quarterback Jon Anabo, who engineered the triumph with a fine passing display, left the game nine plays from the end with an ailing right knee. Extent of the injury was not expected to be known for two or three days, but it was considered likely Anabo would not be able to play Saturday at Vancouver against British Columbia Lions, who lead the WFC by one point over Calgary Stampeders.

SETS UP TDs

Anabo connected on 10 of 15 passes for 202 yards and touchdowns by Tommy-Joe Coffey and Bill Tobin. His passing also set up a second Tobin touchdown. Centre Bill Mitchell kicked three converts, a 48-yard field goal and a single to complete the Edmonton scoring.

Leo Lewis, Art Perkins and Norm Rauhaus scored Winnipeg touchdowns. Lewis converted two of them.

Winnipeg led 7-1 after the first quarter on Lewis' 87-yard touchdown romp, but Edmonton was in charge 18-7 at half time and led 25-9 after three quarters. The two Bomber points in the third quarter came when Eskimo punter Marcel Deleeuw conceded a safety touch.

An Anabo-to-Coffey pass in the first quarter for a touchdown was nullified by an illegal interference penalty.

The first Edmonton touchdown, which created an 11-7 lead, was tinged with luck. Anabo aimed a pass from the Winnipeg 46 to E. A. Sims in the right flat, but it was deflected by a Bomber defender. Cruising 15 yards beyond Sims, Tobin reached up for the ball and coasted into the end zone.

A roughing penalty four minutes later set up Anabo for a 35-yarder to Coffey behind two defenders deep in the end zone. A fumble by Kenny Ploen on the Winnipeg 47 led to the final Edmonton touchdown. Anabo hit Tobin with a 25-yard pass and five ground plays did the rest of the damage. Tobin covered the last 12 yards in three carries.

STARTS COMEBACK

Rookie defender Bill Cooper returned an interception to the Winnipeg 25 early in the fourth quarter to start the Winnipeg comeback. An Edmonton offside helped sustain a march which Perkins capped by charging over from the one.

Rauhaus scored with less than five minutes left when Butch Pressley fumbled into his arms at the Edmonton 40 and Rauhaus had a clear path into the end zone.

The solid Edmonton offence, which gained 177 yards rushing, held the ball after the kickoff.

Winnipeg was held to 230 yards rushing, 170 by Lewis, and only 83 passing as Ploen connected on two of 11 and replacement Hal Ledyard on six of nine.

Anabo was joined in the Edmonton infirmary by two teammates, halfback Larry Ferguson and guard Jim Higgins. Ferguson suffered a sprained ankle and Higgins a knee injury. It is believed Higgins would be ready to play against Vancouver, but Ferguson joined Anabo in the doubtful category.

LANCASTER INJURED

Jackson Sparks Ottawa Victory

OTTAWA (CP)—"I hear Russ Jackson played a good game," said Saskatchewan Roughrider quarterback Ron Lancaster after his Western Football Conference team suffered a 27-3 setback by Ottawa Rough Riders Tuesday night.

Lancaster didn't even get to see most of the action, although the interlocking game attracted 19,710 fans to see what was expected to be an aerial battle between Lancaster and Jackson, the Ottawa quarterback.

Lancaster used his passing to set up a first-quarter field goal by veteran Reg Whitehouse and give his team an early lead, but Lancaster was injured a few plays later and spent the rest of the game in the Saskatchewan dressing room.

The third-place WFC team didn't score a single point after Lancaster's injury, although they did stay within a touchdown of Ottawa until the Eastern Conference leaders exploded for 17 points in the last quarter.

HURT HIS RIBS

Lancaster suffered a possible rib separation when he flopped on the ball to recover a fumble, and 230-pound Ottawa end Billy Joe Booth landed on top of him.

Lancaster said he didn't know "how bad the injury is," but it is expected he will not miss more than one game, and may even be back for Saskatchewan's next contest, against Toronto Argonauts in Regina next Monday.

Jackson had his troubles passing, but more than made up for it along the ground as he scampered for 134 yards in 10 carries, almost half of Ottawa's total 304 yards gained rushing. Fullback Dave Thelen also turned in a strong effort, scoring two touchdowns on four and five - yard plunges. Ottawa's other touchdown was scored by rookie end Jay Roberts on a nine-yard pass from Jackson.

Moe Racine contributed the other nine points with two field goals, from 19 and 20 yards out, and three converts.

COMPLETES SIX

Saskatchewan's offence crumbled without Lancaster, and his Roughriders' quarterback until replacement, defensive halfback Bob Ptacek, who was the Roughriders' quarterback until Lancaster was acquired from Ottawa two years ago, stayed mainly on the ground. Ptacek completed three of seven pass attempts, good for 41 yards, the same total as Lancaster managed with four completions in seven attemps before he left the game.

Jackson didn't have much more success in the air, completing six of 13 for 89 yards, although one of his aerials did go for a touchdown. Roberts was his favorite target, catching four for 56 yards.

TV Faithful Will Agree With Yogi

NEW YORK (AP)—If it's all the same to the St. Louis Cardinals, Yankee manager Yogi Berra would like to see a long World Series.

"Anything can happen in a short series," Berra said. "One break and it's all over. I'd hate to have it decided that way."

Berra remembers all too well the last short series. That was a year ago when Los Angeles Dodgers beat New York four straight.

"Look at what the Mets did to the Cardinals in that last last three - game series," the freshman manager said. "They took 'em two out of three and could have had a sweep with some pitching in that last one."

★ ★ ★

It's another year but the routine hasn't changed for Whitey Ford. The Yankees' annual starter for the opener was set for his 22nd series' assignment today. Berra said he will start rookie Mel Stottlemyre in the second game and Jim Bouton in New York on Saturday.

"I may go with just three starters," Berra said.

He plans to have left-hander Al Downing, a regular season starter, in the bullpen for at least the first two games.

For Stottlemyre, who posted nine victories after being called up in August, the second game is a key assignment.

★ ★ ★

It's a homecoming for Berra, who gew up in St. Louis.

"It took me 18 years to get back home for a World Series," Berra grinned. "I'm sure glad I finally made it."

★ ★ ★

Flying to St. Louis with the Yankees was young Mike Hegan, son of the club's pitching coach. Hegan will replace Tony Kubek as a series eligible if the veteran Yankee infielder's bad right wrist prevents him from playing.

The Yankees had planned to replace Kubek with reserve catcher Jake Gibbs but the youngster broke two fingers in New York's final regular season game Sunday.

Hotelmen In St. Louis Pray for Cards in Five

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis has been taken over by the World Series.

Tickets and hotel rooms were running low, but tensions and enthusiasm were fast increasing today as the city opened its first fall classic in 18 years.

Talk of the chances of a St. Louis Cardinals' victory over New York Yankees was everywhere—taverns, restaurants, offices, in the street.

Signs boosting the Redbirds could be seen throughout the city.

And fans were everywhere trying to pick up a ticket.

Tickets for the bleachers went on sale at 9 a.m. today and the line stretched for blocks, with many well-bundled fans having spent the night in temperatures that dipped to 36 degrees.

Two men began a two-day pinochle game. Others sat in folding chairs or slept in nearby autos while a friend or relative waited in line.

Third in line stood hard-luck Robert Hunt, who spent hours waiting Monday night and Tuesday morning for a pavilion ticket, obtained it, and within an hour, lost it.

SCALPERS BUSY

Police stood by to halt such operators as a tavern owner who hired four boys to sit in line in chairs, which he planned to sell to the highest bidder early today. Only bonafide fans could hold places in line and tickets sold for as much as $100.

Inside the stadium, decorators were hard at work installing a row of field boxes, bringing total capacity to about 30,500. Standees are expected to swell the crowd to more than 32,000.

Restaurants were full; it was almost impossible to get a taxicab; and worst of all, hotels were almost full.

Hotel managers and desk clerks spent unending days answering telephones with apologetic responses.

Hotel officials uttered a common prayer: for the Cardinals to win the series in five games so it will not return to St. Louis next week.

"If they come back here next week the city will have to set up tents in Forest Park," said George Barry, assistant manage of the Statler-Hilton Hotel.

Island Derby Day A Colorful Affair

By HAL MALONE

The piece de resistance of the 1964 Vancouver Island racing season, the $1,500 added Vancouver Island Derby for three-year-olds, will be run Saturday at Sandown Park.

Colorful this derby? Wear your sunglasses to reduce the glare.

Festivities start at 10 a.m. with the annual pre-Derby breakfast at the track.

Civic leaders, sportsmen, owners, trainers and jockeys of Derby horses will be served by fillies (two-legged species) adorned in lush and brief racing silks.

At 3 p.m., His Honor Lieut.-Gov. George Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes will arrive in a horse-drawn landau, the same vehicle used by Queen Victoria during a visit to the city in the latter part of the last century.

The Derby field will be saddled in the paddock before being led to the infield. They will be mounted under standards painted in the colors of the respective owners.

To the strains of "The West, a Nest and You," the field will parade to the post for the mile and a 16th classic.

Nominations close tonight. If 10 go to the post the total purse monies will be $1,850.

The pre-race favorite is Mr. and Mrs. Sam Conn's Nickonaches. He has won over $7,500 in 21 starts. Included in his three victories was a dead heat at Vancouver against the superb George Royal, regarded as the best colt ever bred in B.C.

VICTORIA ENTRY

The Colwood Stable of Victoria, owned by George Harkett, plans to nominate an entry—Devonshire Cream and Harlion. The filly Devonshire Cream has won four races, appears at her peak after a serious early summer illness.

Harlion, a grey son of Dark Hawk and Chick's Last, co-owned by Harknett and Harry Filion, is also at the top of his form.

His most recent victory (and third of the year) was accomplished over the derby distance by eight lengths eased up.

COMBS LEADING

Russell Combs, the brilliant apprentice who needs only six victories to become B.C.'s leading rider with 71, will be aboard Nickonaches.

Another apprentice Fred Finley, top reinsman at Sandown with 17 victories (Combs has 15) will likely get the call on Devonshire Cream.

Along about 5:17 p.m. Friday the winner will be hailed by an expected crowd of 6,000. Besides the glory and the money, he'll get a warm pat on the nose from Lieut.-Gov. Pearkes, the guest of honor.

Jane's Mark Recognized

TOKYO (AP) — The International Swimming Federation announced Tuesday the recognition of 26 world records established since May.

American swimmers dominated the records with 17, followed by The Netherlands and the Soviet Union with three each and one each by Britain, Canada and France.

The Canadian-owned record is that of 16-year-old Jane Hughes of Vancouver for a mark of 9:37.1 in the 800-yard freestyle, set Sept. 26. Miss Hughes now is at the Olympics.

Aussies Win Opening Test

MADRAS (Reuters) — Australia beat India by 139 runs at the Nehru Stadium today in the first Test of their three-match cricket series.

A quick end appeared likely when India resumed its second innings on the final day today with four wickets down for only 24 runs. But a gallant innings of 94 by Hanumant Singh delayed the Australian victory until 19 minutes before tea.

Final scores: Australia 211 and 397; India 276 and 193.

ANNE AGAIN WINS BERTH IN ROLLOFF

She missed out on the big prize last year, but Anne Goodman has wasted no time in qualifying for another shot at "Bowler of the Year" honors.

Anne today became the first winner to be announced in the second annual Times "Bowler of the Week" competition. She earned the award by topping the women's tenpin division during the first week of the 28-week contest.

ANNE GOODMAN

City all-events tenpin queen in 1960 and a Bowler of the Week last season, Mrs. Goodman topped the weekly list this time with a three-game scratch total of 536 in the Ladies' Classic League at Mayfair Lanes.

Her victory, on single games of 176, 218 and 142, again made her eligible for the Bowler-of-the-Year rolloff in May. Last year's women's tenpin winner in the rolloff was Leona Peterson.

Weekly contests are also being held in men's tenpins, and men's and women's fivepins. The second contest will finish Friday night and is open to all southern Vancouver Island bowlers rolling in regular league play.

The four winners of the May rolloff will receive trophies and, if subscribers to the Times, bonus prizes of $100.

Stanley Cup Champs Thrown by Buckaroos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minor league clubs upset Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night, just four days before the National Hockey League swings into action with the annual all-star game.

Providence Reds of the American Hockey League defeated the Canadiens 5-2, and Portland Buckaroos of the Western League edged the defending Stanley Cup champion Leafs 3-2.

Elsewhere, Chicago Black Hawks defeated New York Rangers 4-2, and Detroit Red Wings shutout Tulsa of the Central Professional League 6-0.

It was the final exhibition game for Chicago und Toronto.

Willie Marshall fired three goals as the Reds defeated the Canadiens. Bobby Rousseau and John Ferguson replied for Montreal.

Fred Stanfield, Doug Mohns, Al McNeil and Bobby Hull got a goal each as the Hawks dumped the Rangers. Phil Goyette and Rod Gilbert were the New York marksmen.

Harry Leach, Art Jones and Ron Hergott counted one each as the Buckaroos won their second exhibition game against NHL competition.

Frank Mahovlich and Jim Pappin were the Toronto marksmen.

The regular 70-game NHL schedule begins Monday with Boston visiting New York.

BROKER TURNS BEER VENDOR TO SEE SERIES

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A suburban Vinita Park stock broker, desperate to see the World Series, has taken a job selling beer at the ballpark.

Robert Forman said he tried every way he could to obtain tickets. Finally, he called the Washington University student placement bureau in an attempt to hire a student to stand in line for a bleacher seat.

"They told me they couldn't even get enough students to sell beer at the game," Forman said. "So I asked them if I could do that."

He was referred to the Missouri state employment service and got the beer vending job.

'Frisco Fullback Lost for a Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Fullback J. D. Smith, San Francisco 49ers' top ground gainer for the past five seasons, will be out for the year.

The club made the announcement Monday, two weeks after Smith was hurt in the 49ers' 28-24 victory over Philadelphia Eagles. A spokesman said the star fullback will be operated on this week for cartilage damage to his left knee.

Mexico Selected World Golf Site

ROME (AP) — The World Golf Council has selected Mexico City as the site for the 1966 world amateur golf championships. Mexico was chosen over Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Peru.

The decision was taken by the council at a meeting Tuesday at Rome's Olgiata golf club, where the fourth world amateur championship started today.

SEATTLE MUST WAIT

Tribe Executive Thinking It Over

CLEVELAND (AP)—Whether the Cleveland Indians will move the American League franchise they've had here since 1901 remained a question Tuesday night after a four-hour meeting of club directors.

The 22-member board, four of whom were absent, recessed until Friday, Oct. 16, pending further examination of the advantages and disadvantages of proposed moves.

General Manager Gabe Paul, owner of about 20 per cent of the club's stock, said no votes were taken and told newsmen:

"Basically, the situation is the same as it was yesterday."

Offers for the Indians have been made by Seattle and Oakland, Calif., and Atlanta and some other cities have figured in the summer-long speculation about a possible Tribe move.

Paul said the directors discussed proposals from other cities in Tuesday's session but he would not say which cities or how many.

FRICK HAS SAY

At the same time, baseball commissioner Ford Frick has urged the owners of Milwaukee Braves to reconsider their position before deciding to move out of Milwaukee.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says in a story from St. Louis that Frick met last week with Braves' William Barthomomay and executive vice-president Thomas A. Reynolds Jr.

"I urged them to reconsider their problems and attempt to work out a solution which would keep the Braves in Milwaukee," Frick is reported to have said.

Rumors have been circulating for months that the Braves plan to start the 1965 National League season in Atlanta's new stadium.

DESERTED PAL TRIED TO PUT . . . . . . NEW WRINKLE INTO WRINKLE

Morale: Steer Clear of 'Lonely' Golfers

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — "It's a pretty lonely feeling," Claude A. Parker told a Superior Court Tuesday, when you're left behind to blast your way out of the rough while your buddies have gone on ahead to the next tee.

But lonely or not, the jury found Parker guilty of assault and battery on one of his golfing companions, who claimed Parker broke a driver over his arm, jabbed him in the side with the jagged shaft and then raked his body with it.

Parker, Jack W. Wrinkle and Charles A. Pickering, all of Chattanooga, Tenn., went to play a friendly game of golf April 7 on a trip to Augusta to watch the Masters' Tournament.

After 18 holes they decided on one more round. On the 4th hole, all three shot into a sand trap and Wrinkle and Pickering chipped onto the green. Parker overshot and ended in the rough. His next shot also went a little wild and his buddies decided to play through. They did.

"They putted out of turn and then just walked off and left me," Parker said. "It's a pretty lonely feeling."

There are two versions of what happened after that.

Wrinkle, backed by Pickering's testimony, told the court that Parker took a driver and swung "murderously" at his head. He raised his arm to ward off the blow and the club's head flew "50 to 75 feet into the woods." Then, said Wrinkle, "he took the shaft and stuck me in the side with it." When he realized he was injured, Wrinkle said, he took his driver and hit Parker on the shoulder, then clobbered him several times with his fists.

Parker, on the other hand, said Wrinkle ran into the broken shaft he was holding in self-defence. Then, Parker said, Wrinkle knocked him to the ground and bit his finger "severely."

"I told him, 'Jack, you're biting my finger off'," Parker told the jury.

The jury took 45 minutes to decide that Parker was guilty of assault and battery. He was fined $350 and a 12-month prison sentence was suspended.

CANADIAN SQUAD WELL-BALANCED

'Cautious Optimism' Covers Olympic Hopes

JANE HUGHES
. . . swimming threat

(E. Howard Radford, 48, has been connected with sports since he was a youngster. He has been an Olympic official since 1932 when he managed the Canadian Olympic Canoeing team and became secretary of the Canadian Olympic Association. He was assistant general manager in 1956 at Melbourne and again in 1960 at Rome. This year he is the Canadian Chef de Mission. In the following dispatch he sums up Canada's outlook for the forthcoming games in Tokyo.)

By E. HOWARD RADFORD
Chef de Mission, Canadian Olympic Team

TOKYO (UPI)—The Olympic Games are just a few days away and my outlook is one of cautious optimism for Canada's chances.

Our team of 106 athletes is better balanced than any we've been able to assemble since 1936. The overall quality definitely stands out. It's easy to talk negatively about our team's chances and shortcomings, but I'd rather look at the positive side of the picture.

Our medal chances are mainly in track and field, rowing, judo and yachting.

Canada hasn't won a gold medal in any track and field event since 1932 when Dunc McNaughton won the high jump at Los Angeles. In all, Canada has only won eight gold medals in track and field and four of them were in 1928 at Amsterdam. That year, Percy Williams of Vancouver was a double winner in the 100 and 200-meter sprints, Ethel Catherwood of Saskatoon won the high jump, and the Canadians won the women's 400-meter relay.

Have We Kept Pace With the World?

Canada's 15 track and field stars all could have won gold medals in the 1948 Olympics at London, but how they'll do this year is open to speculation.

Track and field manager Jim Daly pointed out the times comparisons of today's team with the 1948 athletes. Today's is a young but experienced team and it could have swept the boards 16 years ago.

The question is: Have we kept up with the rest of the world?

We have every reason to believe we have.

This year we have definite medal chances in seven or eight different events. Harry Jerome seems to be fully recovered from his leg operation and is running as well as ever. He has to be considered a threat to win the 100-meter event on his times alone.

Bill Crothers has a good chance to finish in the first three in the half-mile (800 meters), and Bruce Kidd is a medal possibility at both the 5,000 and 10,000-meter distances.

Dianne Displays International Class

Dianne Gerace has shown international class by twice jumping five feet nine inches and we are hoping she'll place in the first three. Irene Piotrowski demonstrated just recently that she, too, is among the world's best in the sprints after her 11.5 clocking over a sloppy track in Vancouver.

Alex Oakley in the 20 and 50-kilometer walks and Nancy McCredie in the field events are both medal threats.

I think it's reasonable to assume that at least three or four of these youngsters will come through.

In swimming, I think we'll reach the finals of some events and pick up a few points along the way. Jane Hughes broke the world record for 880 yards the other day, and (while this is not an Olympic event) must be considered a medal threat.

Tom Dinsley of Vancouver was a gold medal winner in the Pan-American Games and has a good chance in both the springboard and platform diving competition.

Rowers and Rogers Definite Threats

In rowing, Canada should be finalists in both the four and eight-oared crews. In 1956, at Melbourne, we won the fours and finished second in the eights. In Rome, we took the silver medal in the eights.

Doug Rogers is our only man on the judo team, but from what we know of him, I'll be very surprised if he doesn't win at least a bronze medal in the heavyweight division.

The yachting boys tells me that they are strong in all classes but figure they have an outstanding chance with Ed Botterell in the Dragon Class.

The directors of the Canadian Olympic Association were concerned about increasing the size of the team to 106. We sent 97 athletes to Rome, 101 to Melbourne, 113 to Helsinki and 104 to London in 1948.

By increasing the size of the team you run the risk of reducing the quality, if you relate placings to the over-all size of the team.

All our medal potential would still be there in a smaller team, but the thinking is that there are those who deserve to be given an opportunity and there are those with future potential.

All in all, I think this team will aquit itself well.

'A PROBLEM?

SMILING HAZARDS IN TOKYO

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese Olympic officials are concerned about two major hazards to the games: Barking dogs and semi-nude girls.

They announced with solemn faces Tuesday they are taking firm steps to get rid of both.

The noisy bounds and the scantily clad musume - san—the local term for dames—dot the routes of the marathon runners and the road cyclists.

These, the organizers insist, are definite distractions.

The dogs run out and yap at the jogging cross-country runners and the bicycle racers.

★ ★ ★

They can kick at the dogs, but lose valuable time. The runners may lose a chunk of thigh. The cyclists could have a dangerous spill.

Even more hazardous are the girls, operators of the 167 Turkish baths that thrive in the bustling city.

Despite laws imposed for the duration of the games, these comely daughters of Nippon, wearing considerably less than the bikini seen on the beaches of the Riviera, stand in front of their establishments, smiling and giggling.

★ ★ ★

This could cause more than accidents, the officials say. It may provoke outright desertions. The marathoners and cyclists may never finish their races.

The most serious ones may be found in the brightly lighted, bustling cabarets on the ginza.

★ ★ ★

Here pretty Japanese girls, many of them tall and leggy like the comic-strip Dragon Lady come to life, stand behind a latice curtain and send provocative messages with their eyes toward customers drinking at the bar.

Unlike the B-girls operating in some American saloons, they aren't permitted to solicit companionship. They can only stand and smile fetchingly until a male customer, like picking out a can of beans in a supermarket, makes his choice.

Arnie Clings To Top Rung

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer continues to lead professional golf's money winners with a grand total of $110,743, more than $3,000 ahead of his nearest competitor.

The winnings and standings are unchanged from last week.

Palmer has played in 22 tournaments, won two and was among the first five in 15 events.

Jack Nicklaus has won $107,717 to rank second in winnings. Nicklaus has won four of 22 tournaments in which he has played. Bill Casper Jr., ranks third with $79,019 in 27 outings.

UNITY—THAT'S THEME OF CANADIAN ATHLETES

TOKYO (CP)—All persons visiting Canadian quarters at the Olympic Games village here are greeted with a wry reminder of a Canadian political problem.

Each doorway is surmounted by a placard reading: Welcome Canadians.

The contending symbols are separated by a question mark.

IN ROWING

Luck of the Draw Favors Canadians

TOKYO (CP)—Canada's eight-oar entry is favored by the first-round draw in Olympic rowing competition, but her four-man crew faces tough going, says their coach, Glen Mervyn of Vancouver.

"We couldn't ask a better draw for the eight," said Mervyn in an interview, shortly after the Canadian octet had been drawn against New Zealand, Czechoslovakia, Cuba and Japan for their first heat over the course on the northern outskirts of Tokyo.

Mervyn pointed out that in this heat, to be rowed Oct. 12, the Canadians won't have to face top-ranked Russia, nor the United States, Germany, Italy, France and Australia, all rated along with the Canadians as strong contenders.

He saw the Czechs as the chief danger to the Vancouver Rowing Club eight in this heat, but said the West Coast men, mostly University of British Columbia graduates, have a good chance to win and gain automatic entry into the Oct. 15 final.

Heat losers must win two races — repechage and semi-final—to reach the final.

'WILL QUALIFY EASILY'

Mervyn expected the Soviet Union team would qualify easily in its heat against Egypt, Korea and France.

The third heat will be made up of the Germans, who nosed out the University of British Columbia for first place in the 1960 Olympics, the United States, Italy, Australia and Yugoslavia. This heat promises to be a real dogfight.

In the fours without coxswain, in which Canada is represented by a St. Catharines, Ont., crew, it's a different story.

The Canadians have been drawn to face high-ranked Denmark, Hungary, Japan and Romania.

"The Danes are in wonderful form," Mervyn said.

The second heat will have Argentina, the United States, the Netherlands, Italy and England. In the third heat are France, Russia, Germany and Austria.

DEPENDS ON WEATHER

All the draws have been made dependent on good weather. In case of high winds, the heats will be reshuffled to include three crews or even two.

Competition begins Oct. 11, with heats for coxed fours, coxless pairs, single sculls, coxed pairs and coxless fours.

On Oct. 12, preliminary heats will be run off for double sculls and eights, and losers heats for coxed fours, coxless pairs and single sculls.

The Oct. 13 schedule calls for losers' heats in coxed pairs, coxless fours, double sculls and eights.

The finals for all seven events are to be raced Oct. 15.

Twenty-nine countries are entered, with 104 crews totalling 383 oarsmen.

Olympic Committee Re-Elects Brundage

TOKYO (CP) — The Tokyo Olympics organizing committee, leaving nothing to chance, today staged a dress rehearsal for Saturday's opening of the 1964 Olympic Games.

School children occupied some of the 75,000 seats in Olympic Stadium as flag-bearers from many of the 98 countries competing marched around the red cinder track and came to attention before the box where Emperor Hirohito will sit Saturday.

Highlight of the dress rehearsal came when Hoshinori Sakai entered the stadium bearing a replica of the Olympic torch, and climbed up to ignite the flame in the Olympic bowl. The flame was extinguished when the hour-long rehearsal ended.

East Germany's Ingrid Kraemer carried the flag for the combined East-West German team.

SHOP-LIFTING SURGE

Meanwhile, a wave of shoplifting kept the operators of the Olympic Village shopping centre baffled.

Guards at Olympic Village said shoplifting was outside their jurisdiction and the Olympic organizers were loath to risk international ill-will by bringing in full-scale police intervention.

"We have withdrawn transistor radios that sell at around 4,000 yen (about $11) because so many of them have disappeared," said Ichitaro Eguchi, manager of the Olympic Village branch of one of Tokyo's bigest department stores.

JEWELRY TAKEN TOO

"I understand that the jewelry shop in the centre has had at least two necklaces worth 45,000 yen (about $126) each taken," Eguchi said.

"We were warned that this sort of shoplifting had gone on in the village at Rome. It was foolish, but we had hoped we would escape."

The International Olympic Committee Tuesday re-elected Avery Brundage of Chicago as president.

Brundage, 74, a stern hotelman who holds strict views on amateurism, won out in a secret ballot over Lord David Brughley, Marquess of Exeter, who takes a somewhat more liberal view of the amateur code.

CLOSE VOTE?

The vote was announced as unanimous but this was on a motion by Pakistan after the sealed ballots had been counted. It probably was fairly close in the 70-man committee.

The IOC accepted the resignation of Prince Albert of Belgium as an IOC member and named Prince Alexandre de Merode, also of Belgium, in his place.

Named new members of the IOC were Julio Onesti, president of the Italian national Olympic committee, and Silvio Padilliha, president of the national Olympic committee of Brazil.

CULTURE BUG BITES

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP)—The Olympics are not all sweat and strain. They have been bitten by the culture bit, too.

Until the flame finally goes out Oct. 24, athletes, officials and fans here for the Olympics will be exposed to large doses of some of the quainter aspects of Japanese life.

A team ceremony is being performed at almost every open flame in town, and Kabuki and Noh actors are working more hours than an Alsatian sheep dog. Some Sumo wrestlers have grunted themselves down to 350 pounds or so.

All these extra performances are being staged for the Olympics visitors, but since there is no particularly good reason why you should escape the culture blitz, the following guide has been prepared for the stay-at-homes.

Tea ceremony: This is a method of making tea for people who would rather have coffee. You start off by taking off your shoes and sitting around on the floor while a girl in kimono makes mysterious motions amid the crockery.

Each motion has a meaning. For example, if the girl suddenly slaps her thigh it means she has forgotten the lemon. Or the sugar. Or something.

After about two hours, a luke-warm, pale green beverage is produced and passed around. It tastes terrible.

There is very little action. Nobody says much and nobody moves much, either. The actors wear masks most of the time. Sometimes they don't. It is hard to tell.

Noh play: The ancient court drama, performed to music played on one violin string with a hand saw.

Kabuki: This is the same as Noh except the costumes are fancier. The girls parts are played by boys. The boy parts are also played by boys. This takes a lot of the interest out of the thing.

Kabuki actors talk more than Noh actors, but they don't move much, either. About every half hour one will change position. The audience usually cheers.

Sumo wrestling: This is the Japanese answer to the roller derby. Two fat fellows in loin cloths waddle into the ring and get down on their haunches.

Then they get up and walk around the ring throwing salt. Then after an ancient series of false starts, the wrestlers bump blubber, and one falls out of the ring. The whole thing is over faster than a Joe Louis fight in the 1930s.

Now, don't you wish you were over here with us?

MICROFILM TO COVER ABSENT-MINDED FANS

NEW YORK (AP)—If you've lost your tickets to the Olympic Games or left them behind when you rushed to catch the plane, don't worry.

The Tokyo Olympic organizing committee made microfilm records of all of several hundrded thousand advance-order tickets before they were mailed to buyers in more than 50 countries.

The compact film rolls record the orders by customer and category and provide records to protect the buyers against loss, misplacement or theft.

So, if you don't have the tickets when you get to Tokyo, all you have to do is explain your predicament—in Japanese.

UPSWING IN SPORTS

Dyson Feels 'Fresh Wind'

OTTAWA (CP) — Former British national coach Geoffrey Dyson says that interest in amateur sport is booming in Canada.

He told a meeting of the Canadian Amateur Sports Federation that he has detected "a fresh new wind which quickens the pulse of Canadian amateur sport" in his travels across Canada as head of the Royal Canadian Legion's sports training program.

The federation's membership includes most sports governing bodies in Canada. It meets at least once a year to discuss common problems and ways to advance amateur sports.

With more and more Canadians taking up such lesser-known activities as canoeing and archery rather than the more popular team sports, Dyson urged amateur sport executives to set up a central body to provide better facilities, coaching and administration.

WON'T KEEP RECORDS

Later delegates turned down a proposal to set up a national office for amateur sport that would compile records and information on all sports and promote more interest in them.

Some delegates said they feared that too much power might be assumed by a national office and that the sports governing bodies might lose control of their sports. They agreed to discuss the matter again at a January meeting.

Delegates also heard that the first Canadian Winter Games, scheduled for Quebec City in 1966, probably won't be held until 1967. Planning for the games has been held up pending approval of federal grants for the project.

Place Kickers Make Big Gains In Scoring Races

(Times News Services)

Placement kickers made the big gains in the individual scoring columns of the Canadian Football League Tuesday night.

Ottawa's Moe Racine booted three converts and two field goals as the Riders downed Saskatchewan 27-3. That moved Racine to within 10 points of the Eastern Division lead, held by Hamilton's Don Sutherin.

In the West, centre Bill Mitchell of Edmonton picked up seven points as the Eskimos downed Winnipeg 25-22. Mitchell thus moved into a tie for eighth place with B.C. Lion star Willie Fleming.

Football Equipment Can Be Dangerous

VINELAND, Ont. (CP) — Protective padding and helmets worn by some university and high school football players are dangerous to their safety, Dr. Ian Macnab of Toronto said here.

Speaking to 500 doctors attending an Ontario chapter meeting of the College of General Practice of Canada Dr. Macnab said it would be safer in some cases for players not to wear protective gear.

He said three university students in Kingston alone broke their necks because of face masks on their helmets during the 1961 season.

The players were knocked flat on their faces after a tackle but their bodies cartwheeled, said Dr. Macnab.

"The helmet acted as a sort of wheel and, as they rolled over on their heads, the back of the helmet snapped their necks."

He also said that shoulder pads could cause serious injuries and if high school students started wearing spikes, then the danger was dreadful.

He suggested that protective equipment be designed for safety precaution and not an offensive danger.

Another Toronto doctor, Hoyle Campbell, said some injuries occur in high school because players are not in condition.

Injuries Plague United —Shores Here Sunday

Injuries continue to plague Victoria United at the start of the Pacific Coast Soccer League season.

Hampered by injuries when they dropped a 10 decision to Vancouver Canadians last Saturday in their season opener, the Victorians will have at least two regulars on the sidelines against North Shore in a Sunday match at Royal Athletic Park.

Out of action as United bids for its first win under the new manager-coach combination of Fred Magee and Frank Grealy, will be winger Dunc McCaig and centre-forward Jim Jamieson.

JIM JAMIESON
. . . out for a month

Jamieson, who started last Saturday despite a pulled groin muscle, received an elbow jab in the ribs. When the new injury failed to clear up as expected, X-rays were taken and disclosed that a kidney surface had been split.

OUT FOR MONTH

That will keep Jamieson in hospital for two weeks and out of action for at least a month.

McCaig, who had to have a broken nose repaired, hopes to miss only one match.

While collecting medical reports, United wound up its lengthy exhibition schedule Tuesday night at Royal Athletic Park and drubbed Price and Smith of the District League 7-0.

Ash Valdal fired three goals, Russ Ball counted twice and Ced Robb and Marty Taylor each connected for one tally.

Golf Ace at Oak Bay

Mrs. H. H. Ellis fired her first hole-in-one Tuesday at Victoria Golf Club.

Playing in Benning Cup competition with Mrs. E. L. Keyes and Mrs. C. D. Hart, Mrs. Ellis dropped her tee shot on the 146-yard second hole.

CANADA EYED AS HOST FOR SOCCER TOURNEY

LONDON (CP)—A British soccer manager hopes to boost the game in Canada with an international tournament next summer.

Malcolm Allison, manager of Plymouth Argyle, is seeking three British teams and two from the continent to join the venture. It would be run on the lines of the annual International Tournament in New York.

Plymouth, Cardiff and Coventry, all members of the English Football League's Second Division, are the most likely British entrants.

Island Puck Loop Sets Season Plans

The new Vancouver Island Hockey League is ready to roll.

It became official Tuesday night at Memorial Arena when delegates of the four clubs named an executive and decided to seek affiliation with the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association as an intermediate league.

Arena manager Jack Morgan was selected chairman of the executive, which will include a representative from each of the clubs — Safeway Canadians, Dormans Cavaliers, both from Victoria; Port Alberni and Nanaimo.

League play will start Saturday, Oct. 24, with Nanaimo at Alberni. Canadians and Cavaliers will launch the Victoria season on Oct. 26.

MONDAY GAMES HERE

All Victoria games except those involving Port Alberni will be played Monday nights at Memorial Arena. Port Alberni games here will be held on Sunday afternoons, starting at 4.

It was announced the teams will play a balanced schedule. Three teams will make the playoffs, with the championship team drawing a bye into the final.

Joining Morgan on the executive were Dick Hawksworth (Port Alberni), Frank Crane (Nanaimo), Keith Dorman (Cavaliers) and Bill Kirby (Canadians).

FINALLY reaching agreement on salary terms with manager-coach Punch Imlach Tuesday was Toronto Maple Leaf centre Bob Pulford (above). New contract will be signed in Toronto, Imlach said, in time for Pulford to play in National Hockey League All-Star game Saturday night in Toronto. Pulford had been arguing over salary for several weeks.

Dancer's Sister Brings $100,000

TORONTO (CP)—E. P. Taylor sold off 23 yearlings Monday from his Windfields Farms for a record $422,000, including a full sister to Northern Dancer which went for $100,000 to Jean-Louis Levesque, Montreal.

A spokesman for Taylor said the total was the largest amount ever to change hands at a horse sale in Canada, and the $100,000 paid by Mr. Levesque was the most that one Canadian has ever paid another Canadian for a horse.

Ottawa's Choices

OTTAWA (CP)—Halfbacks Ronnie Stewart and Joe Poirier of Ottawa Rough Riders have been nominated for the Jeff Russel Trophy, presented annually to the player in the Canadian Football League displaying the most sportsmanlike conduct.

STICK-IN-MUD ATTITUDE

Vancouver Kills Soccer's Advance

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of the Western Canada Soccer League says Vancouver officials are killing the game's progress in Canada.

Bob Barbosa of Calgary accused the British Columbia Soccer Commission of sitting on $60,000 and said the Pacific Coast League is "a typical example of Vancouver's stick-in-the-mud attitude."

"This country is prepared for another professional sport to fill the gap between hockey and football and Vancouver holds the key to the pro soccer door," he said in an interview Monday while holidaying here.

Barbosa said the only thing the B.C. Soccer Commission is getting for its $60,000 "is a good interest rate."

"Why it doesn't spend some money to promote the game at a senior level I'll never know."

He said he thought Vancouver should start the ball rolling toward establishing a professional soccer league in the four western provinces because of the fan appeal there.

He suggested soccer should follow the steps of football and eventually be played on an interlocking basis.

"Eastern Canada has led the way in Canada and the people in that part of the Dominion appear to have a fairly successful professional operation."

Columbia Dam Lowest Tender At $15,899,857

VANCOUVER (CP)—A consortium of three companies submitted a low bid of $15,899,857 for construction of the Duncan Lake Dam, first of three giant structures called for in the Columbia River treaty.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett opened five bids as president of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

It was indicated that the contract will probably be awarded to the low bidder, the consortium of Mannix Limited of Calgary, Standard - General Construction (International) Limited, also of Calgary and Emil Anderson of Vancouver.

EARLY START

Other bids ranged to $23,155,238, submitted by McNamara Construction (Western) Limited of Edmonton.

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, Hydro co-chairman, said tenders will be let in a week and construction should start by the end of the month on the 120-foot-high earth-filled dam, 25 miles north of Kaslo, in the Kootenays.

He also announced that the contract for the Arrow dam, number two of the three treaty dams, will be let around the first of next year and that Mica Creek dam, largest of the three, will not be let until the end of next year.

Duncan Lake dam must be completed by April 1, 1968.

BIG RESERVOIR

It will create a 29-square-mile reservoir, capable of storing 1,400,000 acre-feet from a 925-square-mile drainage area.

Other bids opened by the premier were: Northern Construction Company, J. W. Stewart Limited and Perini Pacific Limited, all of the Vancouver area $18,388,233; the Foundation Company of Canada Limited of Toronto, $19,297,686; John Laing and Son, Richard Costain Civil Engineering Limited, George Wimpy Canada Limited, and Taylor Woodrow of Canada $20,339,448.

Radar Use Studied

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A $71,670 study contract has been awarded North American Aviation Company, Downey, Calif., to determine whether radar can relay information about topography to a computer, which in turn would tell an astronaut what lay ahead on the moon. Four areas near Barstow, Calif., comparable to those expected on the moon, have been selected for analysis.

SWISS FIRE AIR CHIEF OVER PLANE CONTRACT

BERN (AP) — The Swiss government fired its air force commander, Col. Etienne Primault, today because of parliamentary charges of gross negligence in the purchase of French jet planes.

President Ludwig Von Moos told the Council of States (upper house) the government may also take action against the chief of the Swiss general staff, Col. Jakob Annasohn, who offered his resignation.

A parliamentary investigation committee had held the two men directly responsible for negligent handling of a $191,000,000 order for 100 Mirage III fighter planes approved by parliament three years ago. Switzerland now will have to spend about one-fourth more and will get only 57 planes instead of 100 because of price increases and "miscalculations."

Cleric Denies He Saw Misconduct In Church

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh testified Tuesday that he has never seen anyone having sexual relations in Park Street United Church and he had seen nothing that led him to suspect that this was going on.

The 45-year-old Chatham minister took the witness stand at the opening of the 11th day of his trial on eight counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

He told the court he had found young people attending Friday night dances in out-of-bounds areas in the church, or on the way to them, while patrolling with dance chaperones or by himself.

He testified that the chaperones told him youngsters were leaving the dance floor and had been found in the church parlor. However, he added, no chaperoen ever reported to him finding anyone having intimate relations or necking.

Dealing in detail with the first count contained in the charge against him, Mr. Horsburgh said he first met the 14-year - old girl named in the charge last March 19, after receiving a telephone call from the 15-year-old boy with whom she claimed in her testimony, she had sexual relations in the church.

Mr. Horsburgh said the boy told him he and the girl had a very serious personal problem they wanted to discuss with him immediately. He invited the couple to talk with him in his office.

"I told them that marriage for them at this time was impracticable and impossible," he said.

He said they spoke of seeing nothing wrong with pre-marital intercourse, but the boy admitted that his girl friend had doubts about it and was reluctant.

$85 Million Pulp Project

MONTREAL (CP) — An $85,000,000 expansion program in the pulp and paper field in Quebec and Ontario has been announced by Dominion Tar and Chemical Co. Ltd.

W. N. Hall, Domtar president, said Tuesday $62,000,000 of the amount will go towards establishing a pulp and paper operation at Lac Quevillon, Que., some 300 miles northwest of Ottawa in the Abitibi district.

Installation of a new fine paper machine and extensions to shipping and stock preparation systems at the Cornwall, Ont., mill will cost another $11,000,000.

The company also will modernize completely its kraft pulp facilities at Windsor, Que., at a cost of $12,000,000.

Domtar already is spending $15,000,000 at its Red Rock, Ont., pulp and paper operation to improve its pulping process. This will bring Domtar expenditures for expansion by 1967 to a total of $100,000,000.

"Old Stewball was a racehorse,
I wish he were mine,
He never drank water,
He always drank wine . . ."

Those words to a plaintive tune are from a current folksong. One of our young was playing records the other evening, and Win and I were holding a post-mortem over a Sandown program, when the saga of Old Stewball the wondersteed infiltrated our cars.

Since them, at odd times and in various places, we have found ourselves humming, whistling and even once or twice singing this wistful little dirge aloud.

For like the ballad's railbird who becomes jailbird, we too have more often than not failed to recognize Old Stewball when he blazes upon the scene.

He's the mount who wings from the pack in the thundering home stretch to confound the handicappers with a 30-to-1 triumph.

Horse, mare, ridgling or colt, gelding or frisky filly, Old Stewball is the ace that flicks out of the deck, the ugly duckling magpicked for a moment into swan; and even a jockey wise as Shoemaker may ride a race from gate to ultimate furlong before he recognizes the thunderbolt suddenly unleashed between his knees.

★ ★ ★

It is this quest for Old Stewball—and the knowledge that the next or any parimutuel ticket may carry his charmed number—which gives a racetrack crowd its unique flavor.

You hear few cross words at a racetrack. Dolorous, yes, when the sure thing, the nag that couldn't lose, has demonstrated he isn't Old Stewball after all.

But during those hours when the world contracts to a railed oval, a curious sense of brotherhood prevails. Once past the approaches where the hoarse tipsters cry their sheets, no one is quite a stranger.

We have sacrificed to Poseidon, who rules earth's horses as well as its seas, at tracks both great and small, and at none have we witnessed the spectator rudeness and downright savagery that mars the average National Hockey League joust.

In our own infrequent courtings of Old Stewball, it has been impressed on us that the man who serves, rides or backs him tends to be a pretty decent fellow.

Your confirmed horseplayer is not merely willing but eager to exercise the virtues of faith and optimism eight times in a losing afternoon.

Should you venture out to Sandown one of these autumn days when the track is fast and the big oaks still green against October's mellow pastels, you will see grey and even white heads a-plenty.

Like our friend Ed, their owners offer convincing proof that age is a state less of flesh than of spirit.

★ ★ ★

We don't know where Ed is applying his latest system to Old Stewball these days. At New York's Aqueduct, maybe, or across the continent where the likely colts are running at Tanforan.

But one night this winter he will drop in on us—lean, straight and tanned as if his Royal Flying Corps years weren't half a century away—and for a few good hours, we'll sit by an alder fire and talk Thoroughbreds.

To call Ed a gambler would be to insult him. He maintains he's a system player, a turf investor who weighs all factors, and was once properly scandalized when we suggested a flyer on a longshot.

Ed is a widower. He operated his own business successfully for many years; retired, then because idleness bored him, went to work as a salesman for another few years. Now he follows Old Stewball wherever on this continent those enchanted hooves spurn a well-laid track.

Two winters ago, Ed was late with his visit: he'd been over in France, he told us casually when he arrived, investing a few francs at les courses de Chevaun.

Horseplayers are supposed to die broke, and Ed may be no exception. It is also true that the two bucks slipped under the wicket could be spent where they will yield a more certain and tangible return.

But I will be glad, when dark January comes, that on a bright day or two this fall, I helped keep Old Stewball the racehorse in wine!

THIS TANGLE could be anything. It was once a car—and a 17-year-old boy was sitting where the centre of the picture is. Brian Henry, 4991 Prospect Lake Road, was in a Pat Bay Highway collision with a 20-ton loader. He died instantly, the second fatality on the highway in a day.

Broken Tie Rod Found on Loader

Saanich Youth Dies In Grinding Crash

Steering failure is being blamed for a highway accident that took the life of a 17-year-old Saanich youth on Tuesday.

Brian Henry, 4991 Prospect Lake Road, died when his car was ripped to a tangle of metal by a 20-ton rear-end loader.

He was the second driver to be killed by a piece of heavy equipment on the Pat Bay Highway in one day—and both pieces of equipment belonged to the same company.

Brian was travelling alone in his older-model sedan when it was in a glancing head-on collision with the loader at Pat Bay Highway and Dieppe Road at Royal Oak at about 6:10 p.m.

Saanich police extricated him from the shattered ruin of his car, but he was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Driver of the Mattison & Patterson loader was Barry Rushworth, 2545 Graham.

GOING TO FOOTBALL

Brian, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Henry, was on his way to a football practice at the time of the accident.

He was headed south. Police found football equipment in the back of his car.

A well-known athlete, Brian played football and soccer, and ran on the Mount Newton High School track team.

He was a Grade 10 student at the school.

Surviving are the mother and father, and brothers and sisters, Derek, 10; Gay, 9; Guy, 7, and Saune, 2½.

PARTS SPRAYED

Eyewitnesses said parts of his car were sprayed all over the road by the impact.

Police who examined the loader found a tie rod between the two huge front wheels had broken.

They believe the damage to the car was done by one of the six-foot front tires when the loader went out of control.

The earlier accident took place at Pat Bay and Amity Drive about 10:10 a.m., when a loaded 10-ton gravel truck rolled on top of a small imported car.

Driver Austin Finch, 61, of 3527 Richmond, died instantly.

UNINJURED

His passenger, R. G. Casson, 419 Davida, crawled out uninjured.

Mr. Finch was managing director of O'Neil Glass and Paint Co. and Mr. Casson worked for him.

Surviving Mr. Finch are the widow, Nora, and two sisters, Millie and Eva Finch, in St. Helens, England.

MOTHER COMPLAINS

Novel Ruled Out Of City Schools

A mother's complaint succeeded today in having a contemporary American novel banned from Victoria public schools.

Greater Victoria school district superintendent John Gough said it was "not the type of book recommended for the high school level. The college and university level would be all right."

The woman—with a 17-year-old son in Grade 11—said the book was suggested as supplementary reading for secondary English. It is written in the form of an autobiography of a 16-year-old and is "full of perversion, sex and prostitutes. I object strongly," the mother said.

The writer, J. D. Salinger, has fostered a cult of Holden Caulfield fans with publication of this and other similar novels during the past 10 years.

Caulfield is the boy hero of the book, Catcher in the Rye.

"What are they going to gain by it?" the mother wanted to know.

'FLOUNDERING AROUND'

"We parents are supposed to keep our children clean living, clean thinking . . . I'm a poor parent floundering around trying to keep my son on the straight and narrow path."

She was shocked when she opened the book her son bought at a bookstore and found the type of language used, the characters it embodied.

"I forbade him to open the book. How dare they give my son this tripe to read. I don't want my children to know this filth.

"This book is the story of a boy who has no respect for his parents and contempt for authority," the parent said.

When the son pointed out the language in the book is not dissimilar to that used by his school mates, the mother reacted again:

"Does he have to act and talk like a hood in order to get along in society?"

"We should have some say over what our children read. It isn't easy to raise a son to have good thoughts," the mother said.

She has taken the book up with her son's teacher.

MATURE ENOUGH

The teacher recommended it as an example of modern American writing, feeling his class was mature enough to read it with some objectivity.

There were two other titles—Jane Eyre and Wuthering Heights, by the Bronte sisters—suggested as supplementary reading and students were to choose one and write a review on it for December.

Mr. Gough said steps were taken to "neutralize" the situation by substituting the American book with another example of contemporary writing.

He said the objectionable book was added by an English teacher or teachers to the list of suggested reading issued by the education department.

The matter will be taken up at a regular meeting of principals with the district superintendent next week.

"I don't think, as a school system, we can be party to this type of reading," Mr. Gough said.

Similar objection to this title was raised in another school last year and dealt with on that level only.

$2,500 OFFERED FOR JEWELRY

By TERRY IZZARD

An Open Letter to a Thief

Offering $2,500 reward—Mr. and Mrs. Bali Kudra.

Oct 7, 1964

Dear Sir; Call me anytime and we'll have a Beer together.

This is the start of a letter to a dangerous thief . . .

. . . a thief who broke into a Victoria home in June, stealing cash and family heirlooms worth thousands of dollars.

. . . a thief who held a butcher's knife to the owner's back and threatened:

"I'll kill you if you make a sound."

Writer of the letter is 33-year-old trucking contractor Bali Kudra.

At his home, 750 Market Street, today, he said: "I'll do anything to get the jewelry back.

"My wife and I have been going out of our minds."

★ ★ ★

The jewelry, a hand-beaten gold Indian necklace and diamond-studded bracelet were taken from a safe drawer in the home while Mr. Kudra was locked in the bathroom.

The thief crept up behind Mr. Kudra as he put a wad of money just drawn from the bank into the safe.

"He stuck a knife in my back and told me not to make a sound.

"Then he took the money from the safe—over $2,500—and ordered me into the bathroom.

"I guess he must have gone back then and forced open the drawer containing the jewelry."

Both pieces are over 100 years old. They were smuggled out of India on the last armed train to Karachi during the Hindu-Moslem uprisings.

★ ★ ★

Said Mr. Kudra's attractive wife, Shahnawaz, 28: "My mother risked her life to get the family heirlooms out of the country.

"The rear half of the train on which she travelled was uncoupled and everyone on it slaughtered."

The jewelry, which had been tied around her mother's waist, was split up among the family when she reached freedom.

It had been kept locked in the safe at home since the couple married in Victoria in 1957.

Said Mr. Kudra: "It was absolutely priceless to us. We've just got to get it back."

The couple is still keeping the theft a secret from Mrs. Kudra's mother in Hong Kong.

★ ★ ★

In a desperate bid to have the heirlooms returned they earlier offered $2,000 reward.

A mystery caller phoned this week to say he had the necklace and bracelet.

Said Mr. Kudra: "Whoever it was must have been the thief. He identified both pieces down to the last detail and said he was willing to do a swap."

The man rang off when a clicking noise in the receiver interrupted the conversation.

His parting words were: "You're having this call tapped. Now I'm going to destroy the jewelry."

★ ★ ★

In a last-minute effort to prevent the jewels being destroyed forever, Mr. Kudra wrote a letter to the anonymous caller.

He addressed the letter to the Victoria Times with a note: "Please help me."

The letter, beginning "Dear Sir," invites the thief to call at Mr. Kudra's home for a beer to arrange a swap.

"I'll give this man $2,500 if he just returns the jewelry," said Mr. Kudra.

"I'm not worried about the money or seeing him punished any more. Just as long as this property is returned."

The letter closes—

Yours Sincerely,
Bali Kudra

RULES NOT CLEAR

Uvic Student Scores Federal Loan Policy

Some University of Victoria students are finding it hard to get federal education loans because the policy is unclear.

One student, who did not wish to be identified, pointed out that applicants who have failed a course the year previous stand less chance of getting federal aid than those with a straight pass.

Yet, such students may have the greatest need for a loan.

Such details are not spelled out in brochures on the Canada Student Loans Plan, which is administered in B.C. by a provincial committee headed by University of B.C. Dean Walter Gage.

Dean Gage has the ultimate decision on who is recommended for a loan, but he relies partly on information forwarded to him. In the case of Uvic applicants, Dr. W. H. Hickman interviews applicants and advises Dean Gage.

Policy, generally, is the same as that applied to the provincial loans system, Dr. Hickman said.

NEED RECOMMENDATION

"I think Dean Gage would agree that policy should be a little clearer . . . But someone has to make the recommendation; the government can't do it," Dr. Hickman said.

The federal brochure on loans states as final eligibility factors:

"An authority named by a provincial government must consider that your academic and other qualifications indicate every likelihood of success in your proposed training program and that the loan is justified on the grounds of financial need."

"We try to be just," Dr. Hickman explained.

NO SET RULE

There are no hard, fast rules on academic qualifications, he said, and a student who had failed a subject, for example, would not be out of the running for a loan.

"We would say that a person who has failed his year would be out.

"We try to find out as much as we can about his academic ability and financial need.

"If a student makes a good case for himself, then he would stand a better chance. But Dean Gage is the one who makes the final decision," said Dr. Hickman.

Woman-Slapping Robber Handed 18-Month Term

Eirven Spill, who told police he was worried where his next meal would come from, was sentenced Tuesday to 18 months in jail.

The slight, heavily bearded man had pleaded guilty to robbery with violence.

Spill, 33, was mentally fit to stand trial, a psychiatrist told city police court.

He slapped a woman clerk five times while taking $7 from her till at Jimmy Little's Store, 2017 Quadra, last week.

CAMPUS WITH CONTINUITY

Black and white geometry of a new university's first perthant buildings was etched by brilliant fall sunshine this week in a series of photos shot by Michael B. Long.

Biggest, most impressive facade is shown by picture at top left, its precast concrete slabs making McPherson Library dominate northern end of what will be planted quadrangle. Above are the regular shapes of three-storey women's residences, located to the rear of the library across campus ring road.

PUBLICITY BUREAU

Warm Response

Commissioner Alan Maclean's plan to change the name of Victoria Visitors Bureau seems to be drawing favorable reaction.

He wants the group renamed the Greater Victoria Publicity Bureau.

"I have had no official discussions yet," he said Tuesday.

"But in talking unofficially some think the broadest representation of the area is worthwhile."

He said he plans to submit his idea to the executive committee next month which would, if it approves, send it to the directors.

But if the idea gets the nod from directors, it will go before the annual meeting for approval.

Turkey Imports Rise As Controls Lifted

Thanksgiving is still a major marketing time for turkeys, although the feast birds are rapidly finding their way on to every bill of fare.

From January to mid-September of this year Canada produced 4,000,000 more pounds of turkey than in the same period last year, and imported another 8,000,000 pounds from the United States.

During the same period last year Canada produced 54,591,000 pounds, but imported only 650,575.

Of the 8,114,372 pounds imported this year, 3,159,000 pounds were live birds, 4,862,000 were dressed and 100,000 pounds of turkey parts.

The increase in imports is a result of controls being lifted by the federal government at the beginning of this year. The controls were imposed six years ago to assist the Canadian poultry industry.

It was anticipated the heavy imports would create a surplus, but poultry commissioner Harry Pope said at present there is only the normal quantity in storage.

Some Canadian producers have put a brake on their production in anticipation of a surplus. But Mr. Pope said "they may not be in as tough a spot as they thought they'd be."

Producer prices this year are 25 to 27 cents a pound, a half cent higher than last year.

Retail prices are 39 to 49 cents a pound for eviscerated birds and 50 to 65 cents for fresh fowl.

Farewells Set for Landymores

A dinner and a reception will be held for Rear Admiral W. M. Landymore, flag officer Pacific Coast, for the last two years, who leaves Oct. 26 for a new appointment.

Officers of the command will hold a farewell mess dinner in the wardroom of HMCS Naden Oct. 21.

The next day, officers and their wives will have a farewell reception for Rear Admiral and Mrs. Landymore in the wardroom.

He has been appointed flag officer Atlantic Coast and takes up that position Nov. 16.

He joined the navy as a cadet in 1936 and during the Second World War served on the destroyers HMCS Fraser, Restigouche and Margaree.

His successor is Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, chief of naval personnel at headquarters in Ottawa for the last two years. He arrives here Oct. 23.

Rear Admiral Stirling, a native of Kelowna, joined the navy in 1933 as a cadet and served with a British destroyer flotilla and at naval headquarters during the last war.

Strike Settled

VANCOUVER (CP)—Settlement was announced in a Vancouver labor dispute which at one time threatened to erupt into violence. Teamsters' Union leader Ed Lawson said that the employees of the D. S. Scott Transport Company won the right for union recognition.

An Angry Welcome for a Queen

When Queen Elizabeth arrives in Quebec next Saturday to begin her tour of Canada, she will be protected by a $100,000 armored car and shielded by more than 3,000 police — including a special anti-terrorist squad sent up from Montreal. Why do these elaborate precautions seem necessary to protect the life of the British sovereign? The name of the trouble, according to this week's Saturday Evening Post, is separatisme — the vigorous and passionate movement demanding full independence for Quebec. Pierre Bourgault, leader of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale (RIN), has announced plans for a huge demonstration against the Queen as a "foreign sovereign." Prime Minister Lester Bowles Pearson is working hard to find a compromise that will avert any disturbance. What are the odds against him? Why has the movement for independence grown so powerful in Quebec during recent years? What chance is there that an independent Quebec might seek to become a part of the United States? Read "An Angry Welcome for a Queen," a detailed report on the French revolt that threatens Canada, in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

. . . Just As If They'd Never Quarreled

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
(Last of Three Articles)

PARIS—President de Gaulle excluded Britain from the European Economic Community but he could not exclude it from the broader community of Europe. Nor did he wish to. The great realist may have erred gravely in his calculation of world power but he never made the mistake of supposing that Britain was expendable.

Hutchison

While it might be unwilling for the present, to pay the required entrance fee of the purely European club called the Common Market—that is to say, the abandonment of its special relationship with the Commonwealth and the United States—nevertheless Britain remained as a pivotal centre of European strategy, both economic and military.

This fact, deplorable as it might be to a true European, was recognized by De Gaulle not long ago in a sudden initiative largely overlooked by North Americans. Today Britain and France are working jointly on the development of a new air-to-ground missile, just as if they had never quarreled about the Common Market. Such a project, arranged without the least fanfare, has incalculable possibilities for the future and, of itself, cuts straight through the notion that Europe can ever be split on the English Channel for essential purposes.

At the moment only a conventional missile, to be carried by bomber planes, is under study. But once it is perfected it can easily be equipped with nuclear war heads made in France or Britain, or both. And once the British and French scientists have learned to work together, exchanging their secret know-how, they can then take the next step and build long-range, ground-to-ground missiles like those of the United States and Russia.

Naturally enough, during an election campaign, the implications of this deal are played down and little is heard of them in Britain.

The Conservative government, standing for Britain's "independent" deterrent, is unlikely to emphasize its new technical ties with the unpopular French government. The Labor party, promising to scrap the deterrent altogether, and losing votes on this policy, has no wish to expand the argument by discussing a prickly issue. It is highly doubtful, however, that a Labor government would cancel the missile contract with France.

Here, as in so many other areas of strategy and business, technological forces and the daily habits of human beings simply override the public policies of governments, integrating Europe and Britain almost invisibly day by day, no matter what the statesman may say.

The queer and little-noted phenomenon of Britain and France making missiles together while they wrangle about economic policy is only one aspect of the big strategic crunch immediately ahead of NATO.

Like the British government, President Johnson does not wish to complicate his own election campaign by military debate, but if he is elected in November he will turn immediately to foreign affairs and certainly will demand a showdown on the basic U.S. initiative called the Multilateral Force.

Political Reason

This controversial scheme—invented less for military than for political reasons and mainly to give Germany a sense of participation in nuclear deterrence—can be suspended until after the British and U.S. elections, but not much longer.

As it stands now, the MLF has been accepted only by the United States and Germany, has been flatly rejected by France and has received no decision by Britain.

The United States has little doubt, however, that Germany will bring some or most of her European NATO partners into the mix-manned crews of vessels equipped with Polaris missiles because they could not afford to stay out and isolate themselves.

The same is true of Britain, in the U.S. view, whatever the election result this month.

In short, the MLF is going ahead and it threatens to split NATO down the middle, with some of its members in the new nuclear partnership and some not. This prospect must post grave and special problems for Canada.

Up to now the Canadian government has said that it will not join the MLF since its military resources already are spread too thinly, but this tentative policy may not stand up to hard examination.

Needs Voice

How can Canada afford to be a loyal member of NATO and yet have no voice in decisions (possibly of life and death) made by the other members in the MLF? That question must be faced in Ottawa when the electoral dust has settled in London and Washington. Probably some typically Canadian compromise can be arranged, whereby Canada will spend little on the MFL, only a token contribution, but will be given the voting rights of membership.

All these plans, however they turn out, conflict directly with De Gaulle's grand strategy which, by seeking to build a third world force in Europe, vainly deny the facts of international power as they stand at present anyway. France can reject MLF but cannot stop Germany and other European nations from joining it. Here, as elsewhere, De Gaulle is dangerously isolating France because the foundation of his grand strategy has crumbled already. In its military, though not its economic aspects, the French-German marriage has ended, after a brief honeymoon, in separation, if not divorce.

That is one of the several reasons why De Gaulle turns to

POMPIDOU
. . . in master's image

Britain as a special partner in a specific military initiative despite his hostility to all "Anglo Saxons." The great realist is hedging his bets.

Looking far ahead, he undoubtedly hopes that co-operation between Paris and London in the creation of a new joint missile, or missiles, may lead to much larger results, possibly some day to a joint British-French, or even to a broadly European nuclear force de frappe independent of the massive U.S. and Russian deterrents.

Influence

These are long-run calculations, or miscalculations. Meanwhile (as in his South American tour) De Gaulle is seeking influence, through a vague and genial French "presence," wherever he can.

All his little psychological bridgeheads, flimsy as they appear, are designed to dilute the power of the two world giants and all of them represent what De Gaulle regards as France's historic mission in the family of mankind. For this extraordinary country believes that it is indeed the core of Western civilization, that it offers man gifts of mind and heart beyond the reach of any competitor. And in De Gaulle it has found, for the time being, the perfect symbol of its universal destiny as the true champions of free peoples everywhere.

For the time being, yes, but how long is that? De Gaulle's time on the stage must be short and, as an uncrowned king, he has arranged no sure succession. He has fashioned the presidency of France in such gigantic dimensions that it fits no man except him. His greatest single mistake, as his numerous French critics see it, was to diminish and almost destroy the legislature and make the executive all-powerful — a mistake carefully avoided by the makers of the U.S. constitution.

As a result, the departure of de Gaulle, with his unique stature and mystique, must be followed by a return to the former political chaos which he alone could cure, or by the emergence of another elected dictator, assuming that any such man can be found.

If Prime Minister Pompidou, De Gaulle's heir-apparent, can take over his mission he will try to maintain it in the master's image but without the master's magic.

On the other hand—the nightmare now haunting the muffled but thinking men of France—another sort of future president could use his office, with all its far-reaching power, to reverse the mission in a violent swing to the extreme right or left, with terrible consequences to the nation and its allies.

De Gaulle has given much to his people but when he goes he will leave behind him a frightening vacuum in the heartland of Europe.

Singers Not Separatists

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A group of French-speaking folk singers and dancers here to perform for the Queen, were mistaken for Separatist demonstrators, when they went out for an evening stroll Monday night.

About 20 members of the Les Feux-Follets, most of them from Montreal, found themselves being trailed by police when they went out sight-seeing in downtown Charlottetown.

The press centre for the royal visit here received reports from pedestrians that the youngsters were "chanting slogans in French."

THE LIMITS OF INTIMACY

Is it "being honest" or just selfish and immature to confess unfaithfulness to your husband, or wife? Confession might be "good for your soul," but what right have you, asks one author, to transfer your pain to someone close to you? Oak Bay Wants to Clip Wings Of Model Airplane Fans

By MARGE GILROY

Flying model airplanes is a sport that attracts children to parks throughout the world, but in Oak Bay there are some residents who want the sport restricted.

They object to the noise.

In an effort to pacify the objections the Oak Bay recreation commission recommended to council Monday night that the flying hours be restricted. The commission suggested the hours be set between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday to Saturday and that no planes be allowed to fly on Sunday.

GET TOGETHER

Having just passed an anti-noise bylaw, council recommended that club members present their side of the issue to the recreation commission to see if they would reconsider their proposed restrictions.

The anti-noise bylaw states that no person within the municipality shall make or cause any noise which disturbs the peace and quiet of the neighborhood, but there is no specific reference to model airplanes.

If the hours are to be restricted, a new bylaw or amendment to the present one would have to be adopted.

Protesting the recommendation, Robert Redden, president of the Victoria Model Airplane Club, requested that council extend these hours to 8 p.m. on weekdays and 1 to 5 p.m. Sundays.

WHAT ABOUT MOWERS?

He told council that the noise of a model airplane was 97 decibels, compared to 87 decibels produced by a power lawn mower, and there had been no attempt to restrict people from mowing their lawns.

Ken Nishikawara, area production superintendent for B.C. Hydro, also spoke in defence of the club.

He said it was an interesting, challenging and educational sport and if the bylaws in Oak Bay became too restrictive all they would do was chase the boys into city parks.

The club has been in operation since 1936 when then mayor Percy George donated 12 trophies for city championships, held annually every year since except during the war years.

YOUNG AND OLD

Constructing and flying the model planes with internal combustion engines is a hobby and sport which attracts both young and old, said Doug Collis, a director of the Model Aeronautics Association of Canada and a teacher at Mount View High School.

He said in many cities throughout the world parks have been set aside as model airplane ports. In Victoria the boys have recently been flying regularly on the playground of Lansdowne Junior High School.

Student Borrowing 'Poor Substitute'

Borrowing money for university education is a poor substitute for adequate financial support, ex-student president Larry Devlin said Tuesday.

"There is growing opinion on the board of governors (of University of Victoria) that students should borrow the money," said Devlin, who presented the board with results of a student means survey conducted over the past six months.

The thinking is that "each year of university is worth so much money and you should borrow it from the loan money available.

WITHIN MEANS

"But borrowing is a poor substitute for adequate financial support. One should live within one's means," Devlin said.

Growing opinion by governors was given voice by Uvic Chancellor J. B. Clearihue, who told the annual meeting of school trustees in Vancouver that students prepared to buy autos on the instalment plan should be ready to pay for higher education the same way.

"Learn now, pay later," was the theme expressed by the chancellor, who pointed out students pay less than a third of the actual cost of attending university.

PROMISORY NOTES

Universities could be provided with more revenue, including scholarship money, by means of promisory notes taken out by students for five years, interest-free, he said.

He suggested $100 notes be added to fees.

Devlin replied:

"I haven't seen any students buying cars on the instalment plan. Those they have are pretty disgraceful — just four wheels and a frame—but quite necessary to them because of poor public transportation and the split campus."

He said Uvic students may join University of B.C. students to seek from the education minister some improvement on provincial borrowing arrangements or the "money for marks" plan.

BOARD RECEPTIVE

Results of the means survey shown to governors Monday were to be published later this week.

"The board was very receptive to what we had to say, whether they agreed with it or not," the spokesman said.

Court Bans Payers During Tax Inquiries

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Bill of Rights does not grant taxpayers the right to be present at inquiries at which their financial affairs are being investigated by officers of the revenue department, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Tuesday.

The court made the decision in a judgement granting an appeal by the revenue department against Quebec Court judgments ruling that Rene Lafleur of Montreal had that right.

Pseudo Witch-Hunting Scored By Uvic Council

A blow for freedom of speech was struck Sunday by University of Victoria student councillors who rapped an MP for his pseudo-witch-hunting.

Council passed a resolution instructing that a letter be sent to Kenenth More (PC—Regina), who questioned the admission to Canada of Russian economist A. B. Nicolaev, who was taken on University of Saskatchewan Regina faculty for the current session.

Students of U Sask. said More was interferring in university affairs and with academic freedom.

Uvic council said it supports the Regina students and the right of Nicolaev to teach there.

A Uvic AMS spokesman said council wanted to "nip in the bud any infringement on freedom of speech."

A U Sask statement said it is axiomatic of a university that students be placed in a position where they might develop critical faculties.

Uvic Biologist 'Fishes' From Whirlybird Perch

By AB KENT

University of Victoria biologist Dr. Derek Ellis went fishing by helicopter Saturday in the opening phase of a marine life-pollution survey off Gordon Head.

His gear consisted of twin cameras mounted on a pole slung under a Vancouver Island Helicopters Ltd. craft.

It was believed the first such survey using a low-flying craft on this coast.

Dr. Ellis said today the results are still being processed, but if the first step is successful, the next could have large-scale application, perhaps to pollution control, commercial shell fishing or public recreation.

"If it has academic value, we'd certainly be interested," commented a government source relating to the provincial pollution control board.

17 MM CAMERAS

Dr. Ellis said two 17 mm cameras were used to take stereoscopic pictures of about one mile of beaches between Telegraph Bay and a point north of Cordova Bay.

A total 200 feet of film was used, representing low water conditions from altitudes of 200 and 400 feet.

Fine weather was an advantage, Dr. Ellis said. There were only four possible days of extreme low tide during daylight hours at this time of year, with the next favorable period occurring about mid-1965.

"It is hoped the photographs obtained will permit assessment of the relative extent of distribution of various marine organisms on the beaches of Vancouver Island's southeastern tip," Dr. Ellis said.

Subsequent value could lie in monitoring the effect of marine pollution and other oceanographic conditions on beaches, he said.

MANY PURPOSES

"Many of these have recreation and commercial value, and a monitoring technique based directly on shore conditions will be valuable for many purposes," Dr. Ellis said.

Such monitoring would have to be repeated at regular intervals, he suggested.

The survey tried to relate intertidal conditions to local water mass movement and general oceanography of the Pacific Northwest.

Earlier this year, the pollution control board initiated the first conventional aerial survey of some five to seven miles of Cordova Bay to study tidal currents.

These photos were taken using forestry department resources and have been found to be relatively successful for study of currents.

Dr. Banks has occupied several important offices in organized medicine in B.C. and has also served the Canadian Medical Association on several national committees.

New Forest Fight Faces Williston

By FRANK RUTTER

A new battle for harvesting rights to B.C. forests is shaping up—and Forests Minister Ray Williston is going to have to come up with a truce plan in January.

The battleground is a huge area stretching from Squamish to Quesnel and out to the west coast of the lower mainland.

Three major forest industry giants are involved. Rayonier, Canadian Collieries and a B.C.-Quebec alliance of Union Pulp and Paper and Price Bros.

They are all vitally concerned with the right to take timber for pulp mills.

EXPANSION STARTED

Rayonier has already started expansion of its Woodfibre plant on the lower mainland in anticipation of the timber it seeks.

Union-Price are planning a $60 million pulp mill at Squamish.

A third firm, Weldwood of Canada Ltd., is reported planning to apply for timber rights to serve another mill in the same area.

Canadian Collieries is involved because it already has a Squamish operation and is connected with Weldwood.

In addition its Western Plywood has a plant at Quesnel.

The whole tangle is right on Mr. Williston's doorstep. He represents the riding of Fort George, which runs south to Quesnel, in the provincial legislature.

He said Monday that he will hold public hearings during the first week of January to discuss the situation.

Happy Birthday Dear . . .

Children's Theatre productions of Bastion Theatre Studio, opening Saturday with Three Little Pigs by Vancouver playwright Ralph Kendall, will have a birthday atmosphere.

During its first season of children's productions, Bastion Theatre found that many parents booked seats as a birthday treat for their children and friends. The youngsters always got a thrill out of being asked to come forward after the show, while cast and audience sang "Happy Birthday."

This season, it will be more of a party than ever, with balloons and ice cream, and no doubt, even more parents will find it an ideal way of celebrating a birthday.

Youngsters can be left to enjoy the party and the play, while mother is free to shop or relax for an hour on a Saturday afternoon.

There will be two matinees at Oak Bay Junior High auditorium at 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

The Three Little Pigs, based on the children's favorite story of the pigs and the wolf, is directed by Peter Mannering.

TARGET: HIT-RUN SALESMAN

Vancouver Island hearing aid outlets have banded together to regulate their industry.

Humphrey Golby, of Victoria, elected president of the Vancouver Island Hearing Aid Dealers' Association this week, said the purpose is to "set procedures of ethical practice."

The group was designed to prevent "hit and run sales people coming to town with no follow up or establishment."

Stringent legislation had been introduced in such places as California to prevent this, he said.

"Rather than have this come up, the association is trying to clean house under its own steam," he said.

"To offset compulsory regulation, hearing aid dealers are going to regulate themselves."

Similar moves are being made in Vancouver to bring about a B.C. council to regulate the industry, he said.

When confirmation is received from dealers in Port Alberni and Courtenay, there will be 100 per cent representation on the Island.

Other officials elected, all from Victoria, were B. S. H. Tye, vice-president; R. D. Munson, secretary, and K. F. McLaren and T. Emes, directors.

Dallas Jail Breaker Draws 50-Year Term

DALLAS (AP)—Charles David Gregory, who led a mass break from Dallas county jail during the Jack Ruby murder trial, drew 50 years in prison Tuesday for his part in an $8,000 holdup at a supermarket.

Gregory, who broke jail March 6, brandished a pistol carved from soap and forced a court clerk to walk with him past spectators opposite the courtroom where Ruby was on trial. An unarmed deputy sheriff seized Gregory outside.

NATIONALIZATION OF CPR URGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labour called Tuesday for nationalization of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Delegates approved a resolution which said bringing the privately-owned CPR and publicly-owned Canadian National under one government body would cut costs, eliminate duplication and increase service.

Delegates passed a second resolution calling for nationalization of all telephone companies in B.C., including the largest, B.C. Telephone Company of Vancouver.

Telephone companies are reaping "vast profits" but telephone rates are still rising, said the motion.

PARLIAMENT

Farm Machine Bill Passed

OTTAWA (CP)—Amid an outburst of old-fashioned sock-'em Prairie politics, the Commons passed a major farm bill and gave first reading to a second Tuesday.

A hard-fought debate spanning seven sitting days ended abruptly when final approval was given unanimously to a bill providing for government loans of up to $100,000 to syndicates of three or more farmers who wish to buy and use farm machinery on a joint basis.

The measure now goes to the Senate, which resumes sittings next Tuesday after a month-long recess.

The Commons also passed a resolution leading to the introduction of amendments to the Crop Insurance Act of 1959. The changes would give added federal financial backing to provincial crop insurance plans.

Spokesmen for various parties agreed that the new legislation likely will encourage more provinces to enter the crop insurance field and extend coverage to many more farmers.

So far only three provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island — have set up crop insurance pilot projects. About 6,000 out of the 400,000 farmers in Canada were covered by crop insurance at last count. All were Prairie farmers except for 75 potato growers in P.E.I.

ACCUSE MR. HAYS

Conservative MPs livened up the proceedings by accusing Agriculture Minister Hays of being "bull-headed" and of trying to destroy the Prairie Farm Assistance Administration.

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) charged that the former Conservative government meddled in PFAA operations just before the 1963 election and gave the agency an undeserved reputation as "a political pork barrel."

Jack McIntosh (PC — Swift Current-Maple Creek) accused Mr. Olson of having "deliberately started a smear campaign" against himself.

The Conservative MP again criticized Judge Harold Pope of Moose Jaw, who conducted a judicial inquiry into PFAA last spring and reported that irregularities and Conservative "pressure" came into play in the 1963 campaign in the Swift Current area.

Mr. McIntosh said politics played a part in the inquiry. Not a single irregularity had been proven and Judge Pope had made "ridiculous allegations."

Mr. Olson and Mr. McIntosh agreed on one point. They attacked a clause in the crop insurance bill that will reduce the coverage of PFAA. Under this clause, farms insured under the new program would be removed automatically from the PFAA coverage.

'WILL DESTROY PFAA'

Mr. McIntosh commented: "This is a move to destroy the PFAA. This is the thin edge of the wedge to do away with PFAA."

Mr. Olson and Earle Gundlock (PC — Lethbridge) said PFAA has functioned well for 25 years and should not be replaced by a new crop insurance plan that is largely untried and uncertain.

(PFAA levies fees from all farmers who make deliveries to the wheat board and pays benefits to farmers hit by crop failures.)

Mr. Hays replied that it would take "a very long time" before crop insurance plans replaced PFAA on the Prairies.

"If this resolution were to replace the PFAA, all the areas would have to be under crop insurance," he said.

A government spokesman said outside the Commons later that Prairie Conservatives let the farm machinery bill go through at 6 p.m. EDT mainly because they did not want to miss the Regina-Ottawa Canadian Football League game at Lansdowne Park Tuesday night. Ottawa won 27-3.

$350 Million Traffic Plan Unveiled

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Los Angeles research group Tuesday night unveiled a proposed $350,000,000 system of freeways and bridges to carry traffic in and out of the city for the next 20 years.

The report, prepared for the city by the Stanford Research Institute and Wilbur Smith and Associates, called for construction of five complete freeway systems and three new bridges, including a new bridge paralleling the traffic-congested Lions Gate crossing to North and West Vancouver.

The report also proposed immediate development of a rapid bus transit system to augment the freeway system during rush hours.

The researchers estimated the cost at about $17,000,000 over a period of 20 years.

They predicted the metropolitan population would climb from the present 790,000 to 1,250,000 by 1981 and said the freeway and bridge system is needed to avoid congestion and unnecessarily high costs of urban transportation.

RCMP Link Palm-Print To Accused

A full bottle of beer found near the scene of an alleged beating bore the palm-print of one of two men accused of attempted murder, an RCMP corporal said Tuesday.

Cpl. Robert King, a finger-print expert, was testifying at a preliminary hearing into the attempted murder charge against Gary McWhirter and Rodney Leason.

They are charged in connection with the bottle beating of Nicola Zegarie, 24, Flin Flon, on Sept. 10.

Cpl. King testified he found a partial palm print on a full beer bottle found at the scene of the incident near Prospect Lake.

Later he fingerprinted McWhirter, and identified the print on the bottle as being of the accused.

PRINT CLEAR

"In places, the print on the bottle was clear," said the corporal.

"In other places, the ridges were flattened out, indicating the bottle was gripped firmly."

Under cross-examination by lawyer Robert Price, Cpl. King said it is possible the flattening of the ridges might be caused by some other means — like pounding the bottle with the open hand.

Cpl. King produced a chart indicating 20 points of similarity between the print found on the bottle and the sample taken from McWhirter.

He said the RCMP usually accept 15 points of similarity as proof of a palm print.

LAST WITNESS

Cpl. King was the last of several expert witnesses called by Saanich prosecutor K. C. Murphy.

Three more witnesses are to be heard this afternoon, and it is hoped the hearing will be concluded today.

Saanich detectives Ron Coulter and George Walton corroborated earlier police testimony.

And city police Cons. Edward James told of Zegaric's brush with the law the night before he was beaten.

'HYSTERICAL'

He said Zegaric came into the police charge office about 10:25 p.m., intoxicated and apparently hysterical.

He was shouting that his girl friend had been raped.

When police took him back to the scene of the alleged rape, he broke down completely "and went berserk," said Cons. James.

"He was sobbing, and the tears were running down his face," said Cons. James.

He said Zegaric was arrested for intoxication in a public place.

The girl involved, a 15-year-old from Burnaby, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and examined.

When she was told that test results were negative, she repudiated an earlier story she told police that two men raped her in Stevenson Park.

B.C. Teachers Underpaid: Professor

VANCOUVER CP)—A University of British Columbia professor has told the B.C. School Trustees' Association that top teachers in the province are underpaid.

In a report prepared for the trustees' annual convention, Prof. Noel Hall said average teachers are well paid under the present salary structure, but top teachers don't get enough money.

The report recommends the institution of merit pay for teachers, and that professional development committees made up of representatives of trustees and teachers in each district should be formed to evaluate teacher performance.

The report, tabled for study at the 60th annual convention, said the "existing salary system is only half a system."

"Where is the incentive for excellence for encouraging outstanding performance; for rewarding the individual who is not content with the average performance?

"There are indications that the general public has reached the upper tolerance limit with respect to teachers' salaries."

The merit system proposed by the report would enable 15 to 20 per cent of the teaching force to earn $600 to $1,200 above the scale for their level of certification and experience.

The report found that average salaries for B.C. teachers are the highest in Canada. It showed the average in B.C. is $5,466 compared with a national average of $4,522.

Mothers Live With Frustration

TORONTO (CP)—Too little attention is being paid to the plight of intelligent women confined to the "diaper prison" and bored with their lives as wives and mothers, says a doctor in Vernon, B.C.

Dr. M. Lattey, in a letter in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, says "too little attention has been paid to the effects of frustration on women with highly developed intellectual capacities.

"I believe that such frustrations can be potent sources of emotional illness. Unless we recognize this development in our patients, some of the best women in our society will fail to develop to the full and will become casualties to outmoded ideas."

Dr. Lattey says these women share a similar background. They have good brains and education and before marriage had interesting jobs.

After marriage the demands of caring for a home and children "may satisfy her reproductive instincts but fail to satisfy the requirements of her intellectual abilities.

"It is no use trying to make these women accept the role of being 'only a housewife.' They have already attempted this and found it wanting. They find housework and the sole company of small children lonely and boring. These women need work to challenge their abilities."

Concentrate On 'Job'

Education chairman, Mrs. G. Love, gave "job" as the word of the day when the Arbutus Toastmistress Club met in the Blue Room with Mrs. R. S. Butt presiding.

Mrs. G. Cook introduced table topic, "The Little Red School House." Those participating were Mrs. D. Pite, Mrs. A. Clarkson, Mrs. Love, Mrs. H. J. Wende and Mrs. H. Kerr. Topicmistress, Mrs. G. Cook, received the oscar for this assignment.

Toastmistress, Miss Hattie Jewell introduced Mrs. D. Kennedy, Mrs. H. Winstone, Mrs. R. J. Doore and Mrs. S. McCulloch. They all spoke on "Education Through Toastmistress."

Mrs. J. Gillis gave a lesson on evaluation.

Evaluators were: Mrs. T. F. Howe, Mrs. Love, Mrs. E. R. Ashbridge, Mrs. A. Blake, Mrs. G. Shepard, Mrs. D. L. Campbell, Mrs. F. Dearman and Mrs. W. Howes. Mrs. Doore won the spur for being the most improved speaker.

Mrs. H. L. Brigham was timer and closing thought was given by Mrs. C. H. Dowling.

Members agreed to attend the next meeting of the newly-formed Madrona Toastmistress Club and to assist in the group's program.

Guests attending the meeting were Mrs. P. Small, Mrs. P. Robinson, Mrs. M. Relling and Mrs. G. F. Campbell.

PRESENTED AT CEREMONY

Highest 4-H Award Goes To Linnet Lannon

History was made in the 4-H world, Sunday, when Miss Linnet Lannon became the first member in the Southern Vancouver Island District to receive the organization's highest ward, a sterling silver 4-H honorary pin.

In order to qualify, Miss Lannon had completed and passed with a 75 per cent average, all projects, including clothing, judging, dress review and wardrobe management.

Supervisor of 4-H clubs of British Columbia, Sig Peterson, made the award at an awards day tea, held by the Saanich 4-H Home Arts Club in St. Stephen's Hall, at Mount Newton Cross-road.

Mrs. W. S. Buchanan presented the Lake Hill Women's Institute's trophy for senior achievement, to Kris Andrews. She also received four clothing certificates and a 4-H medal, these being presented by Ken Jameson, district agriculturist. Two medals entitle a member to an honorary pin. Kris Andrews also won the Sidney Kinnettes dress review trophy, this being presented by Mrs. Gerry Flint.

The Royal Oak Women's Institute trophy went to Heather Lord, this being presented by Gordon Landon, department of agriculture.

Mrs. Bruce Borden (nee Karen Cronk) presented Selena Kelly with the Karen Cronk judging trophy. Kathy Smethurst received the home design trophy from the club leader, Mrs. K. Cronk.

Presentation of achievement envelopes containing ribbons and prize money was made by Mr. Jameson. Two outstanding members to receive purple ribbons were Kris Andrews and Heather Lord. They both had earned more than 750 points out of a possible 800.

Fall flowers, autumn leaves and fruit decorated the hall for the occasion.

Guests were welcomed by the junior leaders of the club, Mary Lord and Kris Andrews. They included Mr. and Mrs. Sig Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Landon, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Jameson, Mrs. John Forge and Mrs. Flint, both of the club's sponsoring group, the Sidney Kinnettes; Mrs. Buchanan and Mrs. E. Glover, Lake Hill Women's Institute; Mrs. T. O'Reilly, 4-H Council, members' parents and friends.

In addition to the awards, a program was presented by the members. It included a speech by Miss Lannon, "My Trip to Newfoundland as a 4-H Delegate".

Nancy Miller explained a member's clothing project and Selena Kelly gave a talk, "What 4-H Means". An interesting demonstration, "Light Up Your Life", by Kathy Smethurst, showed guests how to make candles for all occasions.

Colleen Kelly and June Simmonds put on their demonstration, "Bulb Magic".

Following the program, tea was served by the members under the convenership of Mrs. Gladys Jack.

To complete the year's activities, a mother and daughter banquet will be held in Brentwood United Church Hall, on Friday.

Five years of membership in the Saanich 4-H Club culminated in Miss Linnet Lannon receiving the highest award available. She's seen here receiving the coveted sterling silver pin from Mr. Sig Peterson. (Photo by Dorothy E. Kennedy).

Ugly Back Bulge Now 'Thing of the Past'

By PENNY SAVER

When a large split appeared in Penny's skirt as she bent down the other day, she decided that the excess poundage would have to go! Exercise and diet would reduce it, but I needed something to make my tummy and posterior look trim while I lost or redistributed my weight. To help, I found stretch briefs which will keep you trim and slim yet still be comfortable.

These briefs are of a synthetic material which does the work of a girdle. For casual wear, under slacks, shorts or swimsuits, a girdle can sometimes be too tight or too hot.

This lightweight synthetic is machine-washable and dryable. If you wish to wear the garment under a skirt, garter tapes are attached for nylons. They come in black and white, sizes small, medium and large, and sell for $2.

Bras of the same synthetic material are in bikini style and leave "room at the top" for wear under a low-necked evening dress. The elasticized material is covered to allow only a certain amount of stretch. This means the bra will wear without sag or bag.

Material will mold a too-flat figure or flatten a too-molded figure. Bra is light, soft and comfortable.

If you are wearing a fashionable low-backed gown, bra comes with an attachment which, when sewed onto your girdle, can lower the back line and yet give you the support of a bra. It sells for $5.

The material resists body oils, perspiration and lctions which cause deterioration. Pin-holes, caused by the manufacturer when sewing the garment, will not tear.

If you want to lose that unsightly back view or wish to flatter your front view, call Penny at 382-3131 and she'll tell you where to shop.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Few People Ever Expect To Escape Dental Disease

Lowman

In a recent Public Affairs Committee pamphlet Judy Graves writes, "Dental disease, like the common cold, is a familar malady. Nobody expects to escape it and practically nobody does."

Perhaps this is the reason we take tooth trouble and tooth care so casually, and why we fail to recognize their importance. The following figures will show how many folks are guilty of carelessness. These are American statistics, but any other country with similar abundance and habits would reflect similar conditions.

Almost 100 million have untreated tooth decay. Sixty-eight million suffer from periodontal disease (gum disease). There are 21 million who are toothless, 23 million with malocclusion (improperly positioned teeth), and there are 23,000 new cases of oral cancer each year.

Of course care of the teeth is of the greatest importance for cosmetic reasons, but it also has a far reaching effect on health. As Mrs. Graves points out, dental health influences the health of the "eyes, kidneys, joints, and other parts of the body." People often recover from other diseases once dental disease is corrected.

Some very simple rules followed faithfully would save hundreds of thousands of persons much pain and expense. Here are a few of them.

1. Start each child on regular dental care as soon as all teeth have erupted.

2. Brush your teeth thoroughly after eating, especially every morning and night.

3. Follow the dentist's advice and have necessary preventive and repair work done as soon as possible.

4. Have each member of your family visit the dentist at least twice a year for examination and thorough prophylaxis.

5. Cut down on sweets and starchy foods, limiting them to mealtimes, especially for children.

These were taken from the Public Affairs Committee pamphlet.

To enlarge on these a bit, bacteria in the mouth work on carbohydrates to produce decay. Therefore brushing your teeth after eating, and particularly after eating sweets, will give you some protection from cavities. However this must be done immediately after a meal since the chemical reaction which produces decay occurs within minutes. If you cannot brush your teeth rinse your mouth out well with water.

Rose-Patterned Lace Bridal Gown Worn At Candlelight Ceremony

A gown of nylon rose-patterned lace was worn by Sharleen Gail Ashton when she exchanged marriage vows with Alec Royal Law. The skirt formed a slight train at the back and the bodice featured lily point sleeves. The scalloped neckline was highlighted by sequins. A three-tier finger-tip veil misted from a halo of roses with pearls set in tiny flowers.

Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace belonging to her grandmother. Red roses, surrounded by streamers starred with tiny roses, made up her bouquet.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ashton, 399 Fraser Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Elden Law of Sidney.

Rev. Howard Turpin officiated at the candlelight ceremony in Esquimalt United Church. The church was decorated with baskets of autumn flowers and the pews were marked with white carnations.

Mrs. Ruth Donnell played the organ and Mrs. B. Hannay sang "I'll Walk Beside You."

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Matron of honor, Mrs. R. Holt and briedsmaids, Misses Mary Tyson and Marguerite Ashton wore dresses of yellow nylon. Headpieces were halos of yellow roses edged in yellow veiling. They carried fans with red rose centres, yellow carnations and tulle.

Flower girl, Susan Ashton, wore a dress of yellow nylon. Her headpiece was feathered yellow carnations and she carried a basket of red roses and yellow carnations with yellow ribbon streamers.

Best man was J. Law, brother of the groom. Ushers were W. Buckle, cousin of the bride, and R. Holt. Junior usher was Glen Ashton, brother of the bride.

A three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, centred the bride's table at a reception held in the Club Sobo. Cake was decorated with yellow roses and topped with two doves. A white ribbon dotted with yellow roses trimmed the front of the table.

G. D. Buckle proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

For travelling on honeymoon, the bride donned a pink wool suit with black accessories.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. Webster, of Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. P. Tyson, Mr. and Mrs. H. Dean, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. C. Churchill of Port Angeles.

The couple will make their home at 825 Condor Avenue.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Grin And Bear Him!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very "clean" person so maybe I shouldn't complain, but every time he comes in from the yard, he washes his hands in the kitchen sink and dries them on my dish towel! I have complained in vain so many times that I have just stopped mentioning it. After he's dried his hands on the dish towel I throw it in the laundry and put out a fresh one. Last night he pulled a stunt that beat everything. Our little dog came to the back door with muddy feet, so my husband picked her up, stood her in the kitchen sink and washed her feet off! What do you do with a guy like that? M. O.

DEAR M. O.: Just love him! He sounds like a honey. What's a few more dish towels in the wash, and the small task of washing the sink when it's done in the interest of keeping the peace?

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a mother who would invite the neighborhood children to a birthday party for her little boy, place a big beautiful birthday cake in the centre of the table, and then serve eight wide-eyed, drooling children cupcakes? When one of the children asked why they didn't get any of the birthday cake, the mother said, "We are saving it for a family birthday party tonight." HEARD ABOUT IT.

DEAR HEARD: Poor woman! She didn't have sense enough to know that the birthday cake could not have been enjoyed nearly as much by the "family" as by those children.

DEAR ABBY: We are identical twins and we can sympathize with the twins who wrote to say how much they disliked being called "Twin" or "Twinny." Also, we agree, it is tiresome to have people look right at two people who look like two peas in a pod, dressed exactly alike, and then ask, "Are you twins?" My sister and I thought up a good answer. When someone asks, "Are you twins?" we reply, "No, we are triplets, but only two-thirds of us are here." TWINS IN FORESTVILLE, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of twins and I wish I had a dollar for every time a stranger asked me, "Are they twins?" I finally got so bored with that stupid question that I replied, "No. You see, I have two husbands." VIRGINIA

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a girl who has made just one mistake in her life should be married in white? THE GIRL

DEAR GIRL: No. Don't make two.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

When I tried on my overblouse after the facings were attached, the neck was too tight so I trimmed it out. Now since the seam allowance has been clipped and turned, it's too big. What can one do with a neck that is too large?

MRS. J. S.

Dear Mrs. J. S.:

I would suggest you remove the facing, cut a bias strip about 6 inches wide, finish the ends, fold in half and insert in neckline. This will form a soft, rolled collar that will fill in the neckline. After the collar has been stitched, finish neckline with the original facing.

BRACELETS TO CARRY WARNING

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Bracelets carrying warning symbols to identify victims of certain chronic diseases will soon be available to British Columbians.

Use of the distinctive bracelets, by patients with such diseases as epilepsy and diabetes, was endorsed Tuesday by the annual meeting of the B.C. Medical Association.

A universally-recognized medical symbol on the bracelet will alert doctors that the wearer suffers from a special medical problem which might endanger the patient's life if he is given improper treatment.

A card carried in the patient's wallet fills the doctor in on details of the disease.

Indian Loses Court Appeal On Dead Duck

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled Tuesday that Treaty Indians in the Northwest Territories do not have the right under a 1921 treaty with the federal government to shoot migratory birds out of season.

The court made this decision in rejecting an appeal by Treaty Indian Michael Sikyea, a member of the Yellowknife Band near Yellowknife NWT against his conviction for shooting a mallard duck out of season in May of 1962. He was fined $10 and court costs.

Sikyea was convicted of shooting the mallard unlawfully under the provisions of the Canada-United States Migratory Birds Convention Act.

His conviction was quashed by Mr. Justice J. H. Sissons of the Territorial Court of the Northwest Territories. Mr. Justice Sissons said the act deals with the indiscriminate slaughter of birds and has no application to treaty rights enjoyed by Indians to hunt for food.

REVERSED DECISION

However, Mr. Justice G. G. Johnson of the Territorial Appeal Court reversed this decision and restored the conviction. He said Indians "notwithstanding the rights given to them by their treaties are prohibited by this act and its regulations from shooting migratory birds out of season."

Mr. Justice Johnson said it is clear the rights given to the Indians by treaty as they apply to migratory birds have been taken away by this act and its regulations. He described this as an apparent breach of faith.

The Supreme Court of Canada in a judgment written by Mr. Justice Emmitt Hall, said it agrees with the reasons for judgment and the conclusions of Mr. Justice Johnson.

"He has dealt with the important issues fully and correctly in their historical and legal settings, and there is nothing which I can usefully add to what he has written," Mr. Justice Hall said.

THOMSON

'Quite Enough Papers'

LONDON (CP) — The Times says it believes Lord Thomson is "a beneficient force" in the newspaper world but "even if he were the archangel Gabriel, we would also believe he has quite enough papers in the United Kingdom already."

The newspaper was commenting in an editorial on the bid of the Canadian-born publisher to take over the George Outram group of Glasgow newspapers. Sir Hugh Fraser, department store millionaire made chairman of Outram to fight the Thomson attempt, Monday countered Thomson with an offer worth 24 shillings 2½ pence a share.

Thomson, whose last offer a week ago was estimated at 23 shillings, had made no comment on Sir Hugh's offer.

The Times says newspapers occupy "a place of their own" in community life and nothing has emerged "adequately to replace their function in the democratic process, or in the life of the nation as a whole."

"It is that aspect of the battle that has caused so many people in Glasgow and beyond to be concerned. Their concern is justified."

Lord Thomson "is a man to be admired" but "it cannot be right that, so long as there are two leading papers in Scotland, they should be in the same hands."

Outram owns the Glasgow Herald along with the mass-circulation Glasgow Evening Times and a string of weekly newspapers. Thomson already owns the Edinburgh Scotsman and controls Scottish Independent Television.

Appeal Award Presented To McCall's

For 100 per cent participation in the United Appeal Campaign's fair-share plan, McCall Bros., funeral directors, have been presented an award of excellence.

The firm's 17 employees have promised an average of $35.22 to the appeal fund in the coming year.

They are only the second Victoria firm to receive the award so far.

For the sixth year running, employees of Yarrows Ltd., have been presented a plaque award for over 80 per cent participation.

The shipbuilding firm's 760 employees have donated a total of $9,310.

CHURCH SUPPORT

Meanwhile, support for the campaign came Monday from the Victoria Council of Churches.

A statement of support signed by Archbishop Harold E. Sexton, the council's president and by Monseigneur M. T. O'Connell, for Bishop Remi De Roo, of the Roman Catholic Church, was received by appeal director Don Lawson.

The message read: We are glad of the opportunity to endorse the community chest and hope that the appeal will meet with the success it undoubtedly deserves."

Yates St. Lot Suggested For Carpark

A petition signed by 35 merchants and headed by former Victoria mayor Percy B. Scurrah today requested the city to purchase the 700 Yates Street parking lot for a proposed parking building.

The petition is prompted by city plans to buy a flat parking lot on Johnson Street with a view to constructing a building on the site at a later date.

On behalf of the Yates Street Merchants, Mr. Scurrah recommended the city purchase the 700 block parking lot on the grounds that there is an access to Yates.

"Figures show that this lot is used approximately 10 times as often as the city View Street parkade," he said. "We feel that the 700 parking lot, presently in use, be purchased.

BOTH SIDES

If the city decides there must must be an entrance from Pandora Avenue to the parking building, Mr. Scurrah suggested that the city also purchase the property opposite the 700 block.

The parking building could then be constructed on both sides of Johnson Street and connected by a bridge.

Tolerance Urged on RCs

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican ecumenical council voted approval Tuesday of an unprecedented new program of common prayer and public meetings between Roman Catholics and other Christians.

The council, a gathering of Catholic prelates from around the world, agreed that Catholics everywhere must undergo a "conversion of heart" toward others to further the goal on Christian unity.

SWINGIN' SQUARE SPIRIT SWEEPS IN NEW SEASON

By MARGE GILROY

Since the end of the Second World War, the number of swingin' pardners in Canada, and the world over, has been on the increase.

Square dancing can be traced back to the early country dances in England and to the more stately quadrilles of France. Settlers in North America brought the square dance with them and, ever since, the spirit of the old hoe-down could be found somewhere in the countryside.

Enthusiasm for the square dance as such waned at times, but never died. Then as the war ended the enthusiasm exploded and everywhere a small nuclei of square dance clubs began spreading out into the towns and the cities.

In Victoria Friday the Jeans 'n Bonnets will swing to the calls of Curly Crawford in St. Martins Church Hall and Silver Spurs will do-si-do in Royal Oak Hall with Jack Weber as caller.

Schedule for other club dances is as follows:

Saturday—B B Squares in All Saints Church Hall with Art and Joan Bolster; Country Cousins at Royal Oak Hall with Cam York; Frontier Twirlers at St. Paul's Church Hall with Archie Mair; Sidney Sadd-l-ites at Kinsmen Hall, Sidney, with Howie Eames; Triple C's at Colwood Hall with Fred Willing.

Monday—Ring-A-Rounders in St. Martin's Church Hall with Hud Graham.

Tuesday — Squarenaders in Royal Oak Hall with Howie Eames.

Wednesday—Rocking Squares at Colwood Hall with Fred Willing.

Classes in square dancing for adult beginners, juniors and teens, and a special round dancing class for adults is being given nightly in various halls in the district.

Schedule for adult square dancing classes is:

Monday—Colwood Hall at 8 p.m. with instructors Fred and Chris Willing; Mount Newton High School, 8 p.m. with Howie and Alie Eames; Jubilee Hall, 8 p.m., refresher course with Archie Mair.

Russ Women 'Liberated' By Day Nursery System

By MARGE GILROY

More than 700 day nurseries in Moscow make it possible for thousands of married women to join the labor force.

A Russian female neuro-surgeon said here Tuesday half the labor force in the Soviet Union is made up of women. In some of the professional careers the average is even higher in favor of women.

75% of Doctors

In her own profession Dr. M. M. Bantsenkina said 75 per cent of all medical doctors are women.

Dr. Bantsenkina is one of four Russian women who arrived in Vancouver Monday to begin a tour of Canada as a prelude to International Co-operation Year.

Head of the delegation is Mrs. Z. N. Mironova, a member of the Soviet women's executive committee, and deputy chief of the Second European Department of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs.

Speak English

The other visitors are Mrs. Natalia Sladkevich, an engineer-economist, and Mrs. Doilenlsyn a representative from the Russian Embassy in Ottawa who replaced a boarding school principal unable to make the trip at the last moment.

All four women understand and speak English, but all questions were answered in Russian by the head of the delegation, and simultaneously translated into English by Dr. Bantsenkina.

The visitors were guests for the day of the Voice of Women. They were welcomed by Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi and Ald. Lily Wilson.

'Frank Interchange'

"With pleasure we answer all your questions," said the interpreter, but few questions were answered.

She said that a frank interchange of ideas between the Russians and the people of the western world would provide a better understanding in the world, but there was little or no frank interchange.

They said women of the world could do much to further the struggle for peaceful coexistence, but at the same time they said they could see no need for many organizations exclusively for women.

Same Rights

Women in Russia have the same political, social, economical and educational rights as men, and in professional organizations there are no interests or problems that are specific to women.

Women's organizations are found more in eastern Russia where special lectures are held on such problems as how to raise children. Other programs are similar to those that might be included in a night school course or adult education program here.

Were the visitors surprised by our apparent affluence and by so many cars on the streets?

"We, too, have many cars and they are becoming a problem," said the leading delegate.

Record High Temperatures

EDMONTON (CP)—Record maximum temperatures for Oct. 6 were set Tuesday at Whitehorse, Y.T., Fort. St. John, B.C., and Penhold, Alta.

The record was equalled in Calgary, the public weather office reported Tuesday night.

Whitehorse, 900 miles northwest of Edmonton, recorded 58.6 compared with the previous high of 54.8 in 1953.

Fort St. John, 350 miles northwest of Edmonton, reported 77, compared with the previous record of 74.1 in 1942.

Penhold, in central Alberta 200 miles south of Edmonton, had 78, two degrees higher than a temperature recorded Oct. 6, 1960.

Calgary had 80, which equalled the high in 1936.

'Quakes Kill 30

ISTANBUL (AP)—A series of sharp earthquakes jolted northwestern Turkey Tuesday, killing at least 30 persons and injuring 52. The quake also shook Istanbul but caused no casualties or noticeable damage in this region.

$5 Million Damages Asked by TV Series

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The television series Queen for a Day is suing American Broadcasting Company and its subsidiary, Selmur Productions, Inc., for $5,125,000 damages, alleging conspiracy.

In a suit filed Tuesday in Superior Court, producers of the television show charged that ABC and Selmur gave other programs preferential treatment, tried to compel its sponsors to accept Young Marrieds as a substitute show, gave it poor and irregular time scheduling and tried unsuccessfully to terminate the program on four weeks' notice after it was too late to negotiate with an other network.

Queen for a Day has been on radio since 1945 and on television since 1948.

Gordon Charged

LONDON (UPI)—West Indian Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon, former boy friend of Christine Keeler, was charged Tuesday with possessing an offensive weapon—a knife—in the Soho district of London.

TEMPERS HOUSE LOSS

Film Provides Churchill With New Interest In Life

LONDON (UPI) — A new interest has entered Sir Winston Churchill's life just in time to help temper the loss he feels now that he will no longer be able to attend the House of Commons.

The great statesman — 90 years old Nov. 30 — yielded to the pleas of his family against the rigors of a campaign and decided not to be a candidate in the general election Oct. 15 after nearly 64 years in Parliament.

This raised a new worry for Lady Churchill. For at Sir Winston's extreme age the desire to live is as important as health itself. And his family and friends cast about for ways of keeping him occupied.

At this critical moment along came film writer and producer Carl Foreman with a project that caught Sir Winston's immediate enthusiasm. For a number of years a series of screen writers have tried and failed to produce an acceptable treatment of his first autobiography, My Early Life.

This is the fantastic story of his adventures in Africa and India as soldier and war correspondent, his celebrated escape as a South African prisoner of war, his return to Britain a national hero and his first election to Parliament—all by the time he was 25!

Watching The Guns of Navarone in his private cinema at Chartwell one day, Sir Winston asked why the writer of that war thriller could not be persuaded to try his hand at My Early Life.

TOOK CHALLENGE

Foreman took up the challenge and succeeded so well that, he said today in an interview, Sir Winston has firmly promised to attend the premiere of the film in 1966 or even 1967.

"He has a very real and absorbing interest in the picture," Foreman said. But "he can't understand why it will take two years to write, cast and film it." The last time I talked to him about it he said:

"'Why does it take you so long? Can't you finish it in one month or two months or three months?'

"'When I said two years he sniffed: 'It didn't take us that long to mount the second front.'

"'You had more money to work with'," I reminded him.

Sir Winston made only two conditions.

"He wants himself played by a British actor," said Foreman whose other films include High Noon.

"He also would like to see the rushes (scenes developed while the filming is under way) as they arrive in London so he can follow our progress from day to day."

'A POLITICAL ANIMAL FROM TOP TO BOTTOM'

By SAUL PETT

WASHINGTON (AP)—He is, by fate and instinct, his country's president, his party's candidate, his own campaign manager.

He is the master strategist, the top co-ordinator, the ubiquitous tactician, the image-maker, tone-setter and final arbiter of the hard, medium or soft sell.

He is the amazingly thorough detail man who must know everything.

He is, in short, Lyndon B. Johnson, 36th president of the United States, who is seeking re-election in the Nov. 3 presidential election as Democratic party candidate.

From wanting to be "president of all the people," he proceeds naturally to wanting to be the candidate of all the people.

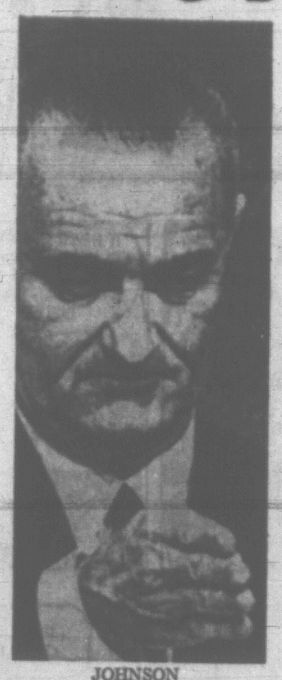
Thus far his favorite role in the campaign seems to be that of the non-campaigner. He speaks with evangelical fervor of a united country, of men of reason, both Democrat and Republican, working together. While believing that he believes this, it is not cynical to point out that unity almost always favors the incumbent.

While caring passionately about his country, he is, everyone agrees, a political animal from top to bottom, from waking to sleeping. But judging by the early weeks of the campaign he appears to prefer the role of the benign father, speaking softly, smiling indulgently, trying to give some perspective to the family fussin'.

GETS ACTION

He works hard at being president, has already pushed an impressive amount of legislation through congress and, busy as he is, seems never to lose sight of the large and small ways a president can make news. In this, he is a master technician. A 6 p.m. White House announcement of, for example, the end of the railroad strike, reaches more people on radio and television than any other hour. Sunday papers have more space than daily papers for a presidential press conference.

Lyndon Johnson was born into politics, reared and nourished by it, knows its nobility and its sweaty in-fighting but, curiously, seems to be hurt if it is implied that he is using his office to get a four-year lease.



JOHNSON
. . . the detail man

On a two-day swing through the northwest and California, which his press office insisted was non-political, the president stopped to join Prime Minister Pearson of Canada. Both men were on their way to sign formally a treaty providing for joint development of the Columbia River basin. They met in Great Falls, Mont., where LBJ signs were burgeoning like cherry blossoms in Washington.

BRINGS GOOD NEWS

Accepting his welcome, the president was moved to recall that last June he allocated $2,000,000 in flood relief to Montana and, on this day at the airport, he announced another $4,500,000 allocation. He noted that the Columbia River project would bring more jobs and power to the northwest and, characteristically as "president of all the people," emphasized that this had resulted from the work of both parties in Congress.

That night, after a tumultuous reception in the streets of Seattle, he spoke at a dinner, uncorking his juicy news item: The "two-man rule" of checks and counter-checks and the electro-mechanical locks which must be opened by secret combination before a nuclear weapon can be fired. It made front-page news.

The next morning, the president spoke at a breakfast meeting, worked in some good ad lib humor which tended again to show his Republican and Democratic connections, spoke of conservation progress and, on the need to protect nature's beauties, quoted, to the surprise of students of Johnson's literary tastes, Emerson and Thoreau.

Back in his car, he suddenly decided to make an unscheduled stop, and so he was seen and photographed distributing pens and presidential medallions at the Shriners' hospital for crippled children.

ANNOUNCES DEFENCE

Thus, the day already had great color, humor and pathos. Only hard news was lacking. This was abundantly rectified four hours later in Sacramento, before a huge crowd gathered around the California state capital.

At the most important point in his speech, the president paused, heeded the pantomined pleas of the TV and newsreel cameramen on his left and directed the removal of the presidential flag blocking the view between them and him. He then proceeded into his big announcement of the day: The United States has developed new radar which can literally "look around the curve of the earth," and two new defence systems which can destroy bomb-carrying satellites orbiting in space. It made front-page news.

As a speaker, it is admitted by Johnson's admirers that he is no great orator. His approach is evangelical. His delivery is deliberately slow but his pauses, his rising emphasis, his quickening pace in sight of the climax are all expert.

The president is clearly enjoying the public opinion polls which show him far ahead. Walking or sitting with reporters, he is ready to produce the latest survey and knows the result down to the last per centage point.

Lyndon Johnson is known to base much of his campaign strategy on the polls; they help him pick the issues and geographic areas to concentrate on.

FRASERVIEW

Rental Hearing Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Nicholson said Tuesday he sees no need for a public hearing into increased rentals at Fraserview veterans housing project in Vancouver but is willing personally to look into cases where tenants have received eviction notices.

George Chatterton (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) raised two reported cases of persons receiving eviction notices because they have not agreed to the new rents, and New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas sought an assurance that nobody would be evicted before Mr. Nicholson made a personal examination.

Mr. Nicholson, minister responsible for Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation which operates the project, said he would be glad to personally look at any cases if hold-out tenants wished to make a representation to him.

NOTICES SENT

He said notices were sent to about 60 tenants who had not yet agreed to the new arrangements.

He saw no need for a public hearing when satisfactory arrangements had been worked out with tenants in more than 1,1000 of the project's 1,164 units. Mr. Douglas asked whether CMHC officials would examine a tenant's financial status before taking action and the postmaster-general said the tenants had been encouraged to discuss their financial situations with the officers.

He said, however, CMHC officials could not be expected to probe each case. The individual was responsible for approaching the corporation.

"The Lord helps those who help themselves," he said.

'Yes, We Want Bahamas For Canada'

SASKATOON (CP)—A suggestion that Canada consider taking in the Bahamas as an 11th province was made Tuesday at the Canadian Tourist Association convention by W. K. Kiernan, British Columbia's new minister of recreation and conservation.

If the Bahamas could be convinced to join Canada the benefits would be beyond calculation, he said.

"It would give us a semi-tropical province and would also complete the circle as far as terrain, climate and topography are concerned," he said. "The benefits to the tourist industry would be of everlasting benefit."

YUKON PROPOSAL

Mr. Kiernan also touched on British Columbia's proposal that the Yukon become part of that province.

"We feel we would both benefit by it," he said. 'I am sure it will be seriously considered."

Mr. Kiernan is slated to outline some of B.C.'s proposals to Yukon officials in Whitehorse later this month.

"I am not going to try sell them or otherwise on the idea but I am going to tell them of some of the developments now taking place in British Columbia and how they will be beneficial to the Yukon."

Asbestos Dust May Be Cause Of Lung Cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical specialists have pointed a strong finger of suspicion at asbestos as a cause not only of lung cancer, but also of another extremely rare form of fatal human cancer.

This cancer, known as mesothelioma, involves the lining of the abdominal and chest cavaties.

Much of their evidence comes from autopsy studies of men working with asbestos as an insulation material.

But they said it also is possible that dust from products containing asbestos might be exposing people generally to some risk of cancers. How much risk there might be, they said they could not tell.

BRAKE SHOES

Asbestos, a mineral which can be woven into a fabric, is used not only for insulation but as a flooring material, in automobile brake shoes, and in many other applications. Ordinary wear-and-tear, they said, might release dust into the atmosphere.

A report was presented Tuesday to the American Public Health Association by Drs. Irving Selikoff and Jacob Churg of the Mount Sinai Hospital, New York, and E. Cuyler Hammond, director of statitstical research for the American Cancer Society.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Vicki Sparks, age 13, of Wichita, Kan., for her question:

What Are Liverworts?

The remote ancestors of the liverworts came ashore more than 300 million years ago. These humble plants, with their cousins the mosses, were established on the dry land long before the earth was clothed in tall trees and flowery blossoms. The bryophytes or moss-like plants were among the first living things to venture forth from the ancient seas.

When you walk in the woods you notice the tall trees and the shady thickets. Later perhaps your eye may catch the smaller members of the lush vegetation, the velvety mosses and the little lichens that paint pastel roses on rocks and tree trunks. Among these modest midgets of the plant world are the liverworts. They were named liverworts, meaning liver-plants, because their lobed greenery clusters in folds somewhat like the lobes of the human liver. People who think that the mossy liverworts are either good or bad for their livers are mistaken.

We might mistake a cluster of low-growing liverworts for a carpet of moss. But the true mosses have tentative roots and leaves and some stand erect on tentative stems. The liverworts are less advanced. Their greenery, like clusters of clover with countless leaflets, must be supported by water or rest flat on the ground. Some liverworts spread their little green rugs on woody trunks or dew-drenched rocks and some thrive in swamps and moist soil.

The leafy surface of a liverwort is called the thallus, and its green chlorophyll manufactures its sugary plant food. Fine white threads called rhizoids sprout from the underside of the greenery and gather up needed water and chemicals.

Moist Places

The modest liverworts produce no seeds or flowers, but they have three different ways of multiplying. On the thallus, tiny cups containing miniature buds may form. When the ripened buds fall onto moist soil, they grow into new liverwort plants. In some cases the thallus produces crops of male and female cells. Some dewy morning the male cells swim around and join the female cells to form fertilized eggs. These eggs live on the parent thallus while they produce capsules of spores. Some liverworts grow as male or female plants. They sprout slender stems topped with miniature parasols bearing male or female cells. When fertilized, their egg cells produce spores that ripen and scatter on the breezes.

The tough little liverworts thrive in moist places almost everywhere, and there are many species. Some of them are flat and papery thin, and others are packed with lush foliage like dense, green carpets. All of them belong in the class Hepaticae, a scientific word coined from an older word for liver.

Treaty Repudiated

MANAGA (AP) — The Nicaraguan congress Tuesday repudiated the 1914 Bryan-Chamorro treaty granting the United States perpetual rights to build an interocean canal through this central American country. A joint session of Congress approved a motion that says the treaty "has caused serious setbacks to the economic development of Nicaragua."

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Women in pants won't be barred from most of New York's posh restaurants . . . but several restaurateurs would enjoy booting pants-wearers out on their seats.

"We hope girls don't wear them!" says Bob Kreindler of the 21 Club, concerning the new fashion. "The only pants that add to femininity are stretch pants."

"They're horrible!" says Gene Cavallero Jr. of the swank Colony. "If a man goes out with a woman, he wants to be sure it's a woman. We had one dame in here with pants, but we think she lost a bet."

Barbra ("Funny Girl") Streisand, who wore pants into 21 one night at the urging of Producer Ray Stark—"because I wanted the chocolate souffle"—says "I used to wear pants all the time but now I don't think they're that gracious. I think pants are all right only if they're covered with sable to the floor and you can't see them."

Toots Shor alone said he'd kick pants-wearing dames right out . . . "My wife included!" he roared.

"Let dames in wearing pants," he thundered, "and we'll have guys wearing skirts!"

Perry Como's producer Mario Lewis is off to Rome to try for a Christmas show for Perry against a St. Peter's background possibly using the Vatican Choir and Boys' Town Choir . . . Diana Dors' new guy is with one of England's not-yet-famous pop groups—he's under 25.

LBJ's press advisers urge him to keep posing at that one angle that makes him so strikingly resemble FDR . . . Abbe Lane, it turns out, gave up her share in a tremendous lot of Xavier Cugat's $$$ to get that quick divorce—but she denies it was anything like the $1 million that's rumored. "I'm so happy now," says Abbe, engaged to agent Perry Leff and a big success at the Plaza, "that I feel I came out the winner no matter how much I gave up."

Paula Wayne, Sammy Davis' leading lady in "Golden Boy," cracked a rib during a "rumble" scene at the Majestic but taped it up and went right on, merely looking a little bulgy due to the bandages . . . Tony Martin, the smooth talker and singer, is now at his very best at the Americana Royal Box . . . Hot rumor: CBS TV now wants to buy a big publishing empire . . . Hey, Beatlemaniacs! The big hit singer in Britain now is America's Johnnie Ray who's touring there . . . Judy Garland and her guy Mark Herron changed their minds about him being her leading man in a TV play in England.

The James Masons' son Morgan, out of Liz Taylor's "Sandpiper" (because they didn't have a governess for him), is back in—but now he's out again with poison oak . . . Singer Leslie Uggams' date at Danny's was vocalist Jeff Turner . . . Warner Bros. offered Jean Kerr $750,000 for her "Poor Richard" play, which hasn't even opened yet.

Eddie Fisher's former gal, model Renata Boeck, dated wealthy Walter Trautman at the Chateau Madrid . . . Sen. Ted Kennedy's writing a book about his father, while he's in hospital. (He wants to publish it privately, for friends).

Orson Welles will try special weight-reducing treatments in Geneva . . . Judy Holliday and CBS are talking a comedy series . . . The Aga Khan saw "Hello, Dolly!" and visited Carol Channing backstage; didn't give her any diamonds, though.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: The only way you can have a heart-to-heart talk with a teen-ager today is to call her person-to-person.

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Fall is the season when your wife buys a new set of winter clothes, so she'll have something to wear when she goes shopping for her spring outfits.—Harold Coffin.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "A lot of homes have been spoiled by inferior desecraters.—Frank Lloyd Wright.

EARL'S PEARLS: David Smulow insists he heard one pessimist say unhappily to another, "Did you ever have one of those miserable days when everything goes right?"

That's earl, brother.

FOUND IN ACCUSED MAN'S FORMER BAKERY

Police Try to Link Cartridge Case, Weapon

By DESMOND BILL

NANAIMO—A used cartridge case found in a bakery once owned by Ronald Ingram came from a rifle that an expert said was "probably" used to kill two Nanaimo teen-agers.

This was stated Tuesday by RCMP Corporal Peter Schmil at the preliminary hearing of a double-murder charge against Ingram.

The 34-year-old baker is accused of the murder of Diane Phipps and Leslie Dixon, 19-year-old sweethearts.

The cartridge case was found only two months ago on a ledge six feet nine inches above the ground of a washroom at the back of Harewood Plaza Bakery.

The two teen-agers were killed two years ago while out on a date. Their bodies were found eight miles apart on either side of Nanaimo.

Cpl. Schmil said he test-fired a rifle that the Crown is alleging was the murder weapon. He said an examination showed expended cartridges from the rifle matched the case found in the bakery.

Another technical expert, Corporal J. J. Kirby of the RCMP crime laboratory in Regina, Sask., testified he made a microscopic examination of three bullets that were taken from the bodies of the dead couple.

He said he compared them with bullets that he test-fired from the rifle.

'Probably Was'

He said one bullet "could and probably was" fired from it.

The third bullet, he said, was so badly damaged that he couldn't tell if it came from the alleged murder weapon.

Cpl. Kirby said he also examined two cartridge cases found in the car in which Dixon was shot. He said he was able to make a "positive identification" of these as coming from the rifle.

He then held up two phials contaning flesh taken from around the bullet wounds in the back of Dixon's head. Cpl. Kirby said his examination of these pieces of flesh showed that Dixon was shot at a range of no more than half an inch.

Found In Lake

The rifle is a .22 calibre, semi-automatic that Cpl. Kirby said was designed for a boy or a small man. He said the gun can be broken down and carried easily in two pieces so that it is "not quite as obvious."

The gun was found several months after the murder by two Nanaimo youths when they were skating on Long Lake, five miles north of Nanaimo. They found it embedded in the ice.

Dixon's body was found in his car, parked at Piper's Lagoon, a spot near Nanaimo often visited by young couples. Donald Ross, a Nanaimo youth who knew Dixon and his car, said he was there on the night of the murder.

He said he arrived about midnight in a car along with another youth and three girls. He said he saw Dixon's car in his headlights and there was "no one in it." Ross said his party was there until 4 in the morning and "saw nothing."

Cartridges In Car

Staff Sergeant Earl Sarsiat, who was in charge of Nanaimo RCMP detachment at the time, gave evidence of going to Piper's Lagoon at 9:45 a.m. on Oct. 17, 1962.

He said Dixon's body was lying on the right side of the front seat. The ignition key was in the switch and a man's jacket and a woman's coat and purse were neatly folded in the back seat.

There was no evidence of a scuffle either inside or outside the car, he said. Two cartridge cases were found in the car, he said.

The staff sergeant testified that as he left Piper's Lagoon that afternoon he got word of the discovery of the girl's body. He went to the scene and saw her body where it had been hidden under old car parts.

Cotton Around Neck

Staff Sergeant Sarsiat said her head was so badly battered that "her hair was beaten into the ground." He said there was a long piece of cotton tied in a lose knot around her neck.

Corporal Tony Prokop, head of the hair and fibre section of the RCMP laboratory in Vancouver, gave evidence that he compared this cloth with samples of material taken from Harewood Plaza Bakery.

He said some of the samples were "approximately similar" to the strip of cloth. Under cross-examination by defence counsel Hugh McGivern he said this type of material is "quite common" and is stocked in large quantities by any department store.

The preliminary hearing is expected to end today.

ISLAND DIGEST

REEF ROCKING ended at high tide Tuesday afternoon when 75-ton Point Hope refloated herself off Knapp Island near Swartz Bay. Skipper Alvie Daniels of Los Angeles was not hurt.

Council Rejects Booming Ground

CROFTON—A bid by Pacific Logging Co. to develop a booming ground here has failed.

At a special meeting Monday, North Cowichan council rejected the proposal by four votes to three.

It is unlikely their decision will be reversed at the usual council meeting tonight.

Monday's public meeting was called after the company, a CPR subsidiary, set up a booming ground close to Government Wharf without awaiting permission.

TOO NOISY

An application for permission by the company was opposed Monday by Crofton Ratepayers' Association, represented by president Ed Alexander and Mrs. Jessie McMorran, owner of a motel and fishing resort adjacent to the booming grounds.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. McMorran told council that noise from the booming grounds was driving guests from her motel.

Mr. Alexander said the association is trying to attract residential people and did not want more heavy industry on the waterfront.

He said more than 100 people had signed a petition against the booming ground proposal.

Next step for the company, if it wants to press for the booming grounds, will be an application to the zoning board of appeal.

FLUORIDATION VOTE SOUGHT

NORTH COWICHAN (CP)—Spokesmen for a delegation of North Cowichan residents said Tuesday the group will ask council to authorize a referendum on fluoridation of the municipal water supply systems.

The group is seeking a vote in each of the municipality's four water districts—Chemainus, Crofton, Maple Bay and the outskirts of Duncan — in conjunction with December civic elections.

NANAIMO MURDER HEARING

CPL. BACON . . . in spare time

FIRE VICTIM SMOKING IN BED

CAMPBELL RIVER—Smoking in bed is believed to have caused the death of Thomas Patrick King, 24, over the weekend.

King was pulled out of a smoke-filled auto court cabin by firemen after he managed to smash a window.

His bed was ablaze.

Death was caused by asphyxiation, it is believed.

Foil-Fooled Experts Bow to Corporal

COMOX — A problem which foiled the experts has been solved by a 26-year-old RCAF corporal here.

Cpl. Win Bacon of Amherst, N.S., has come up with the answer after two years research during his spare itme.

The problem arose when CF-100 target aircraft, used by an electronic warfare unit, returned with metallic foil which should have been dropped over the target area.

After a number of investigations, Cpl. Bacon noticed the foil boxes were buffeted by the slipstream as they left the aircraft.

FAKE SIGNAL

This caused the mechanical box counter outside the plane to send a false empty signal to the pilot.

Cpl. Bacon came up with an idea to replace present monitoring equipment with a photo-electric cell and light beam so that no matter how much the box vibrated it would only break the beam once.

As a reward for his idea, he has been presented with a certificate and a cheque on behalf of the suggestion award board of the public service of Canada.

RCAF Pilot Killed

MOOSE JAW (CP)—An RCAF pilot was killed and an airman seriously injured Tuesday when their Harvard trainer crashed and burned south of the RCAF station in Moose Jaw.

RCAF identified the pilot as FO J. M. G. Nadon, 21, a native of Buckingham, Que. LAC J. M. E. Paul, 30, of Scottstown, Que., was in serious condition in Moose Jaw hospital.

QUEEN 'TOOL OF PM'

Separatists Get All the Publicity

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's separatist groups may be alike in their pursuit of independence for the province but they differ about the means toward this end and in their economic aims.

All represent the feelings of what seems to be a minority of the roughly 5,500,000 people in the province.

But with the forthcoming visit of the Queen to Quebec City, the opinions of the separatists about the royal tour and the more general aspects of Quebec life have received much headline attention, particularly outside the province.

Apparently the largest of the separatist groups is Le Rassemblement Pour l'Independance Nationale, which says it has a membership of 7,000.

Now led by Pierre Bourgault, a Montreal newspaper man, le Rassemblement was founded in 1960 as "an instrument of propaganda" for the cause of an independent Quebec.

NOTHING AGAINST QUEEN

Mr. Bourgault says the party has "nothing against the Queen personally" and that she is "just an instrument in the hands of the real guilty ones—Prime Minister Pearson and Quebec Premier Lesage."

Dr. Rene Jutras of Victoriaville and 13 other top members of le Rassemblement quit because of what they called the party's "revolutionary" tendencies. They later established a separatist party of their own, le Regroupement Nationale, with Dr. Jutras as president.

Dr. Jutras, a former leader of les Scouts Catholiques, Quebec's French-language Boy Scout movement, said his new party will contest all 95 seats at the next provincial general election. But the extent of his current following is not immediately known.

Former le Rassemblement president, Marcel Chaput formed his own group, le Parti Republicain du Quebec.

Chaput has since claimed headlines primarily as the man who first said the Queen might be in danger if she came to Quebec.

Another group, le Front Republicain Pour l'Independance, rose out of the ashes of the PRQ and is reported to hew to a more left-wing line than did the old Chaput organization.

DEALT HARD BLOWS

The terrorist groups in the province were dealt hard blows last year and this, with the trials and convictions of many persons said to be in their ranks.

The most highly-publicized, le Front de Liberation Quebecois, claimed responsibility for a 1963 wave of bombings in Montreal, while members of another group, l'Armee de Liberation du Quebec were involved this year in a string of crimes that included the theft of weapons from two armories in Quebec province.

Membership of the two underground organizations was never determined but police have expressed relief over the recovery of the last of the armory weapons-loot. They said the recovery allows them to "breathe easier" about the safety of the Queen.

Meantime, another group called le Front de Liberation du Quebec has appeared as sponsor of a bi-monthly news sheet called La Cognee.

The mimeographed publication, appearing for at least the last seven months, has advised supporters to greet the Queen with a forceful, if not violent, demonstration.

SEVERAL PARTIES

Quebec has several political parties involved in electoral activity. The Liberal party now is the government party, with the Union Nationale as the opposition.

Federal politics in the province involves the Liberals, the Progressive Conservatives, le Ralliement des Creditistes, the Social Credit Party and the New Democratic Party.

None of these main groups has embraced the separatist cause.

Separatism is espoused by several groups in Montreal organized for the publication of "little magazines."

One such group publishes a monthly called Parti-Pris, literally, chosen standpoint which mixes socialism with its Quebec nationalism.

Parti-Pris has criticized le Rassemblement for what it calls the party's "hesitations on economic policy and general tactics." It claims the Bourgault group has been superseded by a general swing of the separatist bloc to the left.

Parti-Pris says last year's FLQ activities were "ineffective and unjustifiable" and only with "the assent and support of the people" is political violence justifiable.

But the FLQ terrorism had "profound spiritual effects" leading to a bolstering of the Parti-Pris, and separatism now must be merged with a campaign of economic revolution based on "study, education and organization."

JOINT CERTIFICATION CORE OF DISPUTE

Clash Mars B.C. Labor Meet

VANCOUVER (CP)—A bitter clash in which the Communist Party was accused of strike-breaking in a dispute at a Vancouver shipyard erupted at the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Labour here Tuesday.

Russ St. Eloi, president of the federation and business agent of the plumbers' union, clashed openly on the floor with Bill Stewart, secretary of the marine workers and boilermakers.

The dispute began when a committee attempted to withdraw propsals put before the convention that would set up a special body to study joint certification of unions dealing with one employer.

After lengthy and sometimes bitter debate, delegates turned down the attempt to withdraw the proposals, but then referred the resolution back to the federation committee for further study.

St. Eloi said the motion was aimed at his plumbers' union, which refused to work at Burrard Drydock Limited when 10 other unions accepted terms to end a three-month strike earlier this year.

The plumbers remained on strike, holding up work and forcing layoffs of men from other unions that had accepted the settlement.

"I know the finger is being pointed at my organization," he said.

"We were bulleted by bills from the Communist Party of Canada . . . at our meetings.

"It is the first time I have ever seen the Communist Party trying to strike-break."

He contended that even before joint negotiations by the unions at Burrard had commenced the plumbers had said they would not necessarily agree to terms acceptable to the majority of the unions.

"We said we would decide ourselves whether or not we would accept the final offer and we decided not to."

He said that if the federation began to study joint certification it would be a clear invitation to the provincial government to bring in compulsory legislation for join certification.

Stewart accused the resolutions committee of taking "the meat" out of the resolution. He said joint certification should be considered in a case similar to that at Burrard.

Unless this is done "it is going to be done for us. When we talk about unity of the labor movement we must make sure of unity at the bargaining table."

$50,000 Gold Theft

NEW YORK (AP) — Three holdup men handcuffed four persons in the ninth-floor office of a jewelry firm Tuesday and escaped with gold valued at more than $50,000, police reported.

Disaster Relief Plan Ready Here

A temporary referral service to help in family disasters such as fires has been set up by the Community Welfare Counci here.

The council said today information about such disasters will be accepted and passed on to the appropriate agencies for action.

A meeting will be called shortly of delegates from all agencies in the emergency assistance field to put the referral service on a permanent basis.

Earlier this year the council, at 1951 Cook Street, published a directory listing all agencies in South Vancouver Island having responsibility for health, welfare, recreation, disaster relief and "other areas of human need."

WHY RENT

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The biggest surprise of the current television season is The Beverly Hillbillies have been knocked out of the top 10.

Stephen

This major upset was disclosed in the National Arbitrons for the week ending Sept. 27. But despite the absence of the Hillbillies, CBS-TV still ruled the roost.

These ratings, though, were taken with some of NBC's new programs still to be heard from.

The top 10 list the following programs: Ed Sullivan (CBS), Bonanza (NBC), Bewitched (ABC), Fuguitive (ABC), Dick Van Dyke (CBS), Andy Griffith (CBS), My Favorite Martian (CBS), Petticoat Junction (CBS), Munsters (CBS), Red Skelton (CBS), Peyton Place (Tuesday) (ABC).

Last year The Beverly Hillbillies was television's No. 1 show.

ABC-TV showed very well by these initial listings. On the over-all week, average audience rating was CBS 18.4, ABC 16.3 and NBC 15.3.

ABC's showings would have to be held to the network's policy of presenting the entire new schedule in one week.

Ratings mean dollars to the networks who are in direct competition with each other at all times of the day and night.

ABC's first week ratings proved this with the network picking up some $1,500,000 in business on the basis of the results.

Because of the ABC success, NBC-TV is now considering a crash program of new show premieres for next season.

There are those network programmers, however, who feel the one-week presentation method of short-term value only.

But, on the other hand, they cannot deny the value through concentrated promotion, with important reviews, listings and word-of-mouth work in favor.

We'll keep an eye on the ratings picture throughout the season to see how the new shows fare in comparison to established favorites.

★ ★ ★

CBS-TV and Gunsmoke star James Arness have completed a deal which leaves the tall star one of the richest cowboys on television.

The network has bought Arness' ownership in 54 hour-long episodes, also certain other assets, including an extension of his contract, for $1,800,000.

Several years ago, CBS-TV bought out his interest in the half-hour films.

★ ★ ★

Raymond Massey's son, Daniel, is set for an important role in an upcoming Dr. Kildare episode.

In a flashback story, to be directed by Raymond (Dr. Gillespie) Massey, Dick Chamberlain will play the role of the father of Dr. Kildare, and the young Massey will play the role of young Dr. Gillespie.

It's one way of keeping the role in the family forever.

THIS GIGANTIC tree crusher will be used on an experimental basis by the B.C. Forestry Service to clear land to be flooded by the Portage Mountain dam on the Peace River power project. The machine has been rented by the B.C. government from a Quebec firm.

MACHINE TO CLEAR PEACE RESERVOIR

B.C. Hires 'War Monster'

The B.C. government has hired a monster to help on the Peace River power project.

It weighs 200 tons and looks like a gigantic medieval war machine.

But it will save almost $500,000 during a trial, and if successful, possibly much more.

The machine is called the R. G. LeTourneau Tree Crusher.

It is being shipped to B.C. from Quebec on eight flat cars.

It will be used to clear part of the Peace River reservoir —the huge area to be flooded by the Portage Mountain dam in northern B.C.

The B.C. Forest Service has hired the machine for a 400-hour trial.

If it proves estimates correct it will be used to clear more of the reservoir before flooding starts in 1968.

The estimates are that it can clear ground at about one fifth of the cost of conventional methods.

The cost of the machine will be in the neighborhod of $120,000. The cost of clearing 1,200 acres—the trial area — could normally run as high as $600,000.

The machine, powered by two 12-cylinder diesels, can knock down trees and stumps 40 inches in diameter.

As the trees fall, they are crush pressed into the ground by a wicked looking roller studded with sharp blades.

The forest service said it is the largest machine of its kind in the world.

It is being hired on contract from Tractu Lectric Equipment Ltd. of Quebec.

It is due to arrive at the end of the month.

Forests Minister Ray Williston, who arranged the deal, said that the machine can mean important savings in time and money.

Chicago Police Force Shines Four Years After Big Shakeup

CHICAGO (AP)—Four years ago residents of Chicago watched as a citizens' committee struggled to find a man capable of cleaning up the city's scandal-ridden police department. Heading the committee was Orlando W. Wilson, dean of the School of Criminology at the University of California.

The committee screened candidates for months, and then picked the man it decided was tough enough to handle the job: Orlando W. Wilson.

After getting a "hands off" promise from Mayor Richard J. Daley, Wilson, then 59, reluctantly took over what many considered the most demanding police job in the country.

And things haven't been the same for the Chicago underworld since.

Last year, while crime soared 10 per cent across the U.S., Chicago reported a three-per-cent dropoff. It was the only major city to do so.

WINNING HONORS

Since 1960, the department has won 13 national honors, including an award from the American Society of Criminology.

Wilson took over at a time when police fortunes and morale were at low ebb. Eight policemen had been indicted for their part in a wave of burglaries on the North Side. Three more were to be indicted.

Public indignation had forced the resignation of Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor, who for nine years had maintained no organized crime existed in the city.

Tough jobs were nothing new for the deceptively mild-mannered Wilson, who had directed public safety and denazification programs in the U.S. zone in Germany after the Second World War.

His first day in office, Wilson pledged he would not tolerate political influence in the 13,000-man police force. He promised to fire any policemen engaged in illegal activities.

He immediately set up a bureau of intelligence services charged with "finding out if the department is as clean as the driven snow . . . or of making it as clean as the driven snow if it isn't."

SHAKES UP STAFF

Once security was established, Wilson launched into a massive shakeup of the department.

The number of police districts was slashed from 38 to 21. The detective division was consolidated into six area commands. Most important, the bulk of the department's manpower was thrown into the patrol division, considered by Wilson to be the city's "first line of defence against crime."

"Every time somebody was robbed, assaulted, raped or whatever, that meant a policeman was assigned there," Wilson said in an interview.

"And he was left there forever and usually around the clock. We were guarding coal yards, private businesses, banks and what have you in much the same way."

Wilson called in the beat men and put them into patrol cars. within two years, the number of police vehicles on the streets was doubled.

The next step was to lift police morale. Wilson saw to it that examinations for promotions were held on a regular biennial basis. Within three years, more than 1,200 promotions were made. They included 873 sergeants, 266 lieutenants and 94 captains.

Wilson also revamped communications, spending $2,000,000 on a modern centre capable of handling thousands of calls for help daily.

"We can get men to the scene of a crime at a speed that amazes the citizens and frankly, me too," he says.

$17,000 Profit From Gas Stock Sale

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Mr. Justice Leo Landreville made a profit of $117,000 on the sale of Northern Ontario Natural Gas stock a year after he resigned as mayor of Sudbury, it was revealed Tuesday at a preliminary hearing on municipal corruption charges against him.

Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor of Sudbury from 1955 until late 1956, when he was appointed to the Ontario Supreme Court.

Testimony in a transcript of evidence prepared by the Ontario Securities Commission during a 1962 investigation of NONG stock transactions was read into evidence. It said the figure was based on a securities commission audit of NONG sales conducted openly through a Toronto stock firm.

Mr. Justice Landreville is charged with accepting NONG shares as a consideration for getting a NONG franchise for Sudbury through city council when he was mayor, and with agreeing to accept NONG shares for signing the agreement.

The reading of the 180-page transcript began last Thursday and ended Tuesday.

It is expected special Crown prosecutor Harvey McCullough of Hamilton will later read into evidence about 90 pages of testimony given by Mr. Justice Landreville at last April's perjury trial of NONG President Ralph K. Farris of Vancouve.

HOME GARDEN

Now's Time To Play With Color

By HILDA BEASTALL

This is one season of the year when even the largest home may be lavishly adorned with cut flowers.

Hilda

Dahlias, roses and a host of annuals are near the end of their floral display yet many perfect blossoms and dozens of near-open buds are there for the cutting.

Far from depleting the garden at this time, gathering these flowers as you cut down and remove foliage of perennials and annuals gives an air of peacefulness to the garden.

Once more there is space, and chrysanthemums, Michaelmas-daisies and the other true flowers of fall seem to enjoy the lack of competition after the summer denizens are removed.

Mixed colors and types of flowers demand bowls of generous proportions to show them to advantage.

BETTER EFFECT

Where the leaves are damaged or poor in any way, the effect will be much improved if they are removed entirely and leaves from other plants substituted.

The lovely bronze and red colors found in peony leaves at this season blend beautifully with gold, yellow, pink and purple flowers, while grey or yellow foliage from other shrubs or trees go better with blue.

In general, the same rules apply in arranging these sumptious bowls of fall flowers as govern the more ethereal arrangements of spring and early summer.

The largest blooms are placed near the rim of the bowl, darker colors spread through the lighter tones, but kept mostly to the centre and near the base, and the width at the base should be broad to avoid a top heavy feeling.

Fall flowers in such profusion give us a chance to play with color and come up with creations to suit the most pagan among us.

FLAG GROUP OPENS DOORS

1,200 NEW, 3,000 OLD

Beavers, Geese and a Pot of Pea Soup . . . A Nightmare

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Beavers, geese, a pot of pea soup and enough Maple Leaves to cover a tree, were on display today as the parliamentary flag committee opened its doors at the half-way mark in its six-week deliberations.

The riot of flag designs—1,200 new ones and 3,000 left over from the 1945-46 committee—papered the walls, hung from the ceilings and crept up from the floor of room 356S in the centre block.

Chairman Herman Batten (L—Humber-St. George's) and his 14 colleagues from all parties were on hand for pictures and the guarded comments which have become their standard offering since the committee began.

Batten did reveal that the committee had met 18 times during which it had sifted information from documents and experts in heraldry, protocol, Canadian history and political economy.

Whether or not the committee could come up with a near unanimous decision within its six-week deadline was "a difficult question," Batten said.

To the newsmen who were invited in for a half-hour glimpse of the no-man's-land of flags, that was putting it mildly.

The Red Ensign was there, but the symbol which dominated the room was the maple leaf and almost every variation of it that Canadian flag lovers could dream up.

There were bars, stripes, crosses and circles mounted on rough paper, elaborate silk, wood, cardboard and photographs.

Among the lot were several striking alternatives for a distinctive national flag. There were also humorous efforts and a few in questionable taste.

Some featured Canadian geese flying across the flag pursued by maple leaves. On one a dove was singing "O Canada." There were several designs with a beaver biting the stem of a maple leaf.

One had an Egyptian eye peering out of the heart of a maple leaf. Christ, the Queen and the Union Jack dominated another.

A sardonic contribution consisted of three vertical panels of red, white and blue. Centered in one panel was a foaming mug labelled "The Legion"; in the other a steaming bowl of pea soup for Quebec; and in the centre a question mark labelled "Canada."

The total effect of having to sit in the room for any length of time was enough to shake even a stout constitution.

One committee member admitted to having flag nightmares.

None would single out his personal choice of design, and most covered the situation with a diplomatic "I like them all."

In a more serious vein one confided that it was impossible to tell whether any decision will be reached at the end of six weeks.

To date most of the meetings have been directed toward gathering information.

Still to come is the difficult process of negotiating among the seven Liberals, five Conservatives and one each from the three minority parties to determine possible areas of compromise and hard lines of agreement.

Whether Canada will have a new flag by Christmas remains a moot question.

CHILDREN HAIL QUEEN AT RALLY

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A drizzle of rain stopped long enough today for the Queen and Prince Philip to make their second open-air appearance of the Royal Tour on the balcony of Province House, Prince Edward Island's legislative building and scene of the first meeting in 1864, of the Fathers of Confederation.

But a massive outdoor gathering of Charlottetown and district school children was moved inside the city's fairgrounds arena. The Queen, wearing a simple turquois wool tweed ensemble, presented senior boy scout and girl guide awards before a crowd of nearly 9,000, almost all of them children.

Driving from the Royal Yacht Britannia in Charlottetown Harbor to the legislature, the fair grounds, and the residence of Lieutenant-Governor W. J. MacDonald, the Queen and her husband again lowered the windows of their closed limousine.

Despite the showery weather, thousands lined the route. The crowd packing the main intersection in front of Province House sent up a roar of welcome when the Queen stepped on to a balcony.

Premier Walter Shaw talked animatedly with her, pointing out the skyline with the twin spires of St. Dunstan's Roman Catholic basilica a block away.

Inside the legislature, the Queen spent several minutes visiting the chamber where in 1864, the first meeting of the Fathers of Confederation was

Ingram Ordered To Stand Trial

By DESMOND BILL
Times Staff Reporter

NANAIMO—Ronald Ingram, a 34-year-old Nanaimo baker, this morning was committed for trial in a higher court on two counts of capital murder. (See earlier story on Page 31.)

He is charged with the slaying of Diane Phipps and Leslie Dixon two years ago in Nanaimo.

MAINLAND TRIAL

Ingram's trial likely will be in Vancouver of New Westminster.

Ingram's commital this morning came after testimony by 43 witnesses in the case. RCMP Staff-Sergeant Jack Purdy, in charge of investigation, testified today.

He said Ingram was icing a cake the first time he was interviewed by police. This occurred on Aug. 7 of this year when the RCMP officer went to a bakery in Westview Shopping Plaza in West Vancouver where Ingram was working.

Another officer present at the interview, Const. Wally Seminoff, said Ingram continued working while talking to police, but he didn't finish the icing before the three of them left to go to the North Vancouver police station.

All through the hearing Ingram sat impassive in the dock with his legs crossed, arms folded and head cocked on the one side.

Ingram's second wife and his mother sat in the front row downstairs all through the hearing while relatives of the dead couple sat in the upstairs gallery most of the time.

MANY USES PREDICTED

Ocean's Motion Used As Source of Energy

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—The Hamilton Watch Company says it has developed what it calls an ocean motion harness capable of controlling the energy of the sea and putting it to work.

The mechanical device, developed by the company's industrial and military products division, captures motion created by ocean waves and converts it into a force that can be used to run a generator, charge a battery or transmit an electronic signal.

In principle, a company spokesman said, the device functions in much the same way as the self-winding mechanism of an automatic watch.

Hamilton engineers foresee many possible uses for the motion harness. As a power generator of buoys, for example, it can operate for long periods without the maintenance required for battery-powered buoys.

Its output may be used automatically to wind marine chronometers or to operate sailboat instruments requiring power.

The original model weighs less than one pound and measures three inches each way. Larger ones may be developed later.

UAR Holds Tshombe Hostage

CAIRO (AP) — Premier Moise Tshombe of The Congo was a hostage of President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic government but a Congolese official said today Tshombe still hoped to gain admittance to the conference of non-aligned nations.

Nasser's government said Tshombe would not be released until his government called off gendarmes surrounding the U.A.R. embassy in Leopoldville.

An aide said Tshombe does not want to go home and is quite happy to remain here and watch the conference on television.

The aide said Tshombe is banking on a telegram sent Tuesday to Nasser by President Joseph Kasavubu of The Congo protesting the treatment of Tshombe. Informed source said the telegram told Nasser that Tshombe was the proper premier of The Congo and should be permitted admission to the conference.

SAID HE WOULD LEAVE

Tshombe had announced Tuesday night he was abandoning his attempt to attend the conference after the countries attending voted not to admit him. He said then he would leave for home immediately.

Reports from Leopoldville Tuesday said gendarmes surrounded the UAR Embassy and halted all movement in and out of the building. The reports said the action was taken to protect the embassies from mob action that was feared because of Tshombe's treatment in Cairo.

The Algerian Embassy also was cordoned off, Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella having been a leader in the move to bar Tshombe from the non-aligned conference.

CALLS ON TSHOMBE

Al Ahram said President Nasser's adviser on African affairs, Mohamed Fayek, called on Tshombe to tell him he would have to remain in Cairo.

Tshombe had insisted on attending the conference despite a telegram from conference leaders to Congo President Joseph Kasavubu telling him he would be welcome but Tshombe wouldn't.

N.Y. RACIAL SCENE

Arrest of Mothers Sparks Near Riot

NEW YORK (AP)—Police arrested dozens of defiant white mothers today during a school sit-in protest against a racial-integration program which transferred their children away from their neighborhood school.

The arrests sparked a near-riot among scores of demonstrators and on-lookers outside Public School 149 in the Jackson Heights section of Queens.

Police headquarters reported the arrests of 65 adults on charges of loitering in or near a school, a form of disorderly conduct. One man was charged with felonious assault on a policeman.

The adult, along with 30 children, were taken by police buses and patrol wagons to court.

As they were led to the vehicles, a large detachment of police linked hands to keep chanting and sign-waving demonstrators away. One man tried to break through the cordon and was wrestled to the ground by five policemen.

WAC to Lead Japan Visit In Spring

Premier W. A. C. Bennett will go to Japan next spring.

He announced Tuesday that four other members of the B.C. Cabinet will accompany him.

Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark, who headed a trade mission to Japan last summer, said today he expects to go.

While no dates have been set, Mr. Loffmark said it is likely the premier and party will leave in April shortly after the end of the legislative session.

8 Deaths On Road To Airport

By LESLIE MILLIN

Blood-stained Patricia Bay Highway should be improved or replaced — at once.

So say the municipal officials and policemen who watch and patrol the 20 miles from the Trans-Canada Highway junction to Swartz Bay Ferry terminal.

There are plans for a four-lane highway—Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi says he doesn't know when they'll go ahead.

Some Saanich councillors want the plans to go ahead now.

EIGHT DEATHS

In 10 months, the highway has been the scene of eight fatalities.

In two weeks, it has been the scene of four fatalities.

Two of them occurred Tuesday, both of them so bloody that experienced policemen were sickened by them. (See page 13.)

Saanich and Central Saanich police chiefs say a four-lane divided highway would help reduce the number of fatalities.

PROMISED

And councillors say this has been promised, but never delivered.

"Everyone blames the highway for the accidents," said Mr. Gaglardi this morning.

"I haven't had a report on the loader accident Tuesday night, but the other one would have happened no matter how wide the highway was.

"It's the drivers, not the road."

"I don't think the road is adequate for the traffic load that has been put on it by the ferries," says Saanich police chief W. A. Pearson.

DIVIDED HIGHWAY

"It's obvious that a four-lane divided highway would reduce the number of fatalities.

"Speed, the narrowness of the road, and the number of intersecting roads are big factors.

"But the attitude of drivers, and their fitness to drive at highway speeds, is also very vital.

"I don't know when we can improve the drivers.

"But the road could be improved."

60 TOO HIGH

"The speed limit on the Central Saanich portion is too high at 60 miles an hour," said Central Saanich police chief Fred Brownlee.

"Intersecting roads have been a problem in accidents out here.

"A four-lane divided highway would certainly improve the fatality picture as far as I'm concerned."

BIG CAT DEFIES DEATH; DOG SAVES HUNTER'S LIFE

LUND, B.C. (CP) — Fred Pihle fired a shotgun slug through the heart of a cougar—but the big cat refused to die and turned on him.

Unhurt, but shaken, he told the story today of how his German hunting dog, Baron, and hunting companion, Bob Ellerby, saved his life.

"I spotted the cougar lying on a rock above my head, looking down at me about 25 yards away.

"I shot my slug in him and found out later I got him right through the heart. It didn't stop him.

"The animal rolled down the hill towards me and I shouted for help. Bob was quite aways into the bush but Baron got there right away.

"That's what saved my life. The cat was so close there was blood on the barrel of my gun.

"The dog jumped on his back and fought him off me. I shot two blasts of birdseed shot to scare the cougar off but he still fought Baron.

"Then Bob arrived and put another couple of shots into the cougar. Still it didn't stop fighting until a shot went into its skull and blew half its head off."

Pihle said the cat was weighed at 80 pounds and was the second of a set of twins, the first killed last week.

"Old Stewball was a racehorse,
I wish he were mine,
He never drank water,
He always drank wine . . ."

Those words to a plaintive tune are from a current folksong. One of our young was playing records the other evening, and Win and I were holding a post-mortem over a Sandown program, when the saga of Old Stewball the wondersteed infiltrated our ears.

Since them, at odd times and in various places, we have found ourselves humming, whistling and even once or twice singing this wistful little dirge aloud.

For like the ballad's railbird who becomes jailbird, we too have more often than not failed to recognize Old Stewball when he blazes upon the scene.

He's the mount who wings from the pack in the thundering home stretch to confound the handicappers with a 30-to-1 triumph.

Horse, mare, ridgling or colt, gelding or frisky filly, Old Stewball is the ace that flicks out of the deck, the ugly duckling magpicked for a moment into swan; and even a jockey wise as Shoemaker may ride a race from gate to ultimate furlong before he recognizes the thunderbolt suddenly unleashed between his knees.

★ ★ ★

It is this quest for Old Stewball—and the knowledge that the next or any parimutuel ticket may carry his charmed number—which gives a racetrack crowd its unique flavor.

You hear few cross words at a racetrack. Dolorous, yes, when the sure thing, the nag that couldn't lose, has demonstrated he isn't Old Stewball after all.

But during those hours when the world contracts to a railed oval, a curious sense of brotherhood prevails. Once past the approaches where the hoarse tipsters cry their sheets, no one is quite a stranger.

We have sacrificed to Poseidon, who rules earth's horses as well as its seas, at tracks both great and small, and at none have we witnessed the spectator rudeness and downright savagery that mars the average National Hockey League joust.

In our own infrequent courtings of Old Stewball, it has been impressed on us that the man who serves, rides or backs him tends to be a pretty decent fellow.

★ ★ ★

Your confirmed horseplayer is not merely willing but eager to exercise the virtues of faith and optimism eight times in a losing afternoon.

Should you venture out to Sandown one of these autumn days when the track is fast and the big oaks still green against October's mellow pastels, you will see grey and even white heads a-plenty.

Like our friend Ed, their owners offer convincing proof that age is a state less of flesh than of spirit.

★ ★ ★

We don't know where Ed is applying his latest system to Old Stewball these days. At New York's Aqueduct, maybe, or across the continent where the likely colts are running at Tanforan.

But one night this winter he will drop in on us—lean, straight and tanned as if his Royal Flying Corps years weren't half a century away—and for a few good hours, we'll sit by an alder fire and talk Thoroughbreds.

To call Ed a gambler would be to insult him. He maintains he's a system player, a turf investor who weighs all factors, and was once properly scandalized when we suggested a flyer on a longshot.

Ed is a widower. He operated his own business successfully for many years; retired, then because idleness bored him, went to work as a salesman for another few years. Now he follows Old Stewball wherever on this continent those enchanted hooves spurn a well-laid track.

Two winters ago, Ed was late with his visit: he'd been over in France, he told us casually when he arrived, investing a few francs at les courses de Chevaun.

Horseplayers are supposed to die broke, and Ed may be no exception. It is also true that the two bucks slipped under the wicket could be spent where they will yield a more certain and tangible return.

But I will be glad, when dark January comes, that on a bright day or two this fall, I helped keep Old Stewball the racehorse in wine!

THIS TANGLE could be anything. It was once a car—and a 17-year-old boy was sitting where the centre of the picture is. Brian Henry, 4991 Prospect Lake Road, was in a Pat Bay Highway collision with a 20-ton loader. He died instantly, the second fatality on the highway in a day.

Broken Tie Rod Found on Loader

Saanich Youth Dies In Grinding Crash

Steering failure is being blamed for a highway accident that took the life of a 17-year-old Saanich youth on Tuesday.

Brian Henry, 4991 Prospect Lake Road, died when his car was ripped to a tangle of metal by a 20-ton rear-end loader.

He was the second driver to be killed by a piece of heavy equipment on the Pat Bay Highway in one day—and both pieces of equipment belonged to the same company.

Brian was travelling alone in his older-model sedan when it was in a glancing head-on collision with the loader at Pat Bay Highway and Dieppe Road at Royal Oak at about 6:10 p.m.

Saanich police extricated him from the shattered ruin of his car, but he was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Driver of the Mattison & Patterson loader was Barry Rushworth, 2545 Graham.

GOING TO FOOTBALL

Brian, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Henry, was on his way to a football practice at the time of the accident.

He was headed south. Police found football equipment in the back of his car.

A well-known athlete, Brian played football and soccer, and ran on the Mount Newton High School track team.

He was a Grade 10 student at the school.

Surviving are the mother and father, and brothers and sisters, Derek, 10; Gay, 9; Guy, 7, and Saune, 2½.

PARTS SPRAYED

Eyewitnesses said parts of his car were sprayed all over the road by the impact.

Police who examined the loader found a tie rod between the two huge front wheels had broken.

They believe the damage to the car was done by one of the six-foot front tires when the loader went out of control.

The earlier accident took place at Pat Bay and Amity Drive about 10:10 a.m., when a loaded 10-ton gravel truck rolled on top of a small imported car.

Driver Austin Finch, 61, of 3527 Richmond, died instantly.

UNINJURED

His passenger, R. G. Casson, 419 Davida, crawled out uninjured.

Mr. Finch was managing director of O'Neil Glass and Paint Co. and Mr. Casson worked for him.

Surviving Mr. Finch are the widow, Nora, and two sisters, Millie and Eva Finch, in St. Helens, England.

MOTHER COMPLAINS

Novel Ruled Out Of City Schools

A mother's complaint succeeded today in having a contemporary American novel banned from Victoria public schools.

Greater Victoria school district superintendent John Gough said it was "not the type of book recommended for the high school level. The college and university level would be all right."

The woman—with a 17-year-old son in Grade 11—said the book was suggested as supplementary reading for secondary English. It is written in the form of an autobiography of a 16-year-old and is "full of perversion, sex and prostitutes. I object strongly," the mother said.

The writer, J. D. Salinger, has fostered a cult of Holden Caulfield fans with publication of this and other similar novels during the past 10 years.

Caulfield is the boy hero of the book, Catcher in the Rye.

"What are they going to gain by it?" the mother wanted to know.

'FLOUNDERING AROUND'

"We parents are supposed to keep our children clean living, clean thinking . . . I'm a poor parent floundering around trying to keep my son on the straight and narrow path."

She was shocked when she opened the book her son bought at a bookstore and found the type of language used, the characters it embodied.

"I forbade him to open the book. How dare they give my son this tripe to read. I don't want my children to know this filth.

"This book is the story of a boy who has no respect for his parents and contempt for authority," the parent said.

When the son pointed out the language in the book is not dissimilar to that used by his school mates, the mother reacted again:

"Does he have to act and talk like a hood in order to get along in society?"

"We should have some say over what our children read. It isn't easy to raise a son to have good thoughts," the mother said.

She has taken the book up with her son's teacher.

MATURE ENOUGH

The teacher recommended it as an example of modern American writing, feeling his class was mature enough to read it with some objectivity.

There were two other titles—Jane Eyre and Wuthering Heights, by the Bronte sisters—suggested as supplementary reading and students were to choose one and write a review on it for December.

Mr. Gough said steps were taken to "neutralize" the situation by substituting the American book with another example of contemporary writing.

He said the objectionable book was added by an English teacher or teachers to the list of suggested reading issued by the education department.

The matter will be taken up at a regular meeting of principals with the district superintendent next week.

"I don't think, as a school system, we can be party to this type of reading," Mr. Gough said.

Similar objection to this title was raised in another school last year and dealt with on that level only.

$2,500 OFFERED FOR JEWELRY

By TERRY IZZARD

An Open Letter to a Thief

Offering $2,000 reward—Mr. and Mrs. Bali Kudra.

Oct 7, 1964

Dear Sir; Call me anytime and we'll have a Beer together.

This is the start of a letter to a dangerous thief . . .

. . . a thief who broke into a Victoria home in June, stealing cash and family heirlooms worth thousands of dollars.

. . . a thief who held a butcher's knife to the owner's back and threatened:

"I'll kill you if you make a sound."

Writer of the letter is 33-year-old trucking contractor Bali Kudra.

At his home, 750 Market Street, today, he said: "I'll do anything to get the jewelry back.

"My wife and I have been going out of our minds."

★ ★ ★

The jewelry, a hand-beaten gold Indian necklace and diamond-studded bracelet were taken from a safe drawer in the home while Mr. Kudra was locked in the bathroom.

The thief crept up behind Mr. Kudra as he put a wad of money just drawn from the bank into the safe.

"He stuck a knife in my back and told me not to make a sound.

"Then he took the money from the safe—over $2,500—and ordered me into the bathroom.

"I guess he must have gone back then and forced open the drawer containing the jewelry."

Both pieces are over 100 years old. They were smuggled out of India on the last armed train to Karachi during the Hindu-Moslem uprisings.

★ ★ ★

Said Mr. Kudra's attractive wife, Shahnawaz, 28: "My mother risked her life to get the family heirlooms out of the country.

"The rear half of the train on which she travelled was uncoupled and everyone on it slaughtered."

The jewelry, which had been tied around her mother's waist, was split up among the family when she reached freedom.

It had been kept locked in the safe at home since the couple married in Victoria in 1957.

Said Mr. Kudra: "It was absolutely priceless to us. We've just got to get it back."

The couple is still keeping the theft a secret from Mrs. Kudra's mother in Hong Kong.

★ ★ ★

In a desperate bid to have the heirlooms returned they offered $2,000 reward.

A mystery caller phoned this week to say he had the necklace and bracelet.

Said Mr. Kudra: "Whoever it was must have been the thief. He identified both pieces down to the last detail and said he was willing to do a swap."

The man rang off when a clicking noise in the receiver interrupted the conversation.

His parting words were: "You're having this call tapped. Now I'm going to destroy the jewelry."

★ ★ ★

In a last-minute effort to prevent the jewels being destroyed forever, Mr. Kudra wrote a letter to the anonymous caller.

He addressed the letter to the Victoria Times with a note: "Please help me."

The letter, beginning "Dear Sir," invites the thief to call at Mr. Kudra's home for a beer to arrange a swap.

"I'll give this man $2,500 if he just returns the jewelry," said Mr. Kudra.

"I'm not worried about the money or seeing him punished any more. Just as long as this property is returned."

The letter closes—

Yours Sincerely,
Bali Kudra

RULES NOT CLEAR

Uvic Student Scores Federal Loan Policy

Some University of Victoria students are finding it hard to get federal education loans because the policy is unclear.

One student, who did not wish to be identified, pointed out that applicants who have failed a course the year previous stand less chance of getting federal aid than those with a straight pass.

Yet, such students may have the greatest need for a loan.

Such details are not spelled out in brochures on the Canada Student Loans Plan, which is administered in B.C. by a provincial committee headed by University of B.C. Dean Walter Gage.

Dean Gage has the ultimate decision on who is recommended for a loan, but he relies partly on information forwarded to him. In the case of Uvic applicants, Dr. W. H. Hickman interviews applicants and advises Dean Gage.

Policy, generally, is the same as that applied to the provincial loans system, Dr. Hickman said.

NEED RECOMMENDATION

"I think Dean Gage would agree that policy should be a little clearer . . . But someone has to make the recommendation; the government can't do it," Dr. Hickman said.

The federal brochure on loans states as final eligibility factors:

"An authority named by a provincial government must consider that your academic and other qualifications indicate every likelihood of success in your proposed training program and that the loan is justified on the grounds of financial need."

"We try to be just," Dr. Hickman explained.

NO SET RULE

There are no hard, fast rules on academic qualifications, he said, and a student who had failed a subject, for example, would not be out of the running for a loan.

"We would say that a person who has failed his year would be out.

"We try to find out as much as we can about his academic ability and financial need.

"If a student makes a good case for himself, then he would stand a better chance. But Dean Gage is the one who makes the final decision," said Dr. Hickman.

Columbia Dam Lowest Tender At $15,899,857

VANCOUVER (CP) — A consortium of three companies submitted a low bid of $15,899,857 for construction of the Duncan Lake Dam, first of three giant structures called for in the Columbia River treaty.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett opened five bids as president of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

It was indicated that the contract will probably be awarded to the low bidder, the consortium of Mannix Limited of Calgary, Standard - General Construction (International) Limited, also of Calgary and Emil Anderson of Vancouver.

EARLY START

Other bids ranged to $23,155,238, submitted by McNamara Construction (Western) Limited of Edmonton.

Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, Hydro co-chairman, said tenders will be let in a week and construction should start by the end of the month on the 120-foot-high earth-filled dam, 25 miles north of Kaslo, in the Kootenays.

He also announced that the contract for the Arrow dam, number two of the three treaty dams, will be let around the first of next year and that Mica Creek dam, largest of the three, will not be let until the end of next year.

Duncan Lake dam must be completed by April 1, 1968.

BIG RESERVOIR

It will create a 29-square-mile reservoir, capable of storing 1,400,000 acre-feet from a 925-square-mile drainage area.

Other bids opened by the premier were: Northern Construction Company, J. W. Stewart Limited and Perini Pacific Limited, all of the Vancouver area $18,388,233; the Foundation Company of Canada Limited of Toronto, $19,297,686; John Laing and Son, Richard Costain Civil Engineering Limited, George Wimpy Canada Limited, and Taylor Woodrow of Canada $20,339,448.

Radar Use Studied

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A $71,670 study contract has been awarded North American Aviation Company, Downey, Calif., to determine whether radar can relay information about topography to a computer, which in turn would tell an astronaut what lay ahead on the moon. Four areas near Barstow, Calif., comparable to those expected on the moon, have been selected for analysis.

SWISS FIRE AIR CHIEF OVER PLANE CONTRACT

BERN (AP) — The Swiss government fired its air force commander, Col. Etienne Primault, today because of parliamentary charges of gross negligence in the purchase of French jet planes.

President Ludwig Von Moos told the Council of States (upper house) the government may also take action against the chief of the Swiss general staff, Col. Jakob Annasohn, who offered his resignation.

A parliamentary investigation committee had held the two men directly responsible for negligent handling of a $191,000,000 order for 100 Mirage III fighter planes approved by parliament three years ago. Switzerland now will have to spend about one-fourth more and will get only 57 planes instead of 100 because of price increases and "miscalculations."

Cleric Denies He Saw Misconduct In Church

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh testified Tuesday that he has never seen anyone having sexual relations in Park Street United Church and he had seen nothing that led him to suspect that this was going on.

The 45-year-old Chatham minister took the witness stand at the opening of the 11th day of his trial on eight counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

He told the court he had found young people attending Friday night dances in out-of-bounds areas in the church, or on the way to them, while patrolling with dance chaperones or by himself.

He testified that the chaperones told him youngsters were leaving the dance floor and had been found in the church parlor. However, he added, no chaperoen ever reported to him finding anyone having intimate relations or necking.

Dealing in detail with the first count contained in the charge against him, Mr. Horsburgh said he first met the 14-year - old girl named in the charge last March 19, after receiving a telephone call from the 15-year-old boy with whom she claimed in her testimony, she had sexual relations in the church.

Mr. Horsburgh said the boy told him he and the girl had a very serious personal problem they wanted to discuss with him immediately. He invited the couple to talk with him in his office.

"I told them that marriage for them at this time was impracticable and impossible," he said.

He said they spoke of seeing nothing wrong with pre-marital intercourse, but the boy admitted that his girl friend had doubts about it and was reluctant.

$85 Million Pulp Project

MONTREAL (CP) — An $85,000,000 expansion program in the pulp and paper field in Quebec and Ontario has been announced by Dominion Tar and Chemical Co. Ltd.

W. N. Hall, Domtar president, said Tuesday $62,000,000 of the amount will go towards establishing a pulp and paper operation at Lac Quevillon, Que., some 300 miles northwest of Ottawa in the Abitibi district.

Installation of a new fine paper machine and extensions to shipping and stock preparation systems at the Cornwall, Ont., mill will cost another $11,000,000.

The company also will modernize completely its kraft pulp facilities at Windsor, Que., at a cost of $12,000,000.

Domtar already is spending $15,000,000 at its Red Rock, Ont., pulp and paper operation to improve its pulping process. This will bring Domtar expenditures for expansion by 1967 to a total of $100,000,000.

THIS GIGANTIC tree crusher will be used on an experimental basis by the B.C. Forestry Service to clear land to be flooded by the Portage Mountain dam on the Peace River power project. The machine has been rented by the B.C. government from a Quebec firm.

MACHINE TO CLEAR PEACE RESERVOIR

B.C. Hires 'War Monster'

The B.C. government has hired a monster to help on the Peace River power project.

It weighs 200 tons and looks like a gigantic medieval war machine.

But it will save almost $500,000 during a trial, and if successful, possibly much more.

The machine is called the R. G. LeTourneau Tree Crusher.

It is being shipped to B.C. from Quebec on eight flat cars.

It will be used to clear part of the Peace River reservoir —the huge area to be flooded by the Portage Mountain dam in northern B.C.

The B.C. Forest Service has hired the machine for a 400-hour trial.

If it proves estimates correct it will be used to clear more of the reservoir before flooding starts in 1968.

The estimates are that it can clear ground at about one fifth of the cost of conventional methods.

The cost of the machine will be in the neighborhod of $120,000. The cost of clearing 1,200 acres—the trial area — could normally run as high as $600,000.

The machine, powered by two 12-cylinder diesels, can knock down trees and stumps 40 inches in diameter.

As the trees fall, they are crush pressed into the ground by a wicked looking roller studded with sharp blades.

The forest service said it is the largest machine of its kind in the world.

It is being hired on contract from Tractu Lectrie Equipment Ltd. of Quebec.

It is due to arrive at the end of the month.

Forests Minister Ray Williston, who arranged the deal, said that the machine can mean important savings in time and money.

Chicago Police Force Shines Four Years After Big Shakeup

CHICAGO (AP)—Four years ago residents of Chicago watched as a citizens' committee struggled to find a man capable of cleaning up the city's scandal-ridden police department. Heading the committee was Orlando W. Wilson, dean of the School of Criminology at the University of California.

The committee screened candidates for months, and then picked the man it decided was tough enough to handle the job: Orlando W. Wilson.

After getting a "hands off" promise from Mayor Richard J. Daley, Wilson, then 59, reluctantly took over what many considered the most demanding police job in the country.

And things haven't been the same for the Chicago underworld since.

Last year, while crime soared 10 per cent across the U.S., Chicago reported a three-per-cent dropoff. It was the only major city to do so.

WINNING HONORS

Since 1960, the department has won 13 national honors, including an award from the American Society of Criminology.

Wilson took over at a time when police fortunes and morale were at low ebb. Eight policemen had been indicted for their part in a wave of burglaries on the North Side. Three more were to be indicted.

Public indignation had forced the resignation of Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor, who for nine years had maintained no organized crime existed in the city.

Tough jobs were nothing new for the deceptively mild-mannered Wilson, who had directed public safety and denazification programs in the U.S. zone in Germany after the Second World War.

His first day in office, Wilson pledged he would not tolerate political influence in the 13,000-man police force. He promised to fire any policemen engaged in illegal activities.

He immediately set up a bureau of intelligence services charged with "finding out if the department is as clean as the driven snow . . . or of making it as clean as the driven snow if it isn't."

SHAKES UP STAFF

Once security was established, Wilson launched into a massive shakeup of the department.

The number of police districts was slashed from 38 to 21. The detective division was consolidated into six area commands. Most important, the bulk of the department's manpower was thrown into the patrol division, considered by Wilson to be the city's "first line of defence against crime."

"Every time somebody was robbed, assaulted, raped or whatever, that meant a policeman was assigned there," Wilson said in an interview.

"And he was left there forever and usually around the clock. We were guarding coal yards, private businesses, banks and what have you in much the same way."

Wilson called in the beat men and put them into patrol cars. within two years, the number of police vehicles on the streets was doubled.

The next step was to lift police morale. Wilson saw to it that examinations for promotions were held on a regular biennial basis. Within three years, more than 1,200 promotions were made. They included 873 sergeants, 266 lieutenants and 94 captains.

Wilson also revamped communications, spending $2,000,000 on a modern centre capable of handling thousands of calls for help daily.

"We can get men to the scene of a crime at a speed that amazes the citizens and frankly, me too," he says.

$117,000 Profit From Gas Stock Sale

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Mr. Justice Leo Landreville made a profit of $117,000 on the sale of Northern Ontario Natural Gas stock a year after he resigned as mayor of Sudbury, it was revealed Tuesday at a preliminary hearing on municipal corruption charges against him.

Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor of Sudbury from 1955 until late 1956, when he was appointed to the Ontario Supreme Court.

Testimony in a transcript of evidence prepared by the Ontario Securities Commission during a 1962 investigation of NONG stock transactions was read into evidence. It said the figure was based on a securities commission audit of NONG sales conducted openly through a Toronto stock firm.

Mr. Justice Landreville is charged with accepting NONG shares as a consideration for getting a NONG franchise for Sudbury through city council when he was mayor, and with agreeing to accept NONG shares for signing the agreement.

The reading of the 180-page transcript began last Thursday and ended Tuesday.

It is expected special Crown prosecutor Harvey McCullough of Hamilton will later read into evidence about 90 pages of testimony given by Mr. Justice Landreville at last April's perjury trial of NONG President Ralph K. Farris of Vancouve.

HOME GARDEN

Now's Time To Play With Color

By HILDA BEASTALL

This is one season of the year when even the largest home may be lavishly adorned with cut flowers.

Hilda

Dahlias, roses and a host of annuals are near the end of their floral display yet many perfect blossoms and dozens of near-open buds are there for the cutting.

Far from depleting the garden at this time, gathering these flowers as you cut down and remove foliage of perennials and annuals gives an air of peacefulness to the garden.

Once more there is space, and chrysanthemums, Michaelmas-daisies and the other true flowers of fall seem to enjoy the lack of competition after the summer denizens are removed.

Mixed colors and types of flowers demand bowls of generous proportions to show them to advantage.

BETTER EFFECT

Where the leaves are damaged or poor in any way, the effect will be much improved if they are removed entirely and leaves from other plants substituted.

The lovely bronze and red colors found in peony leaves at this season blend beautifully with gold, yellow, pink and purple flowers, while grey or yellow foliage from other shrubs or trees go better with blue.

In general, the same rules apply in arranging these sumptuous bowls of fall flowers as govern the more ethereal arrangements of spring and early summer.

The largest blooms are placed near the rim of the bowl, darker colors spread through the lighter tones, but kept mostly to the centre and near the base, and the width at the base should be broad to avoid a top heavy feeling.

Fall flowers in such profusion give us a chance to play with color and come up with creations to suit the most pagan among us.

PAT BAY TOLL RISES

4 Lanes Sought

By LESLIE MILLIN

Blood-stained Patricia Bay Highway should be improved or replaced — at once.

So say the municipal officials and policemen who watch and patrol the 20 miles from the Trans-Canada Highway junction to Swartz Bay Ferry terminal.

There are plans for a four-lane highway—Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi says he doesn't know when they'll go ahead.

Some Saanich councillors want the plans to go ahead now.

EIGHT DEATHS

In 10 months, the highway has been the scene of eight fatalities.

In two weeks, it has been the scene of four fatalities.

Two of them occurred Tuesday, both of them so bloody that experienced policemen were sickened by them. (See page 13.)

Saanich and Central Saanich police chiefs say a four-lane divided highway would help reduce the number of fatalities.

PROMISED

And councillors say this has been promised, but never delivered.

"Everyone blames the highway for the accidents," said Mr. Gaglardi this morning.

"I haven't had a report on the loader accident Tuesday night, but the other one would have happened no matter how wide the highway was.

"It's the drivers, not the road."

"I don't think the road is adequate for the traffic load that has been put on it by the ferries," says Saanich police chief W. A. Pearson.

DIVIDED HIGHWAY

"It's obvious that a four-lane divided highway would reduce the number of fatalities.

"Speed, the narrowness of the road, and the number of intersecting roads are big factors.

"But the attitude of drivers, and their fitness to drive at highway speeds, is also very vital.

"I don't know when we can improve the drivers.

"But the road could be improved."

60 TOO HIGH

"The speed limit on the Central Saanich portion is too high at 60 miles an hour," said Central Saanich police chief Fred Brownlee.

"Intersecting roads have been a problem in accidents out here.

"A four-lane divided highway would certainly improve the fatality picture as far as I'm concerned."

CHILDREN HAIL QUEEN AT RALLY

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A drizzle of rain stopped long enough today for the Queen and Prince Philip to make their second open-air appearance of the Royal Tour on the balcony of Province House, Prince Edward Island's legislative building and scene of the first meeting, in 1864, of the Fathers of Confederation.

But a massive outdoor gathering of Charlottetown and district school children was moved inside the city's fairgrounds arena. The Queen, wearing a simple turquois wool tweed ensemble, presented senior boy scout and girl guide awards before a crowd of nearly 9,000, almost all of them children.

Driving from the Royal Yacht Britannia in Charlottetown Harbor to the legislature, the fair grounds, and the residence of Lieutenant-Governor W. J. MacDonald, the Queen and her husband again lowered the windows of their closed limousine.

Despite the showery weather, thousands lined the route. The crowd packing the main intersection in front of Province House sent up a roar of welcome when the Queen stepped on to a balcony.

Premier Walter Shaw talked animatedly with her, pointing out the skyline with the twin spires of St. Dunstan's Roman Catholic basilica a block away.

Inside the legislature, the Queen spent several minutes visiting the chamber where in 1864, the first meeting of the Fathers of Confederation was

Semi-Metro Shift

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell today offered Greater Victoria municipalities the opportunity to scrap the semi-metro plan.

Instead, he told them, he intends to start drafting legislation in consultation with the Union of B.C. Municipalities which would apply on a province wide basis. Greater Victoria would be able to amalgamate services under this plan, he said, or they could drop the idea.

The province-wide legislation would in effect kill off the joint services consultations which Mr. Campbell has been holding with Greater Victoria.

MANY USES PREDICTED

Ocean's Motion Used As Source of Energy

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—The Hamilton Watch Company says it has developed what it calls an ocean motion harness capable of controlling the energy of the sea and putting it to work.

The mechanical device, developed by the company's industrial and military products division, captures motion created by ocean waves and converts it into a force that can be used to run a generator, charge a battery or transmit an electronic signal.

In principle, a company spokesman said, the device functions in much the same way as the self-winding mechanism of an automatic watch.

Hamilton engineers foresee many possible uses for the motion harness. As a power generator of buoys, for example, it can operate for long periods without the maintenance required for battery-powered buoys.

Its output may be used automatically to wind marine chronometers or to operate sailboat instruments requiring power.

The original model weighs less than one pound and measures three inches each way. Larger ones may be developed later.

Nightmare Faces Flag Committee Study

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Beavers, geese, a pot of pea soup and enough Maple Leaves to cover a tree, were on display today as the parliamentary flag committee opened its doors at the halfway mark in its six-week deliberations.

The riot of flag designs—1,200 new ones and 3,000 left over from the 1945-46 committee—papered the walls, hung from the ceilings and crept up from the floor of room 356S in the centre block.

Chairman Herman Batten (L—Humber-St. George's) and his 14 colleagues from all parties were on hand for pictures and the guarded comments which have become their standard offering since the committee began.

Batten did reveal that the committee had met 18 times during which it had sifted information from documents and experts in heraldry, protocol, Canadian history and political economy.

NIGHTMARES

Whether or not the committee could come up with a near unanimous decision within its six-week deadline was "a difficult question," Batten said.

To the newsmen who were invited in for a half-hour glimpse of the no-man's-land of flags, that was putting it mildly.

The Red Ensign was there, but the symbol which dominated the room was the maple leaf and almost every variation of it that Canadian flag lovers could dream up.

There were bars, stripes, crosses and circles mounted on rough paper, elaborate silk, wood, cardboard and photographs.

Among the lot were several striking alternatives for a distinctive national flag. There were also humorous efforts and a few in questionable taste.

Some featured Canadian geese flying across the flag pursued by maple leaves. On one a dove was singing "O Canada." There were several designs with a beaver biting the stem of a maple leaf.

One had an Egyptian eye peering out of the heart of a maple leaf. Christ, the Queen and the Union Jack dominated another.

A sardonic contribution consisted of three vertical panels of red, white and blue. Centered in one panel was a foaming mug labelled "The Legion"; in the other a steaming bowl of pea soup for Quebec; and in the centre a question mark labelled "Canada."

The total effect of having to sit in the room for any length of time was enough to shake even a stout constitution.

DIFFICULT QUESTION

One committee member admitted to having flag nightmares.

None would single out his personal choice of design, and most covered the situation with a diplomatic "I like them all."

In a more serious vein one confided that it was impossible to tell whether any decision will be reached at the end of six weeks. To date most of the meetings have been directed toward gathering information.

Still to come is the difficult process of negotiating among the seven Liberals, five Conservatives and one each from the three minority parties to determine possible areas of compromise and hard lines of agreement.

Whether Canada will have a new flag by Christmas remains a moot question.

Ingram Ordered To Stand Trial

By DESMOND BILL
Times Staff Reporter

NANAIMO—Ronald Ingram, a 34-year-old Nanaimo baker, this morning was committed for trial in a higher court on two counts of capital murder. (See earlier story on Page 31.)

He is charged with the slaying of Diane Phipps and Leslie Dixon two years ago in Nanaimo.

MAINLAND TRIAL

Ingram's trial likely will be in Vancouver or New Westminster.

Ingram's commital this morning came after testimony by 43 witnesses in the case. RCMP Staff-Sergeant Jack Purdy, in charge of investigation, testified today.

He said Ingram was icing a cake the first time he was interviewed by police. This occurred on Aug. 7 of this year when the RCMP officer went to a bakery in Westview Shopping Plaza in West Vancouver where Ingram was working.

Another officer present at the interview, Const. Wally Semianoff, said Ingram continued working while talking to police, but he didn't finish the icing before the three of them left to go to the North Vancouver police station.

All through the hearing Ingram sat impassive in the dock with his legs crossed, arms folded and head cocked on the one side.

Ingram's second wife and his mother sat in the front row downstairs all through the hearing while relatives of the dead couple sat in the upstairs gallery most of the time.

Win 9-5 In Series Opener

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Rookie Mike Shannon's two-run homer keyed a four-run sixth-inning uprising that powered St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-5 victory over New York Yankees today in the opening game of baseball's 1964 World Series.

The second game of the best-of-seven series will be played here Thursday.

The National League champion's sixth-innnig rally wiped out a 4-2 New York lead and they wrapped up the victory, before a Busch Stadium crowd of 30,805, with three unearned runs in the eighth.

Ken Boyer singled, leading off the sixth and, one out later, Shannon drove deep into the left-field stands for a 4-4 tie. The Cardinals then knocked out Yankee starting pitcher Whitey Ford and clubbed reliever Al Downing for two more runs before the inning was over.

Tim McCarver's double finished Ford and Carl Warwick, pinch-hitting for winning pitcher Ray Sadecki, singled off Downing, sending McCarver home with the lead run. Curt Flood tripled scoring pinch-runner Julian Javier, before Downing retired the side.

YANKEES COUNTER

The Yankees, 9-5 series favorites, countered with a run in the eighth off reliever Barney Schultz but the knuckleball pitcher retired Mickey Mantle with two men on base to end the threat.

A double by pinch-hitter John Blanchard and Bobby Richardson's two-out single produced the run. Roger Maris beat out an infield single before Mantle grounded out.

The Cardinals moved out of reach in the eighth, raking Roland Sheldon and Pete Mikkelsen for three runs after an error by Cletis Boyer opened the gates.

Boyer let Shannon's grounder go through him and the Cardinal outfielder reached second on a passed ball by Elston Howard. McCarver walked and, after Schultz lined into a double play, pinch-hitter Bob Skinner walked, Flood singled one run home and Lou Brock doubled in two more.

Tom Tresh drove in three runs with a two-run homer and double and Ford singled home another run as the Yankees jumped to a two-run lead against Sadecki after five innings.

Ford, making a record 22nd series start, was touched for single runs in each of the first two innings. Boyer drove in the first run with a sacrifice fly and Sadecki singled home the second.

N.Y. RACIAL SCENE

Arrest of Mothers Sparks Near Riot

NEW YORK (AP)—Police arrested dozens of defiant white mothers today during a school sit-in protest against a racial-integration program which transferred their children away from their neighborhood school.

The arrests sparked a near-riot among scores of demonstrators and on-lookers outside Public School 149 in the Jackson Heights section of Queens.

Police headquarters reported the arrests of 65 adults on charges of loitering in or near a school, a form of disorderly conduct. One man was charged with felonious assault on a policeman.

The adults, along with 80 children, were taken by police buses and patrol wagons to court.

As they were led to the vehicles, a large detachment of police linked hands to keep chanting and sign-waving demonstrators away. One man tried to break through the cordon and was wrestled to the ground by five policemen.

BIG CAT DEFIES DEATH; DOG SAVES HUNTER'S LIFE

LUND, B.C. (CP) — Fred Pihle fired a shotgun slug through the heart of a cougar—but the big cat refused to die and turned on him.

Unhurt, but shaken, he told the story today of how his German hunting dog, Baron, and hunting companion, Bob Ellerby, saved his life.

"I spotted the cougar lying on a rock above my head, looking down at me about 25 yards away.

"I shot my slug in him and found out later I got him right through the heart. It didn't stop him.

"The animal rolled down the hill towards me and I shouted for help. Bob was quite aways into the bush but Baron got there right away.

"That's what saved my life. The cat was so close there was blood on the barrel of my gun.

"The dog jumped on his back and fought him off me. I shot two blasts of birdseed shot to scare the cougar off but he still fought Baron.

"Then Bob arrived and put another couple of shots into the cougar. Still it didn't stop fighting until a shot went into its skull and blew half its head off."

Pihle said the cat was weighed at 80 pounds and was the second of a set of twins, the first killed last week.

FOUND IN ACCUSED MAN'S FORMER BAKERY

Police Try to Link Cartridge Case, Weapon

By DESMOND BILL

NANAIMO—A used cartridge case found in a bakery once owned by Ronald Ingram came from a rifle that an expert said was "probably" used to kill two Nanaimo teen-agers.

This was stated Tuesday by RCMP Corporal Peter Schmil at the preliminary hearing of a double-murder charge against Ingram.

The 34-year-old baker is accused of the murder of Diane Phipps and Leslie Dixon, 19-year-old sweethearts.

The cartridge case was found only two months ago on a ledge six feet nine inches above the ground of a washroom at the back of Harewood Plaza Bakery.

The two teen-agers were killed two years ago while out on a date. Their bodies were found eight miles apart on either side of Nanaimo.

Cpl. Schmil said he test-fired a rifle that the Crown is alleging was the murder weapon. He said an examination showed expended cartridges from the rifle matched the case found in the bakery.

Another technical expert, Corporal J. J. Kirby of the RCMP crime laboratory in Regina, Sask., testified he made a microscopic examination of three bullets that were taken from the bodies of the dead couple.

He said he compared them with bullets that he test-fired from the rifle.

'Probably Was'

He said one bullet "could and probably was" fired from it.

The third bullet, he said, was so badly damaged that he couldn't tell if it came from the alleged murder weapon.

Cpl. Kirby said he also examined two cartridge cases found in the car in which Dixon was shot. He said he was able to make a "positive identification" of these as coming from the rifle.

He then held up two phials containing flesh taken from around the bullet wounds in the back of Dixon's head. Cpl. Kirby said his examination of these pieces of flesh showed that Dixon was shot at a range of no more than half an inch.

Found In Lake

The rifle is a .22 calibre, semi-automatic that Cpl. Kirby said was designed for a boy or a small man. He said the gun can be broken down and carried easily in two pieces so that it is "not quite as obvious."

The gun was found several months after the murder by two Nanaimo youths when they were skating on Long Lake, five miles north of Nanaimo. They found it embedded in the ice.

Dixon's body was found in his car, parked at Piper's Lagoon, a spot near Nanaimo often visited by young couples. Donald Ross, a Nanaimo youth who knew Dixon and his car, said he was there on the night of the murder.

He said he arrived about midnight in a car along with another youth and three girls. He said he saw Dixon's car in his headlights and there was "no one in it." Ross said his party was there until 4 in the morning and "saw nothing."

Cartridges In Car

Staff Sergeant Earl Sarsiat, who was in charge of Nanaimo RCMP detachment at the time, gave evidence of going to Piper's Lagoon at 9:45 a.m. on Oct. 17, 1962.

He said Dixon's body was lying on the right side of the front seat. The ignition key was in the switch and a man's jacket and a woman's coat and purse were neatly folded in the back seat.

There was no evidence of a scuffle either inside or outside the car, he said. Two cartridge cases were found in the car, he said.

The staff sergeant testified that as he left Piper's Lagoon that afternoon he got word of the discovery of the girl's body. He went to the scene and saw her body where it had been hidden under old car parts.

Cotton Around Neck

Staff Sergeant Sarsiat said her head was so badly battered that "her hair was beaten into the ground." He said there was a long piece of cotton tied in a lose knot around her neck.

Corporal Tony Prokop, head of the hair and fibre section of the RCMP laboratory in Vancouver, gave evidence that he compared this cloth with samples of material taken from Harewood Plaza Bakery.

He said some of the samples were "approximately similar" to the strip of cloth. Under cross-examination by defence counsel Hugh McGivern he said this type of material is "quite common" and is stocked in large quantities by any department store.

The preliminary hearing is expected to end today.

Council Rejects Booming Ground

CROFTON—A bid by Pacific Logging Co. to develop a booming ground here has failed.

At a special meeting Monday, North Cowichan council rejected the proposal by four votes to three.

It is unlikely their decision will be reversed at the usual council meeting tonight.

Monday's public meeting was called after the company, a CPR subsidiary, set up a booming ground close to Government Wharf without awaiting permission.

TOO NOISY

An application for permission by the company was opposed Monday by Crofton Ratepayers' Association, represented by president Ed Alexander and Mrs. Jessie McMorran, owner of a motel and fishing resort adjacent to the booming grounds.

Two weeks ago, Mrs. McMorran told council that noise from the booming grounds was driving guests from her motel.

Mr. Alexander said the association is trying to attract residential people and did not want more heavy industry on the waterfront.

He said more than 100 people had signed a petition against the booming ground proposal.

Next step for the company, if it wants to press for the booming grounds, will be an application to the zoning board of appeal.

FLUORIDATION VOTE SOUGHT

NORTH COWICHAN (CP)—Spokesmen for a delegation of North Cowichan residents said Tuesday the group will ask council to authorize a referendum on fluoridation of the municipal water supply systems.

UAR Holds Tshombe Hostage

CAIRO (AP) — Premier Moise Tshombe of The Congo was a hostage of President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic government but a Congolese official said today Tshombe still hoped to gain admittance to the conference of non-aligned nations.

Nasser's government said Tshombe would not be released until his government called off gendarmes surrounding the U.A.R. embassy in Leopoldville.

An aide said Tshombe does not want to go home and is quite happy to remain here and watch the conference on television.

The aide said Tshombe is banking on a telegram sent Tuesday to Nasser by President Joseph Kasavubu of The Congo protesting the treatment of Tshombe. Informed sources said the telegram told Nasser that Tshombe was the proper premier of The Congo and should be permitted admission to the conference.

SAID HE WOULD LEAVE

Tshombe had announced Tuesday night he was abandoning his attempt to attend the conference after the countries attending voted not to admit him. He said then he would leave for home immediately.

Reports from Leopoldville Tuesday said gendarmes surrounded the UAR Embassy and halted all movement in and out of the building. The reports said the action was taken to protect the embassies from mob action that was feared because of Tshombe's treatment in Cairo.

The Algerian Embassy also was cordoned off, Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella having been a leader in the move to bar Tshombe from the non-aligned conference.

CALLS ON TSHOMBE

Al Ahram said President Nasser's adviser on African affairs, Mohamed Fayek, called on Tshombe to tell him he would have to remain in Cairo.

Tshombe had insisted on attending the conference despite a telegram from conference leaders to Congo President Joseph Kasavubu telling him he would be welcome but Tshombe wouldn't.

CPL. BACON . . . in spare time

Foil-Fooled Experts Bow to Corporal

COMOX — A problem which foiled the experts has been solved by a 26-year-old RCAF corporal here.

Cpl. Win Bacon of Amherst, N.S. has come up with the answer after two years research during his spare itme.

The problem arose when CF-100 target aircraft, used by an electronic warfare unit, returned with metallic foil which should have been dropped over the target area.

After a number of investigations, Cpl. Bacon noticed the foil boxes were buffeted by the slipstream as they left the aircraft.

FAKE SIGNAL

This caused the mechanical box counter outside the plane to send a false empty signal to the pilot.

Cpl. Bacon came up with an idea to replace present monitoring equipment with a photo-electric cell and light beam so that no matter how much the box vibrated it would only break the beam once.

As a reward for his idea, he has been presented with a certificate and a cheque on behalf of the suggestion award board of the public service of Canada.
